Plan unit seeks to force builders to keep promises

The Wheeling Plan Commission may soon start a checklist procedure to make sure developers keep their promises about sidewalks, landscaping and declaration lanes.

In the past few weeks, the commission has found several developers who have not lived up to promises when they appeared before the plan commission.

For example, sidewalks and deceleration lanes promised in 1968 by the Zale Construction Co., developers of Lakeside Villas, have never been installed. The commission discovered these discrepancies while reviewing plans for the development of the final phase of the project.

LIKEWISE, DEVELOPERS of Tahoe Village have not installed the sidewalks and deceleration lanes promised when that development first came before the plan commission. Once again, the shortcomings were discovered while the plan commission was reviewing plans for the final phases of development.

"It's as much the plan commission's fault as anyone else," said Herb Lortz, chairman of the commission. "We think we've got these things, but somewhere along the line maybe they're conveniently forgotten."

Lortz said the only way to doublecheck on developments coming before the commission is to review the minutes of previous meetings to see what had been promised. He noted that this was the way the Tahoe Village and Lakeside Villas matters were discovered.

FAA checks out landing system

A low-flying DC-3 airplane circling this area Friday was carrying out a routine check of the instrument landing system at O'Hare Airport, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesman said Friday.

The checks are made frequently, usually at night, and are designed to insure that the electronic equipment which guides planes into O'Hare is accurate and conforms to FAA standards, the spokesman said.

The DC-3s used in the tests are scheduled to be replaced by smaller, faster jet airplanes.

Village Engineer Larry Oppenheimer said he would like to see these promised improvements included on the bond posted by all developers. "I'd like to see the wording on the bond reflect what it's for," he said. Oppenheimer said in this way his office would be able to make sure that the bond was not released until all promised improvements are installed.

COMMISSION MEMBERS, however, suggested that a checklist be made for each project listing the promises made by the developer. They said that the village engineer and other officials could review the checklist before releasing the developers' bond.

The commissioners said that although they have been able to correct the problem at Tahoe Village and Lakeside Villas, there are probably many other developers who have not kept their promises. They suggested various ways of checking up on developers, but delayed any decision until a later date.

Commission members indicated, however, that they will be more careful about reviewing the minutes of previous meetings before acting on ongoing developments. They also said they would try to get all promises in writing so verbal commitments would not get lost in the minutes.

Commission begins work on environmental rules

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling residents in the next few months will be watching the evolution of new rules and regulations designed to protect the environment.

The newly formed village environmental commission has begun the process of researching various types of environmental control, and will soon begin preparing guidelines for the village. These guidelines are expected to establish a process of environmental review through an expanded seven-person commission, and to give the village enforceable environmental standards.

Michael Valenza, chairman of the commission, said he thought the research and preparation of guidelines will be a time-consuming process. He noted that the ordinance creating the commission was purposely vague.

According to Valenza, the size of the commission was kept to three members so that the preliminary organization work would not become "unwieldy." He said once the rules and regulations are established, the commission will probably be expanded to seven members, with each member having a specialized area of environmental concern.

EVENTUALLY, THE commission will review all building and planning for the village from an environmental point of view. "It's never been looked at from this standpoint before, and I think it should be," Valenza said. "But it's about a year away, I would imagine."

Members of the commission said they think Wheeling is in a good position to develop environmental guidelines because of the lack of heavy industry in the area.

"We're not facing United States Steel or General Motors in our midst," said Robert Kingsbury.

Commission members said they can therefore concentrate on avoiding environmental problems as the village develops. "We're primarily concerned how the village develops, that it develops in an orderly manner and that it will be something for future generations to be proud of," said William Rogers.

SOME AREAS that will be affected by the commission include air, water and noise pollution, flooding, conservation, land use, and garbage disposal. The commission also briefly noted problems associated with leaf burning, recycling, and village beautification.

Rogers said it could begin research by checking the environmental ordinances prepared by other communities. "We're all novices at this," he said. "Each one of us is going to have to bone-up, read-up."

The commission got its first taste of the amount of environmental literature available when Valenza circulated numerous pamphlets and information sheets at the commission's first meeting last Thursday.

Commission members said they will have to develop a library composed of various magazines, books and other environmental sources. The village is providing the advisory board with $1,000 for various training, conferences, magazines, office supplies and equipment.

THE COMMISSION also will have a regular secretary who will record the meetings and prepare minutes. Esther Davis, chairman of the village beautification committee, will be attending many of the meetings to keep the two boards in contact.

If possible, the commission members said they would like to have their own attorney who would be free to deal entirely with environmental law. Rogers noted that village attorney Paul Hamer has numerous other responsibilities, and thus might not be able to devote enough time to the environmental commission.

Rogers also said environmental law is still a developing field, and noted that there are conflicts between federal, state and local laws. "Many times there aren't definite standards," Rogers said. "Nothing is clear-cut."

The next commission meeting will be called by Valenza after various environmental pamphlets and ordinances are available for the members to review. Rogers suggested the meeting schedule remain flexible until after the guidelines are established. Other members agreed.

FALL ROUNDUP ROYALTY were crowned at Buffalo Grove High School Saturday. The queen is Lynn Ann McGowan and the king is Jim McGowan. Both are juniors. The week-long schedule of Fall Roundup activities took the place of homecoming at the new school that will not have a graduating class until 1975.

Trustees may combine commissions

The Wheeling Village Board tonight is scheduled to act on a proposed ordinance that would combine the functions of three village commissions into a single municipal relations commission.

The ordinance was proposed as an alternative to dissolving the industrial, human relations and public relations commissions. Trustee Al Lang this summer suggested that these commissions be dissolved because of lack of members and lack of activity.

When members of these commissions objected to Lang's proposal, Trustee Ron Bruhn suggested that the commissions' functions be combined under a single advisory board.

THE ORDINANCE would create a five-man commission. Lang said the five-member group would give the commission flexibility in developing. He also noted that the village did not have many applicants for positions on the three commissions.

The board is also scheduled to consider granting a special-use permit that would allow for the operation of a hotdog stand at 636 N. Milwaukee Ave. The hotdog stand, called Do-Do's Dogs Inc., is being proposed by Michael Valenza, chairman of the environmental commission, and Vern Nystrom, chairman of the police and fire commission.

A second special-use permit on the agenda would allow the Omni-House-Youth Services Bureau to operate from a house at 57 S. Wolf Road. Owners of the house are hoping to rent Omni House, which may eventually buy the building.

PRELIMINARY PLANS for two new developments will also be reviewed by the board. The Forums condominium development is proposed for 10 acres on Elmhurst Road just north of Pleasant Run Drive. The 150-unit project is being developed by Victor Smigel.

The second development is Devonscourts Condominiums, a 250-unit project planned for 10.81 acres on the Lakeside Villas property on Hintz Road. The apartment condominiums are being developed by Ferguson Development Co. and Zale Construction Co.

The board is scheduled to review an ordinance increasing the vehicle sticker fees. The increases are designed to provide the village with more money for the road and bridge fund. An ordinance granting zoning for a tire store on the northwest corner of Jeffrey and Milwaukee avenues is also on the agenda.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Tickets should be available by Oct. 22 and may be bought at the country club or from any Jaycee. The Wheeling Chamber of Commerce also has agreed to help with ticket sales, Cook said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugallan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "an undistinguished vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation.

"I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 25 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and that his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced; and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Harper College to try once more for new fieldhouse

Harper College is going to make another try at getting a replacement for its burned fieldhouse, this time by going through the Illinois Community College Board and the board of higher education.

The Harper board Thursday approved a revision in the school's building priorities that makes the fieldhouse replacement the first priority for state building funds. The priority listing must be approved by the community college board and higher board.

Harper's fieldhouse was destroyed by fire in June. Harper officials succeeded in getting a special appropriation of $1.63 million to replace the building passed by the Illinois General Assembly, but the appropriation was vetoed last month by Gov. Daniel Walker.

HARPER PRES. Robert Lahti said he has since had meetings with the staff of the community college board and with representatives from the higher board about the fieldhouse. He said the community college board staff has agreed to recommend approval of the new priority for the fieldhouse.

State junior colleges receive 75 percent of their building money from the state. Each year, the community college and higher boards set priorities for the available funds appropriated by the legislature.

In revising its priorities, the Harper board moved the fieldhouse up with a group of vocational education buildings which had been the college's first priority. Before the fire, the fieldhouse had the lowest priority, coming behind vocational education and classroom buildings.

HARPER VICE PRES. William Mann said in the past the state boards have given fieldhouses and other physical education buildings low priority and have given highest priority to vocational education buildings. By combining the vocational education and fieldhouse buildings into a single, high priority project, Mann said, "I think we have a nice package. We have two very high priority facilities combined with one low priority facility that has a special consideration."

The cost of the combined package is estimated at $7,088,000, of which $5,316,000 would come from the state. Mann said the project might be broken up by the state if funds were short, so Harper might get either only the fieldhouse or only the vocational education buildings.

"We can't imagine them cutting vocational ed," Mann said.

In a related issue, Mann reported to the board that the college has reached a preliminary settlement with its insurance company for the contents of the fieldhouse. He said the settlement, which still must receive final approval from the insurance company, will be $140,000.

IN ADDITION, Richard Thoms, a representative of Marsh and McLennan, the insurance broker for the college, said he would be willing to try to work out a partial payment on the building itself while the insurance company works to determine its full value.

Harper board members have objected to the length of time the insurance company has taken in setting a value on the burned fieldhouse. Thoms said the company claims adjusters are now going over architects drawings to determine how the original building was constructed and how many improvements are being put in.

A building to provide temporary showers and locker rooms for the physical education program is now under construction but has been delayed because of a shortage of structural steel. College officials now estimate the building will be completed in January.

Youth's body brought home

Frank Teruggi has come home.

The body of the 23-year-old Des Plaines man, shot to death Sept. 22 during Chile's coup d'etat, arrived yesterday at O'Hare Airport.

The body was taken to Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, where funeral arrangements have been made by his parents, Frank and Jennie Teruggi.

Visitation is today from 3 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at Oehler's. A Funeral Mass will be said tomorrow at 10 a.m. at St. Mary's Church, Prairie and Pearson streets, Des Plaines. Interment will be in All Saints Cemetery.

Also surviving are a sister Janis, and a brother, John.

Several hundred demonstrators Saturday protested what they termed U. S. involvement in the Chilean coup. Members of more than a dozen organizations, coordinated by the Chicago Peace Council and the New World Resource Center, marched through the Loop to the Federal Building.

THE DEMONSTRATORS also called for an independent investigation into Teruggi's death. He is the only American known to have died during the Chilean coup which began Sept. 11 and has been described by some observers as a "blood bath."

The current Chilean government has given no explanation as to how Teruggi died. They have confirmed that he was shot to death but claim the bullets that killed him were not of the same caliber used by the Chilean military.

Teruggi and his roommate, David Hathaway of Seattle, were arrested for what the Chilean government said was a curfew violation Sept. 20. Hathaway insists they were arrested in their apartment and no curfew violation existed.

THE NEXT DAY Teruggi's name was called by military officials and he was taken away. Hathaway was released unharmed soon after and never saw Teruggi again.

Teruggi's body lay in a Chilean morgue for about two weeks before American officials learned of his death. His father has been critical of the American government's failure to help his son get out of the country. He has also denied reports by a Chicago newspaper that his son was involved in Marxist activities.

The elder Teruggi last week received a letter from a Chilean University student who called himself, "Frank's friend." The letter confirmed that Frank was not involved with Marxist activists. The student added Frank's friends were very worried about him and asked the father to seek help from the American consulate. The letter was written after Teruggi was killed.

Adult driver training course set at Harper

A course beginning Oct. 16 at Harper College offers driver training to persons over 21. The class will meet from 6 to 8 p.m. on Thursdays.

Classes will give participants the basic experience necessary to pass driver's license exams. They will include 20 hours of classroom instruction, six hours of behind-the-wheel experience, and six hours of observation in the car which is equipped with dual controls. If students have not obtained a learner's driving permit by the time they enter the class, the instructor will inform them of application procedures.

The class will meet in Building F, Room 303. Tuition is $28 for Harper College district residents and $67.44 for others. In addition, a $22 lab fee is required. Registrations are taken at the Harper College Continuing Education Office between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

It's Junior Achievement week

Junior Achievement starts this week in the Northwest suburbs.

Junior Achievement is a nine-month program providing high school students with an opportunity to win or lose in the business world. Students will meet next week in four communities to select a company name, choose a product and charter their businesses. In coming months, they will sell stocks in the firms at $1 per share, and use the proceeds of the stock sale to finance production of their chosen merchandise. Before May, they will sell their products and assess their financial prowess on their profit ratio.

New Junior Achievement companies will meet Tuesday in Hoffman Estates, Palatine and Schaumburg. They will open Wednesday in Des Plaines, and a second meeting will be held Wednesday in Schaumburg. All meetings will be held at 7 p.m.

In Hoffman Estates, the meeting will be at 2165 Greystone Dr. The company there will be advised by representatives from Western Electric in Rolling Meadows. About 150 students can be accommodated.

The Des Plaines meeting will be in the offices of Universal Oil Products, at Mount Prospect and Algonquin roads. About 50 teenagers are expected.

The Palatine meeting will be in the Union Oil Co. building at 200 E. Golf Rd., where about 60 to 70 students are expected.

In Schaumburg, about 100 students will meet at the Motorola headquarters at Algonquin and Meacham roads.

Walker, legislators will resume their battle today

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Warfare returns to Springfield today when the Illinois General Assembly convenes to examine Gov. Daniel Walker's $1 billion in vetoes.

Unanimity by the legislators could result in tax, loan and election changes in the state and Chicago suburbs. But animosity aggravates the partisan split between Democrat Walker and the Republican-controlled House and Senate and threatens passage of most bills.

Hanging in the vote balance are bills that would:

—Drop the state sales tax a half-cent;
—Rebate $10 in taxes to each Illinois resident;

—Establish a state board of elections.

Walker has called special separate sessions to discuss state ethics legislation and a regional mass transit authority.

And legislators are under pressure to create a state lottery and to increase the ceiling on home-loan interest above 8 percent.

THE GENERAL Assembly recessed in chaos in July and confusion may reign during the veto session. Groundrules are unclear. Length of the session is anybody's guess. And the House will meet in the less-than-magnificent auditorium of the state Centennial Building to allow renovation of the regular House chamber.

Walker, who has fired salvos of criticism at legislators throughout the summer, is expected to address a joint session this afternoon to explain his special session call for ethics legislation and his vetoes or changes of 225 spring session bills.

Republicans and Democrats will caucus after Walker's message to determine groundrules for the session, which begins at noon.

The Senate has scheduled seven days of veto debate and technically has 15 days to consider vetoes before they become law. Sessions are scheduled today through Wednesday and Monday through Thursday next week.

Christmas is the tongue-in-cheek estimate for length of the session, General Assembly leaders told The Herald. Length of the session will be determined by range of non-veto topics debated.

If legislative leaders hold discussion to Walker vetoes and ethics, the session could end in two weeks, said a spokesman for Senate President William C. Harris, R-Pontiac. If members are allowed to bring up "pet bills stalled in committee" six or eight weeks before adjournment is possible.

STATE SEN. David Regner, R-Mount

State Sen. David J. Regner

Prospect, who was in Springfield last week, predicted "a ton of requests to override everything. Unfortunately, that's not the overall meaning of the session."

The General Assembly is guaranteed another trip to Springfield Oct. 22 because Walker has called a second special session that will deal with the state lottery and mass transit.

The governor said Friday he called the session "so there can be no question about the authority of the General Assembly to address itself to the regional transportation issue."

Walker's mass transit message came during speculation that House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, and Harris would avoid an "open house" discussion of legislation by calling an RTA session.

W. Robert Blair

Walker has proposed financing of an RTA from lottery receipts and state motor fuel tax funds.

FIREWORKS could begin this week with consideration of Walker's sales tax veto.

The General Assembly last spring passed Blair's proposal to cut the state portion of the sales tax from 4 to 3.5 cents. Tied to the bill is financing of an RTA. Blair plans to allow a half-cent RTA tax levy in the six-county area and offers a more palatable package by cutting one tax, boosting another and holding the total at the same 4-cent level.

Walker went a step further than outright veto of the Blair bill. The governor, a repeated funder with Blair, used his amendatory veto power to substitute his tax relief plan that would return $10 to all residents. Walker boosted the tax rebate in a Chicago press conference last week.

A three-fifths majority in both houses is needed to pass a tax cut over Walker's veto. Spokesmen for Blair and Harris claim enough votes to overturn the governor Friday.

MORE THAN a dozen bills could face veto override votes, legislators have predicted. Topping the list are: the elections board bill hammered out after three years of debate, appropriations for supplemental highways downstate, money for state colleges and universities, transfer of mental retardation programs from the Department of Mental Health to a new Department of Developmental Disabilities, funding for junior colleges, return of nearly $60 million to local governments to offset loss of personal property tax revenue and increased aid for special education teacher salaries.

Walker's veto of a death penalty bill sponsored by Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Park Ridge, could stand but the governor faces a challenge on his block of a watered-down "no fault" insurance bill that is backed by the Illinois State Bar Assn.

MONEY is the method behind the governor's veto flourishes. Walker, who once predicted a state budget cut of $585 million, set an appropriation goal of $7.017 billion last spring. The governor signed into law about $7.375 billion by September and vetoed another $1 billion in spending proposals.

In a state fly-around following the spring session, Walker said that the legislature's spending would require a sales tax hike from 5 to 7 cents or a state income tax boost from 2.5 to 4 per cent. The legislature will now determine where to draw the line between spending and revenue.

Walker's call for ethics legislation has drawn Republican criticism as a "smokescreen." The governor, who has not revealed his contributors from the last campaign, wants a law to disclose contributions and expenditures, set a limit on funding, strengthen economic interest reporting and reveal land trust beneficiaries.

Egypt in biggest offensive by United Press International

Waves of Egyptian troops and tanks attacked in their biggest offensive of the war along the entire 102-mile Suez line Sunday. To the north, Israeli tanks punched through Syrian defenses to within 14 miles of Damascus.

Israel admitted its casualties were approaching those of the entire 1967 Six Day War.

Egypt announced its attacking forces had recaptured more Israeli-held territory in the barren desert area east of the Suez Canal, but Israel said it had thrown back the assault — biggest of the war — and "we are grinding them into the ground."

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan went to the Sinai front Sunday and said in a broadcast that now that the Syrians had been driven back, Israel was ready to devote more attention to crushing the Egyptian forces in the south.

"We are now in a war that is unlike any that preceded it, either the Sinai campaign or the Six Day War," said Dayan. "This is a hard war, with severe, bitter clashes of armor and air power, a war heavy with days, heavy with blood."

Dayan said that Israel's safety in the future lies in crushing the armies of Syria and Egypt rather than accepting a cease-fire before the job is finished.

Saudi Arabia's Riyadh radio announced that Saudi Arabia had entered the war and that Saudi troops had gone to the Syrian front. The broadcast came a day after Jordan announced its entry into the war.

On the northern front, an Israeli armored spearhead slashed through weakening Syrian defenses to a position within 14 miles of Damascus Sunday, and the Tel Aviv military command said Israeli big guns were shelling military targets on the outskirts of the ancient Syrian capital.

While fighting raged on both fronts, Israel announced in its first casualty report that 636 soldiers and airmen had been killed in the first eight days of the war — compared with 777 military dead in the entire Six Day War of 1967. One of the dead was Maj. Gen. Avram Mendler, commander of the Armored Corps in the Sinai.

Ford backs U.S. arms flow to Israel

(From Herald news services)

Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford, fast getting into the swing of being an administration man, attended a special White House worship service Sunday and addressed himself to the Mideast war.

Ford, announced as President Nixon's replacement for Spiro T. Agnew Friday night, met briefly with reporters following the services in the East Room, and declared the United States should fully meet all its commitments to supply arms to Israel while at the same time seeking an end to the fighting.

He said he hoped for a military solution quickly so work could accelerate on a diplomatic solution. Ford had been fully briefed on the latest developments in the Israeli-Arab conflict by Nixon and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger on Saturday.

He said it "depends on the circumstances" if there would be an increase in American arms shipments to Israel, and said U.S. diplomats were working "very diligently" in trying to help bring an end to the fighting.

The worship services were a rare event at the White House, the first held there since Aug. 15. They were conducted by Rep. William Hudnut III, R-Ind., an ordained Presbyterian minister, and the guests included the Skylab II astronauts.

After the services and meeting with reporters, Ford and his wife Betty chatted with some of the 300 guests in the Blue Room, then departed for a quick western tour.

He'll stop at Salt Lake City for a visit with his son Jack, a forestry student at Utah State University, and fulfill two speech-making engagements in Portland, Ore., today.

He's due back in Washington tonight for a White House dinner honoring former Secretary of State William Rogers.

Under the 25th Amendment of the Constitution, Ford must be confirmed by a majority of both houses of Congress before becoming second in line to the presidency. He is expected to encounter no difficulty, although congressional leaders say the process may take about a month.

First will come about two weeks of investigation of his personal and political life by the FBI and other agencies, and then separate hearings by the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate Rules committee — sessions open to live TV coverage and expected to take two weeks or less.

Each house will then vote on the nomination and judging from favorable reaction on Capitol Hill to Nixon's choice, this should be a quick routine matter with possibly unanimous approval.

Asked if his life would be an open book to investigators, Ford replied: "Darned right."

Agnew will speak tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will emerge from seclusion tonight to deliver a television speech he has been preparing since the day he resigned and pleaded "no contest" to a charge of income tax evasion.

Agnew's speech to the nation is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Marsh Thomson, Agnew's former press spokesman, said the former vice president began composing the speech shortly after he returned from Baltimore, where he entered his plea on Wednesday.

The speech will be in Agnew's own words, Thomson said, indicating he would receive little or no help from his former speechwriters. It was expected to elaborate on the statements which Agnew made immediately after his resignation.

Agnew is almost a non-person at the White House. President Nixon did not mention his name Friday night when he announced he had nominated Rep. Gerald Ford to succeed Agnew as vice president. The White House announcement ceremony had a gala flavor which avoided any reference to former vice president's personal tragedy.

When called Sunday, the White House switchboard said it could no longer put calls through to Agnew's house.

Maryland inquiry will continue

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A federal grand jury investigating political corruption in Maryland reconvenes this week to continue examining charges involving politicians and businessmen mentioned in charges against Spiro T. Agnew.

The inquiry, which began last December, was delayed by discovery of evidence which led to Agnew's resignation as vice president last Wednesday. Prior to the Agnew developments, the jury returned indictments against 22 policemen and 37 civilians.

The Justice Department presented Hoffman with a 40-page "exposition of evidence" against Agnew detailing a system of kickbacks which he allegedly received from Maryland contractors while serving as a Baltimore County official, governor and vice president.

Under a prior agreement, Agnew pleaded guilty to only one charge in exchange for his resignation and leniency from the court.

Following the court hearing, Agnew denied some of the allegations contained in the evidence. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said the next day that Agnew had agreed on the language of the document.

Agnew also criticized the Justice Department for promising immunity to other figures in the case in exchange for their testimony against him. His attorneys previously accused the Justice Department of leaking matters involved in the investigation to the news media.

The commission, advocating the "least drastic sentencing alternative . . . consistent with public safety," said the maximum sentence should be five years for felonies other than murder for "any offender not specifically found to represent a substantial danger to others."

A 25-year sentence should be imposed, it said, when the court finds that a longer term "is required for protection of the public and that the defendant is a persistent felony offender, a professional criminal or a dangerous offender."

Recommend standard prison sentences

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government advisory commission on corrections reform Sunday recommended that no criminal be sentenced to more than five years in jail unless he has proven to be dangerous, a persistent offender or a professional criminal.

A 636-page report by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals suggested a standard 75-year sentence for hardened criminals, except in cases of murder. It also said that no state legislature should lay down a minimum sentence.

Formed by the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), the report was described as one of only four such nationwide studies of the corrections system in this century. The recommendations are not binding on any state or local government.

Also included among the recommendations were a ban on corporal punishment in prisons; a 10-year moratorium on prison construction; codd prisoners; a separate cell for each prisoner; retention of a prisoners' civil rights; an end to guard uniforms, badges and weapons when possible, and better pay for both guards and working prisoners.

The commission said its report was not directed exclusively toward rehabilitation of prisoners because "if correctional processes were, or could be, truly rehabilitative, it is hard to see why they should be restricted to the convicted."

The commission, advocating the "least drastic sentencing alternative . . . consistent with public safety," said the maximum sentence should be five years for felonies other than murder for "any offender not specifically found to represent a substantial danger to others."

A 25-year sentence should be imposed, it said, when the court finds that a longer term "is required for protection of the public and that the defendant is a persistent felony offender, a professional criminal or a dangerous offender."

• The unidentified flying object reports popping up with increasing frequency in the Southeast took a new twist. Two Mississippi men — Charles Hickson, 42, and Calvin Parker, 18 — claimed they not only saw a UFO, but it landed near them while they were fishing the Pascagoula River and they were taken aboard by three creatures with big eyes, crab-like hands, wrinkled skin and pointed ears. Two scientists who questioned the men under hypnosis said they definitely had undergone some kind of terrifying experience, though exactly what couldn't be verified.

• She owes it all — well, mostly all — to women's lib, said Claire Randall of San Antonio, picked as the first woman general secretary of the National Council of Churches in its 23-year history. She says she's not a militant feminist, but believes the new attention on women's rights made her own long-standing qualifications for the job more recognizable.

• The murder trial of Edmund Kemper III will begin today in Santa Cruz, Calif. He's accused of killing eight women, including six coeds he picked up hitchhiking, and his mother, allegedly because he wanted to spare her the embarrassment of his crimes.

• The Army said it has launched an investigation of charges by 18-year-old cadet Mark Brown that he was hazed so intensively he wound up in the hospital and had to quit the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. He says in the 75 days he was at the academy, he was hazed on 58 of them, including being prevented from sleeping and being almost completely denied food and water. "I don't believe I was singled out in any way," he said.

$1.8 million contract OK'd for junior high additions

The Watson Construction Co. will construct additions totaling $1,820,709 to the Dist. 21 three junior high schools.

The contract for the work to be done this year was awarded last week by the Dist. 21 school board. The additions will provide extra classroom space besides accommodating new vocational education programs.

The contract bid agreed upon is $19,000 less than the original Watson bid of $1,839,709. Several items included in the first specifications for the construction of the additions were trimmed to save money.

Watson submitted the lowest of six bids received two weeks ago by the district.

The construction of the junior high additions will be financed with funds remaining from 1970 school referendum and money from the special education levy.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools and to construct the vocational education wings at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools. Because both the Irving and Stevenson sites were donated, the district still has about $300,000 in referendum funds.

Trade site for funds

Dist. 21 has relinquished a school site on McHenry Road to the 3-H Building Corp. in return for a donation from the developers.

The site, located between Whippietree Village and Cedar Run, is not expected to be needed by Dist. 21.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said because most of the northwest section of Wheeling is being developed with apartments and condominiums, he does not expect a large number of children to come from the area.

Dist. 21 also owns another nearby site close to the Lake County line.

The 3-H Building Corp. has agreed to give the district $50 for each unit of three bedrooms or more and $20 for each one- and two-bedroom unit.

The developers of the project have not released the number of each kind of unit to be included in the 67.3-acre development.

No classes Nov. 12

There will be no classes in School Dist. 21, Monday, Nov. 12.

The day has been declared a "day of no attendance" in the district by the school board. Because Veteran's Day, Nov. 11, falls on Sunday, the district was not allowed to designate Monday as a legal holiday.

Recognizing that many businesses will not be open on Monday and anticipating that families will want to take advantage of the three-day weekend, the board suspended classes for the day.

Hot lunch research

Dist. 21 administrators will do research on the type of hot lunches that might be offered in the district in response to requests for the hot meals from parents of children attending Riley School in Arlington Heights.

Presently, hot lunches are served only at the district's three junior high schools. Elementary children walk home for lunch or bring a lunch to school.

Gill said a questionnaire may be mailed to Dist. 21 residents later to poll their opinions on offering hot lunches in the elementary schools.

'Gun' helps state cops snag speeders

by TONI GINETTI

The "gun" was aimed casually out the window of the State Police squad car when the semi-trailer moving van sped past at 57 miles per hour — 12 miles faster than the posted speed limit.

State Trooper Joe Thomas set the gun's sights on the truck, squeezed the trigger, then raced after the truck. The gun lay beside him as red digital numerals blinked "57" steadily on a screen above his handle.

The truck driver had just become the victim of "Speedgun," a new radar unit resembling a bullhorn, which measures instantaneously the speed of moving vehicles.

THE DEVICE, which has been in use since August, is the latest police aid for trapping speeders, who police say are perhaps the foremost traffic enemy. Speedgun is portable and operates either by its own power pack or by plugging into a car cigarette lighter.

The gun works on the Doppler principle in which a signal is transmitted from the gun and bounces off a moving vehicle. The speed at which the signal bounces off the vehicle and back to the gun is equal to the vehicle's speed. Speedgun records that speed.

Six of the guns are now in use at State Police Dist. 3 headquarters in Des Plaines. A total of 80 of the units were purchased by the state from the manufacturer for $50,000, half of which was refunded by the federal government through a matching funds program.

SPEEDGUN HAS simplified the task of catching speeders, Thomas said during a morning patrol this week. Older radar units required the officer to read a graph which charted average speeds rather than the speed of a vehicle at any given moment. Speedgun, however, charts the actual speed of a vehicle in the same way a car speedometer does.

"It is so versatile, it really doesn't give the violator a chance," Thomas said. A violator doesn't stand much chance of disputing the accuracy of the unit because after each traffic stop, a trooper tests the gun to make sure it is working properly.

This is done with the use of a tuning fork which is calibrated to emit 50 m.p.h. vibration signals. If the 50 m.p.h. reading records on the gun when it is aimed at the tuning fork, the device is working accurately.

THOMAS SAID the guns are also inspected once a month to insure their proper operation.

But trapping the speeder doesn't necessarily mean issuing a ticket.

For example, four persons stopped for speeding by Thomas on a two-hour morning patrol this week were all traveling 10 to 13 miles per hour faster than the posted limit. All, however, were let off with written warnings, which the state police now issue, giving the driver a record of being stopped by speeding but no fine or ticket.

If the trooper feels a written warning will deter the driver from speeding again, then it can be just as effective as a ticket, Thomas said.

"WE FEEL WE'RE responsible for traffic safety," Thomas said of the State Police. "We handle almost no criminal cases except if they're involved in traffic cases."

"The most fundamental aspect of driving is speed. If a driver isn't conscious of that, will he be conscious of traffic lights and stop signs?"

Sewers backing upDump diapers? Don't do it!

by JOE SWICKARD

As Ed Norton used to say, "You never know what goes on down in the sewers."

The Metropolitan Sanitary District can tell you what goes through the sewers, but you might not believe it.

Earl Knight, of the MSD Industrial waste section, said, "Oh, we get all kinds of things through here. You'd be amazed what people put through the sewers."

Besides the usual, the MSD reports everything from mattresses to grocery carts have turned up in their sludge; often causing backups.

And Arlington Heights has experienced several sewerage backups recently due to "disposable" diapers. The problem became so bad, the village published a warning in the municipal newsletter.

BILL REINHARD of the village public works department, outlined the problem in a memorandum to assistant village manager Darryl Kenning. According to Reinhard, new parents are apparently ignoring the diaper package's instruction to remove the plastic shield before flushing them away.

He said the plastic prevents the paper diaper from dissolving as it was designed to do. The result is a plastic-coated, watertight seal in the sewer pipes, he said.

Persons upstream from the blockage can testify when sewerage cannot progress as planned, it must emerge somewhere.

When asked about the diapers, Rolling Meadows Public Works Supt. John Hennessy proclaimed fervently: "We hate, hate, hate them! They're always been a problem. They're not biodegradable. They tend to reach a 90-degree turn and then clog."

REINHARD, after clearing several local blockages (twice in the same line), surmised the problem may also be compounded with the manner in which the diapers are disposed. He said it appeared the parents were saving several diapers and then flushing them all at once.

Knight explained what doesn't happen with the plastic covered diapers. "We're not very happy with them. You see, the plastic has a very high cellulose content. This makes them not very biodegradable. They will break down, but not right away. This is primarily a local problem. Our pipes are much bigger than the municipalities use, so the diapers don't clog them up."

The MSD pipes also have screens of varying gauges to filter out larger items that might cause problems. Knight said they have a machine similar to a garbage grinder which effectively reduces most things to a manageable size.

"We can always expect to find unusual things in the sewers. People even put old mattresses down manholes. If there's something they want to get rid of, they just put it down a manhole. Grocery carts are another headache. Kids steal the carts from parking lots and shove them into streams," he said.

KNIGHT SAID the MSD was considering billing the stores for removing the carts. He said the stores claim insurance on the stolen carts, which are often the older, damaged ones which have to be replaced anyway.

Rolling Meadows' Hennessy was blunt commenting on the sewerage. "I'd just rather not discuss the kinds of other things found in the sewers!"

Knight extended an invitation: "You really should come down to our screening rooms sometime. You'd really be surprised."

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "Here is a letter from Edward B. Stauffer of Cape Coral, Fla. He wants us to show the Mississippi heart hand again in our column."

Oswald: "Let's oblige. The hand was originally dealt on a Mississippi River boat by some crooked gamblers to fleece a man out of all his money on one hand. The game was bridge (the grandfather of contract). In bridge the dealer made trump; all hands were played at the one level; either opponent could double and there were unlimited doubles and redoubles."

Jim: "I see. The victim would make hearts trump. West would double and doubles and redoubles would continue until the penalty for a one trick set would be everything the victim could be expected to pay. Incidentally, why was the hand dealt in hearts, not spades?"

Oswald: "In bridge, hearts was the ranking suit."

Jim: "At contract, South will bid seven hearts and be down seven tricks. There is a funny story about this. Someone stuck this hand in a duplicate game. Top score went to a player who got excited and bid seven no-trump. He was only down six while everyone else went down seven."

Previewing the fall Legislature

Dear legislators:

Another legislative special session begins today. We hope the chaos of the July adjourned session is not repeated.

Today begins the last chance for the 78th General Assembly to retire with an acceptable record. Today is the time to remind you that your accomplishments so far are far from enviable.

Partisan politics killed important legislation during the spring session. Gov. Daniel Walker's vetoes added to the list of needed bills pointed for a legislative graveyard.

Today should begin examination of three desperately-needed bills:

- Regional mass transit;
- Ethics;
- A state board of elections.

Regional mass transit died in bickering over financing and control of a transportation authority last spring. Compromise among Walker, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and House Speaker W. Robert Blair is necessary. But we oppose a proposal that would allow outlying counties referendum right to join or avoid RTA membership.

Referenda in five counties could delay RTA planning for years. Referenda would waste taxpayer dollars. Referenda are a method of passing the buck by legislators elected to lead.

An RTA that does not include the entire six-county area adds additional complications and has little chance of success. A key to a successful RTA is guaranteed and improved service to Chicago suburban areas.

The first chance at mass transit consideration will be scrutiny of Walker's sales tax reduction veto. Blair has proposed to cut the state sales tax from 4 cents to 3.5 cents per dollar. Walker proposes, as an alternate, a $10 per resident tax rebate.

Blair's reduction is no cut in the metropolitan area. Although the sales tax would drop here, the House speaker plans to finance the RTA with a new half-cent tax.

"The trouble with the Blair plan is that it gives with one hand and takes away with the other," Walker has said. But the trouble with the Walker plan is that the governor wants to look good to residents by returning taxes and has tied RTA to questionable profits from an unpassed state lottery proposal.

A second key veto decision involves the state board of elections bill. Despite a mandate from the 1970 state constitution, Republicans and Democrats have procrastinated over makeup of an election board for two years.

We find that the bill's tie-breaking proposal — drawing one of the four appointed board member's names from a hat and eliminating that vote — makes no sense.

Ethics legislation will be a special session topic that members can use for "cube chipping" — an

COLUMNIST'S NOTE: Steve Brown is the Herald's Des Plaines reporter who covered the murder of Frank Teruggi Jr. in Chile. As Brown has covered the story with persistence and determination since Teruggi was first feared missing, it's fair that he should add a disturbing note to the story — in his own words:

The final chapter in the story of Frank Teruggi Jr., the young man from Des Plaines who died in Chile last month, will be told this week.

A quiet funeral mass will be held in St. Mary's Church and Frank's family and friends will gather to pay their final respects.

But the U.S. State Department has already written a footnote. A cruel and heartless mark has been left on the whole matter by our officials in Washington.

After failing to protect an American citizen in a foreign nation which was in the throes of massive political upheaval, the State Department, either through bureaucratic bungling or disinterest, allowed the young man's body to lie in a Santiago morgue for nearly two weeks.

The State Department dragged the emotions of the Teruggi family through peaks and valleys as they dangled over learning the sad news that the young man had been killed.

As if this was not enough the huge agency of so-called diplomats and statesmen offered a final cruel slap to the Teruggi family and indirectly to all Americans.

When the family tried to arrange to return their son's body from Chile, an official in the State Department curtly told them there would be an $850 shipping fee.

Tom Wellman's column

A death in Chile

Frank Teruggi Jr.

The family said they should be willing to pay the $850 to bring their son home.

But then the government official also told them he would need the money in advance before the necessary arrangements could be made to have the body returned.

Certainly it can be argued that the death of Frank Teruggi Jr. was just one small incident in the massive international scheme of things. Certainly it cannot be expected of the State Department or its embassies to be sympathetic to the plight of one man or his family.

One would like to think, however, that there might be a brief moment of kindness shown to a family which, during a time of shock and sorrow, finds itself caught in the midst of a bewildering international incident.

It is outrageous to think that the government would be so crass as to demand $850 in advance to have Frank Teruggi's body returned for a local funeral. It also seems that the government, which spends billions of dollars each year on many fanciful projects, could not bear the cost of returning one body from Chile.

At the least, the State Department could have waited until the family had recovered from the death of their son before presenting the $850 bill.

It may be a small incident in the eyes of the diplomats who are in charge of directing the affairs of the United States throughout the world, but to a family in Des Plaines, Illinois, the death of Frank Teruggi, and the manner in which it was handled, was no small thing.

U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th, has demanded a full and immediate investigation. Perhaps American policy in the handling of a death in a foreign country can be changed.

For Frank Teruggi Jr. and his family, the changes will come far too late.

AN AFTERWORD: A check with officials in Washington confirmed the fact the State Department has no appropriated funds to pay for the shipment of the bodies of civilians back to this country. Military casualties are, of course, shipped at the expense of the government.

An official in U.S. Senator Charles Percy's office, when asked about the procedure, said that it did seem like a callous procedure.

But, then, it might be argued by the State Department that Frank Teruggi Jr. shouldn't have gone and gotten himself killed. After all, he was only an American citizen.

Our readers write

'Can't protect everyone'

In your October 9 editorial, questions were raised wondering how come our embassy made various mistakes during Chile's takeover.

It is impossible to know what will happen in any revolution, so how can our diplomatic corps protect all American citizens in foreign countries?

I believe the writers of this article have never been in a coup d'etat, because there is no possible way something of this nature could happen without violence involving innocent people.

Riots like we had in the past do not even have one per cent of the people involved in a political move overthrowing an existing government; yet innocent people were killed.

During the first few days or few weeks (according to resistance given) the confusion is terrible and the shooting, looting, murdering plus mass arrests are common.

Fourteen years ago, Cuba had a revolution where thousands of guilty and innocent people were arrested and piled up like cattle in the sports stadium "Palacio de los Deportes." El Morro and La Cabana fortresses, as well as in the island of Pines jail and others. During these few weeks the firing squads were busy ending hundreds of astonished individuals. Others were killed or wounded in street shootings, and the normal casualties from the government and revolutionary combat forces.

Later, terrorism waves swept Venezuela, where many innocent civilians were killed, including a large number of American personnel. In Brazil and Argentina extremist groups have caused many injuries and death to American citizens.

Also, questions are asked why the State Department does not know the whereabouts of American innocents involved in Chile or protect them? For example, our embassies do not have room to hold all American citizens, nor are they always safe. Tonight's radio news told of an air raid in the Middle East where a large city was the target for bombing, by mistake, some embassies were hit. What about during various air attacks in North Viet Nam where our planes bombed strategic areas and by mistake some embassies were hit?

Gentlemen, it is tragic indeed when innocent people pay with their lives in cases like above mentioned, in the States or overseas, but do not blame our diplomatic corps. We cannot protect our own lives here and leaders like Kennedy, Wallace, Dr. King, etc. are vivid examples, and we still ask ourselves; who killed or tried to assassinate them?

Can we do the impossible and protect every citizen? I am sure we all want it and our federal and local government are trying to do so. But overseas, unfortunately, there is no way.

A. O. Garcia
Arlington Heights

'Impersonal village'

It is evident that Arlington Heights is more impersonal, and its government is further removed from contact with and knowledge of its people and real estate, than most people realize.

You recently reported that the "Arlington Heights Plan Commission has approved plans for the first architectural mixed housing development in the village," i.e., the development by Simon-Reg Group at Palatine Road and Rte. 53. It is to have a mixture of condominiums, townhouses and single family homes.

The Arlington Heights village planner has "termed the project 'unique for the Northwest suburbs.'"

As a resident of Regent Park in Arlington Heights, I would point out that ours is a planned unit development, which was completed over five years ago, and has the same type of condominium, townhouse and single family home mixture, with lake, swimming pool, tennis courts and other amenities, as the Simon-Reg Group proposed.

Actually, it should not come as a surprise that the local village planner and others do not know we exist, since the police department and snow removal crews rarely seem to be able to locate us and we have, for reasons known only to city planning types, been placed in the Mount Prospect Park District even though we are in Arlington Heights and are much closer to Arlington Heights Park District facilities.

Perhaps we should have an open house in our area for village officials to acquaint them with our existence and thereby with the source of a portion of their salaries.

Value beyond money

Last year, December 22, 1972, I rushed down to the post office to mail my aunt a Christmas gift.

She was a very special aunt. She had raised me and I loved her dearly. Unfortunately, the package never arrived at its destination. Now my aunt will never receive another Christmas gift, because she died this week.

I would like to think the package was lost, but due to the return address, I'm inclined to believe it was stolen.

I just hope that the individual who received it and never bothered to return it to the sender enjoyed it, because my aunt, Mrs. Pinkie Paul, never did.

The value of it meant more than the money.

'Detente can't guarantee peace'

by STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has warned several times during the past three weeks that the Soviet-American detente is not a lasting guarantee of peace but simply a formula for "crisis management."

He clearly fears that Americans and others will assume that the 1972 Moscow summit agreement on "principles" and subsequent pacts provide some form of automatic guarantee against big power conflict.

"There is a great tendency to assume," Kissinger said at a New York news conference Sept. 26, "that everything that has been achieved is now automatically permanent and can be drawn upon as if its capital were inexhaustible."

This obviously is not true, Kissinger added, since the ability of the two superpowers to live at peace and avoid a nuclear holocaust depends upon the willingness of both to adhere to the agreed principles.

The cold war can be revived, he has said, by international conflicts involving other countries which threaten to bring Russia and the United States into direct confrontation. Or it can come from pursuing erroneous assumptions that an agreement on "principles" in the international arena gives either party the right to insist upon agreement on issues which are of domestic concern to only one of the parties.

An example of the first peril is clear in the latest Arab-Israeli conflict, in which the Arabs use Soviet-supplied weapons and enjoy Moscow's moral and propaganda support and Israel gets her weapons and sympathy from Washington.

Kissinger said early this week that "renewed conflict in the Middle East reminds us that international stability is always precarious and never to be taken for granted."

The other type of danger in "detente" Kissinger has cited involved efforts by U.S. congressmen to block approval of the Soviet-American trade agreement — which gives the Kremlin normal trading rights for the first time since 1951 — unless the Soviet Union changes its emigration laws.

The aim is to make Russia remove from the books regulations imposing an exit tax on Soviet citizens, principally Jews, who want to leave the country.

Kissinger, pointing out that Moscow has ceased collecting the tax anyway, asks: "Should we now tie demands which were never raised during negotiations to agreements that have already been concluded?"

"The demand that Moscow modify its domestic policy as a precondition" for a trade agreement or detente was never made during negotiations, Kissinger said last Monday at a convention of scholars. Raising it now, he said, poses questions about "our entire bilateral relationship."

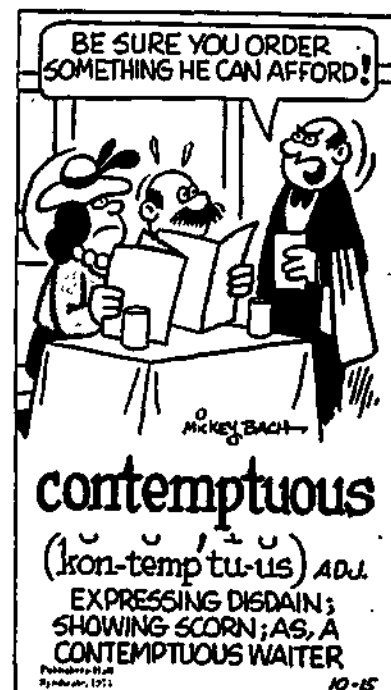

Kissinger said that Soviet-American detente "cannot survive irresponsibility in any area," and made it clear that this included the Middle East, the trade agreement and all the other items on the long agenda for ending the cold war.

You better bra-lieve it

It's no ordinary brassiere

by KAREN THOMPSON

She arrived in the newsroom to the thunder of typewriters and the ringing of telephones, but it all came to an instantaneous halt, and all heads turned left when from her tote bag she pulled a sample of her new-to-the-area home business — a 64H brassiere. The editorial chamber was up for grabs.

Several days later I followed up the news tip on her booming business. The scene was the living room of Mrs. Florence Skowron, Mount Prospect. The time was early evening. Guests ranged from 70-year-old grandma to a teenager, with all ages and sizes in the middle.

The product was not the ordinary home party fare — Tupperware food keepers or Bee Line fashions — but the Symbra'ette bra.

As the skeptical, bra-beaten women arrived, Mrs. Skowron was busy setting her polyethylene models — complete with inside lights to make them glow. Her husband, who calls himself the official consultant, disappeared to the back porch.

THE "WOMAN TO woman" method of purchasing a bra in the privacy of a home began. With her visual aids and energetic personality, Mrs. Skowron made her sales pitch to "women searching for bra comfort, proper fit and attractive styling."

The secret is the uniband. Designed by Dr. Sonia Garutso of Los Angeles and patented by Carl Simpson, president of the company, based in Scotts Valley, Calif., Symbra'ette bras function through dual undercupping which "makes it possible to keep midriff and underarm flesh in its natural position, increasing bust fullness and giving a more flattering appearance," Mrs. Skowron, the mother of two teenagers, explained.

"The bra, worn by the late Marilyn Monroe and other starlets, repostures a woman's figure, without the use of wires, pads or artificial aids, providing it with an uplift, eliminating strap strain and even adding two or three inches up front," she said. "It seems to find breast tissue you didn't know you had and coax it back where it belongs."

"STORE BOUGHT" bras usually come in about a dozen sizes and in cup sizes ranging between AA and D. This is where Symbra'ette stands out. Mrs. Skowron boasts that her bras are available in more than 140 sizes and 16 proportioned cup sizes from AA to M.

Following the short presentation comes the touchy part of the party — the fitting. Everybody gets a turn in the bedroom under the expert care of Mrs. Skowron.

How do you tell if your bra fits well? According to Mrs. Skowron, "When the bust is hanging and not properly supported the blood flow is cut off. Blood vessels and glands should be free-flowing." Cooper's Droop is the common term for stretched ligaments caused by a lack of support.

A puffiness on top of the bra means the bra cup is too small. Bulges below the bra signal that there are too many inches in the bra band. A proper fit necessitates an exact rib cage measurement.

IF THE BACK of the bra rides up, the straps are too tight. Support should not come from the straps, but from the design and structure of the bra, said the bra lady.

Mrs. Skowron prides herself on the education women get at her bra parties. "Even if every woman doesn't buy a bra from me, at least she knows what to look for when she does buy one," she said.

And eventually women are faced with the choice. Despite the rumor that women aren't wearing bras anymore, American women last year spent one and a quarter billion dollars on brassieres.

"This uniquely designed bra will accentuate your positive and eliminate your negative" is how Florence describes her line.

THE ERA OF the flat-chested look seems cons away as the women at the party "oh" and "ah" at the results of a better bra.

"The bigger gals feel so comfortable and trim they don't want to take it off," said Mrs. Skowron. "And the tiny-bosom girls can't believe they have that much."

The testimonials abound. Customers claim better posture and less back strain, better fit in clothes and one songstress in the party I attended heralded the bra for helping her breath control. I tried it myself and liked it.

As Mrs. Skowron said when I was getting into my car to drive home, "You always learn something at a bra party."

(Mrs. Skowron may be contacted for further information at 255-8534.)

YES, THERE ARE women that big, and Florence Skowron, a consultant for the Symbra'ette company, is prepared to fit them. She has been giving bra parties for the past year providing women an education in bra comfort, proper fit and styling.

Fashion

by Karen

"Victim of fashion, she falls off shoes."

Dressed fit to kill is no longer a joke, according to safety experts. Winter's fashion trends have been sized up and the results look good for the medical profession but bad for the wearers.

Linda Omohundro of Huntington, W. Va., was the victim of high fashion. She fell off her shoes. While breaking in a pair of stylish platform shoes — four-inch soles, and seven-inch heels — she took a tumble and tore a ligament in her ankle. Now she's hobbling on crutches.

According to Linda, the first thing her doctor asked her was, "What kind of shoes were you wearing, those elevators?" Her doctor warned her she was lucky she hadn't been hurt any worse. A few days before he had treated a girl who broke three bones in her foot.

SO MUCH FOR shoes, but there are other fashion hazards. Consider scarves, featured as accessories for dresses, suits and coats, and not for women only. You may say they're handsome and warm, but the National Safety Council labels them "potential killers."

According to a study in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA), nearly half of the persons in accidents involved with wearing scarves were fatalities. All the accidents occurred in the winter when scarves got tangled in machinery. Eleven of the victims were females between the ages of 10 and 30.

We can't forget Isadora Duncan, the dance revolutionary, who was strangled in the 1920s when her long scarf became tangled in the rear wheel of the open automobile in which she was riding.

Midt and maxicoats and capes seem somehow very unfashionable when being juggled along with packages through a revolving door. They're also prone to catch on escalators, elevators and vehicle doors.

A WOMAN IN Mexico City, reports the safety council, was killed when her shawl caught in the door of a bus as the vehicle pulled away.

How many times have you embarrassed yourself by getting a foot caught in your cuffed pants or tripped on a long skirt?

The safety council offers these suggestions about selection of clothing in the dangerous age. They may not be pretty, but they could save your life.

— "Platform soles, high heels and clogs don't mix with snow and ice. Wear medium or low-heeled boots with a non-skid sole when it's slippery underfoot."

— Winter driving requires precise handling control of the car. If you wear mittens to drive, you're endangering yourself and others. Driving gloves with fingers and leather palms are recommended.

— HEADGEAR should not block hearing or sight.

— Cold weather brings a tragic increase in flammable fabrics burn cases, especially among children and the elderly. Buy flame retardant sleepwear and warn family members about the dangers of heaters, fireplaces and stoves."

The tour that told

As anybody involved in volunteer work knows, fund raising is a tough job. In my experience, I have found this is especially true for PTAs. After all one can only take so many fun fairs, bake sales and hot dog days.

However, creative money-making ideas sometimes can be generated in unexpected circumstances. The trick, of course, is to recognize one when you see one.

My best friend, next-door neighbor and our PTA council delegate, Alice Flaxton, did just that one day at a session when six of us were stapling school calendars together. Everyone was commenting on what dull work the job was.

"Maybe it is dull," one woman said, "but it sure beats waxing floors."

"Or folding laundry," someone else added.

THE FIRST LADY spoke again, a bit wistfully. "My house is such an eternal disaster area that I have always been in complete wonder whenever I have gone through homes on tours for charity fund-raising. The homes are so immaculate that I can't imagine the people who live in them ever DO anything!"

This remark reduced the group to a thoughtful silence.

Suddenly Alice broke it. "That's it! That's it!"

"That's what, Alice?" I asked.

"A perfect way to raise some money. We can find the five or six most involved women in the area and put their homes on display."

Our PTA did. The house tour was an enormous success. We had talked our friends into showing their homes on a typical Monday. To each person who bought a ticket for the tour, we gave a descriptive brochure, pointing out the unique features in each home. Volunteer hostesses were asked to point out these highlights to the tourists. We didn't want them to miss spotting the baby sock that had been on the telephone stand for five years, articles that had been waiting on the stairs to be carried up since the house was built and a generation's worth of mending.

I WORKED IN one of the homes — the last on the tour. It belonged to the president of a large social organization. I took great delight in telling the people to be sure to observe the tear in the living room curtains where the dog tries to attack the mailman every day. I explained that the lady of the house intends, one of these days, to put up the different style of curtain that she bought in 1967.

As I mentioned, the tour was a lot of fun, made some money and was a gratifying experience. But the very best moment was when I overheard a woman say to her friend as they left the house I tended, "Boy! You can sure tell SHE'S the club president!"

Some of us are realists some of the time.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I was especially interested in your article on cauliflower. I have long wished I could do something to promote the use of the stem which, in packaging cauliflower, is discarded, and which, in my opinion, is almost tastier than the flowerets. I peel the stem of its tough outer covering and slice into thin sticks (like celery or carrots). Try it with salt — it's delicious. It is deplorable to think of the tons of goodness being thrown into the packers' garbage cans.

I have written to the Cauliflower Growers about this with the suggestion that they package the stems separately, and that they conduct a minicampaign with lady demonstrators in the supermarkets to introduce the idea, using sample tables of prepared cauliflower-stem sticks for the public to try — but I received no answer. I hope your column with its coverage can help. — Ruth Lane

I hope so, too. Bravos to you for your spunk. I'm sure the cauliflower stems would appeal to me, too, but, as you well know, the cauliflower sold is devoid of any bit of stem.

Dear Dorothy: Helping my daughter-in-law with dinner, I asked for her colander. She didn't have one; planned on getting one, but hadn't gotten to it. Looking for a large sieve, I ran across two of her wedding shower presents — a wire salad basket and steaming basket. Both made ideal colanders. While I don't have a salad basket myself, I sure couldn't keep house without my little steamer, especially for thawing frozen bread or rolls. — Mrs. Thomas Schmidt

Dear Dorothy: I have a solution that is not dangerous for ridding one's premises of ants. Just place cucumber peelings around the area where they've been seen and leave until the peelings dry up. I know it works because I've tried it. — Lillie P. LaRue

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Nursing homes seek volunteers

The Des Plaines Home and the Grace-land Home in Des Plaines are seeking persons who would like to volunteer time to work with the elderly.

Administrator Carol Fruehe has been taking these residents on rides in the home station wagon to such places as Wilmette Harbor, Deer Grove, the Fox River, Lake Michigan and over picturesque country roads. "Many of them thought they would never see Lake Michigan again," she said. The residents enjoy walks and just having someone to talk to. Mrs. Fruehe added. Miss Sorenson, activities director can be called at 827-6612 by anyone interested in volunteering.

Will Elk Grove, Hersey meet in another showdown?

Grenadiers handle Falcons

by PAUL LOGAN

It was a night for tobacco chewers. Don Schnake found that out after a pack of soggy matches wouldn't perform for him. Although his clothes were soaked from the deluge, the spirits of Elk Grove's head football coach weren't dampened.

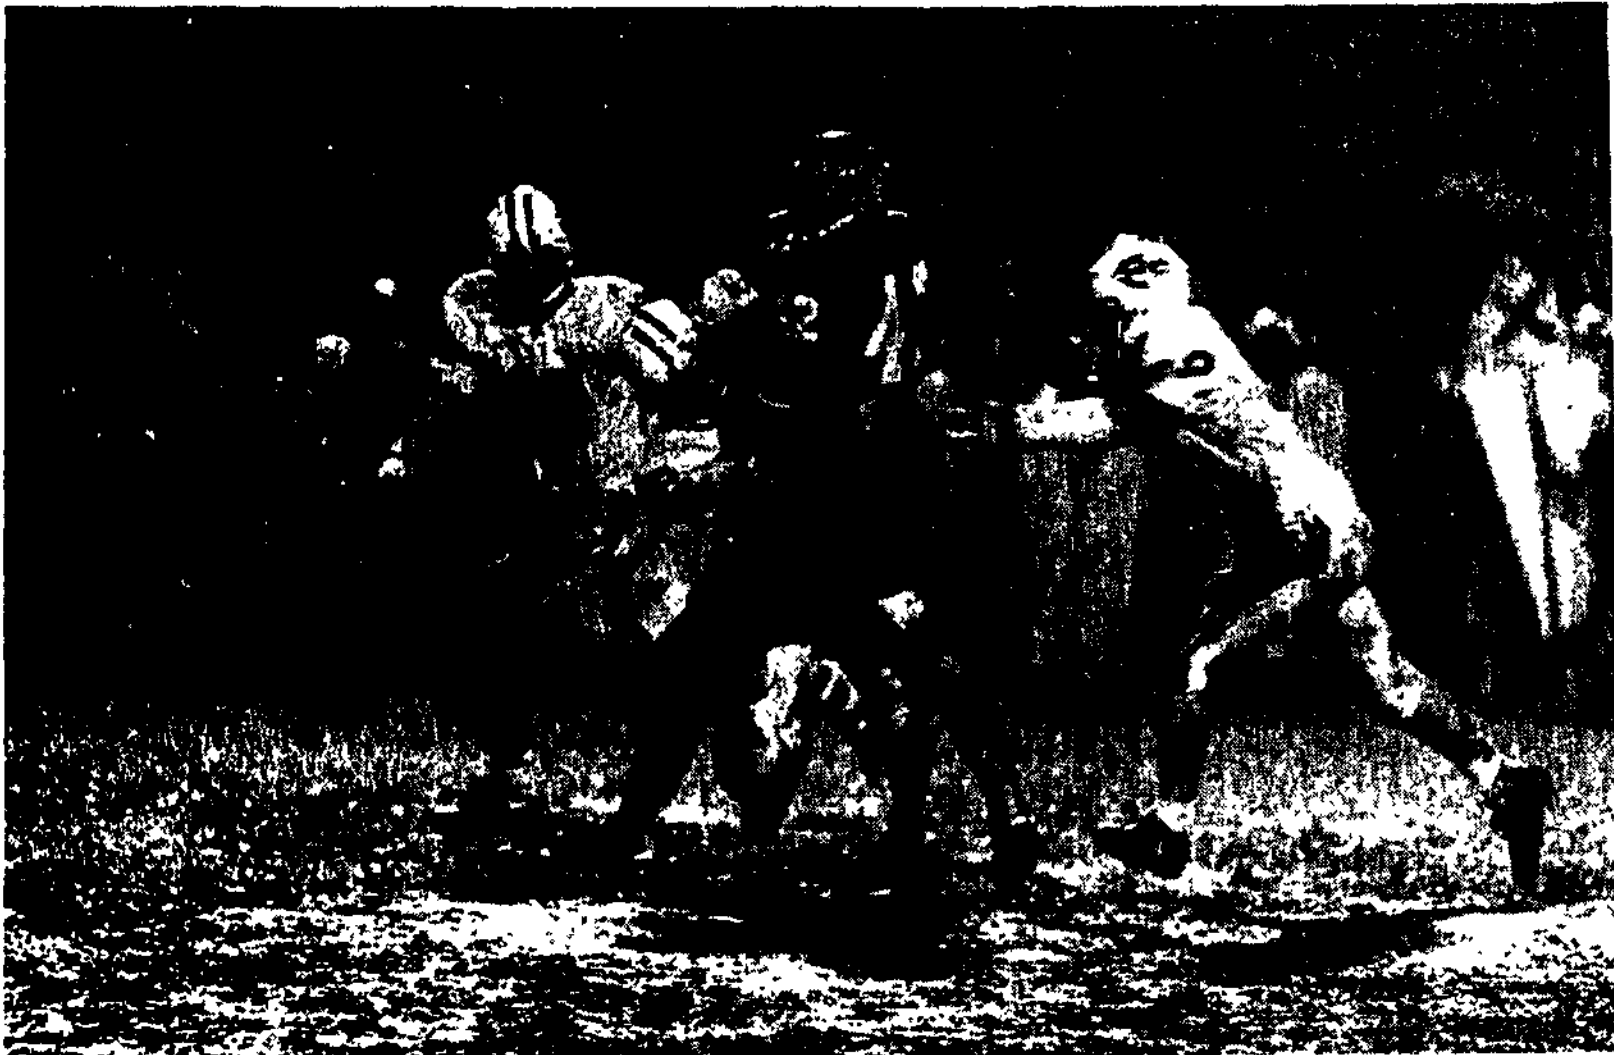

"Suddenly it's a beautiful night," said Schnake. And why not. The rain had stopped, some of the large Forest View Homecoming crowd had left with wet smiles and the Elk Grove team was mounting its bus with the biggest victory of the season Friday night, 14-6.

While some coaches spent their conference hour watching the baseball playoffs on TV last week, Schnake used his free time to work with his ball carriers. After one such workout, he muttered something about "working on the little things because it pays off with bigger things."

Now that "overtime" was showing dividends:

- Halfback Don Wendley, the do-it-all guy on the team, had accounted for the two touchdowns on a short pass reception, a record-tying 91-yard run and 116 yards rushing.

- Quarterback Jim Hammers had just played his greatest first half in his brief varsity career with six of eight passes for 63 timely yards and some nifty fakes and handoffs.

by JIM COOK

Sticks and stones may break their bones, but a little monsoon that nearly drowned its Homecoming Friday couldn't prevent Hersey from "swamping" Fremd, 13-7, in a battle of Mid-Suburban League unbeaten.

The deluge began just as the clubs retreated to their dressing rooms at the intermission and appeared to be just what the Viking doctors ordered.

Fremd, whose bread and butter is grinding out yardage on the ground, played Hersey better than even on a dry field in the first half and protected a 7-6 advantage when the clouds unzipped and released steady torrents of rain.

"Sure I was worried when we came out and saw it coming down," Hersey coach Joe Gilwa recalled. "We don't mind it if it rains when we're winning by 20 points, but when you're behind, it really makes it tough."

The Huskies, as opposed to the Vikings, are pass-oriented. Their offense is generated around the throwing arm of all-state candidate Mark Zakula. But the rain washed out Hersey's passing game. Zakula threw only once in the second half as compared to the 11 he launched in the first two periods.

Ironically, his only attempt over the final 24 minutes in the dreaching downpour is the one they'll always remember.

Stirring comeback falls short; St. Viator suffers first setback

by LARRY EVERHART

Somehow it doesn't seem fair to lose after coming from behind for two touchdowns in a driving rainstorm in the second half, holding the opposition without a first down for that entire half, outdoling them by 28 yards and three first downs for the game and by 100-8 in second-half yards.

But that was exactly the fate of St. Viator Friday night when the Lions finally took their first loss in five games, 20-19 to Holy Cross, which remained unbeaten at 4-0-1.

The Lions can't yet complain about fates being against them, since they've pulled off some miracles themselves this season. It was their turn to experience heartbreak after simply being too generous in the first half.

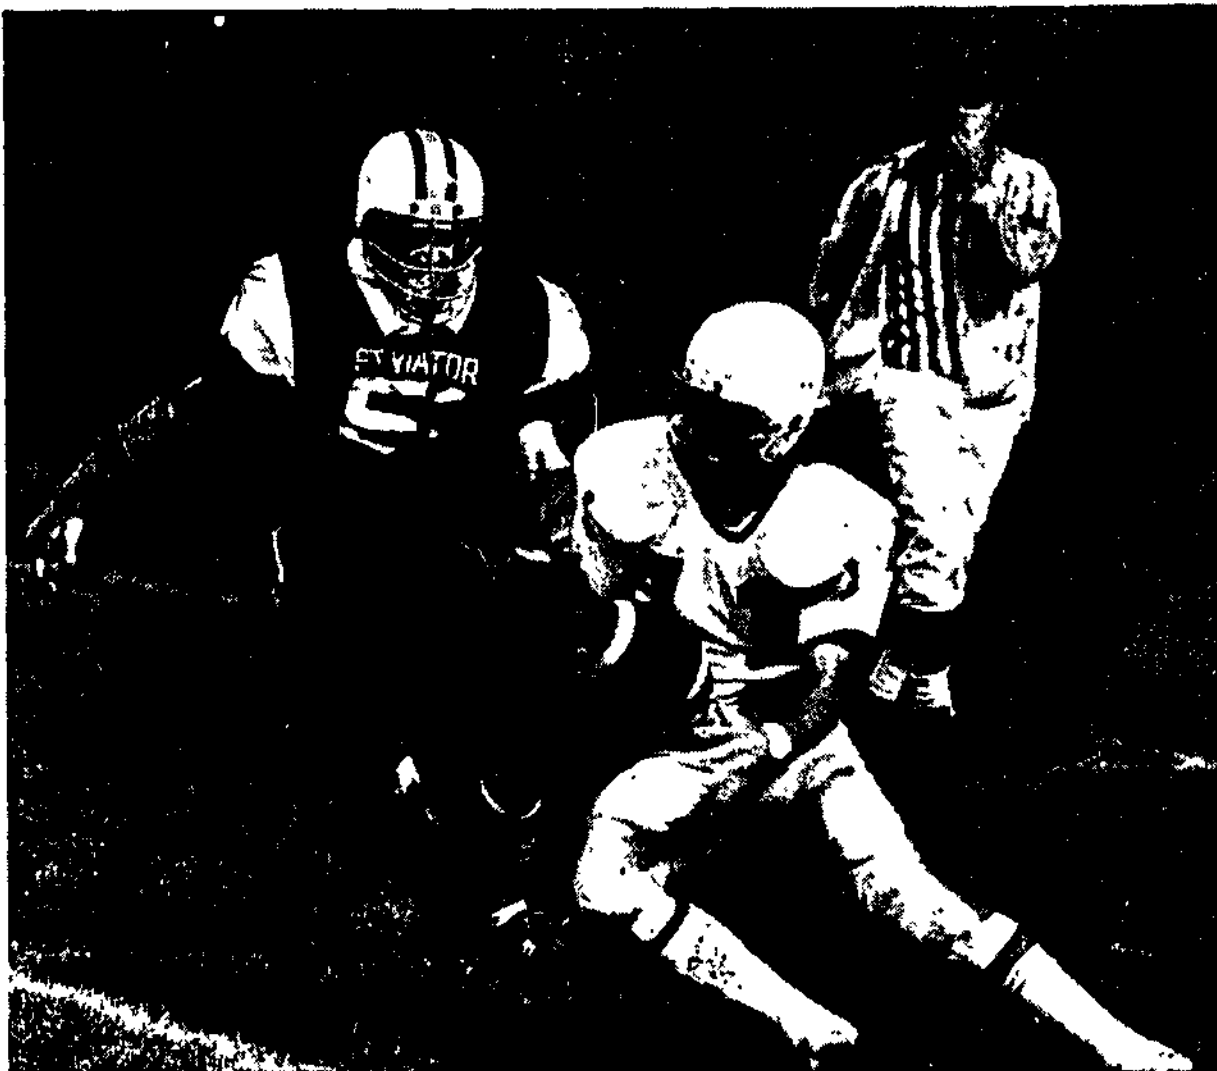

"We did a magnificent job in the second half, but we made a few defensive mistakes in the first half that killed us," summed up Lion coach Jim Lyne.

After being down 20-7 at halftime on three straight Holy Cross touchdowns, St. Viator scored in the third quarter. Lyne made a decision which might have surprised some — to go for a two-point conversion even with an excellent kicker in Steve Bobowski.

That try and another after the Lions' final touchdown with 28 seconds left both fell short. Lyne explained later, "I didn't want to take a chance on a fumbled snap (in the pouring rain) on a kick. I felt all along it would be a 21-20 game and that we could make one out of two shots at a two-point conversion rather than two kicks."

Some heroes by Bobowski and Rick O'Donnell went for naught. Bobowski gained 73 yards on 13 carries, many on extremely treacherous turf. O'Donnell, who is having a standout season, turned in another hang-up performance both of-

Only a minute had ticked off the scoreboard in the third period when a fumble in the Viking backfield was buried under the body of Huskie Eric Strutz at the Fremd 27.

The impromptu theme of Hersey's Homecoming — when in doubt, go to Krause — worked in the first quarter when Mark, the Huskies' bruising fullback, blasted home from one yard away to put Hersey on top, 6-0.

Krause got the call on two off-tackle attempts, but Fremd's unyielding defense forced Hersey into a fourth and three at the 20.

"We figured they'd be looking for either Krause or (Jim) Spicuzza up the middle," 16-year-old Zakula said, his uniform soaked through with moisture.

"So we called a screen to the right. The ball was really slippery, but the officials did a good job of trying to keep it dry. We haven't practiced that much in the rain, but I thought I could at least complete a short screen pass."

As Fremd's interior line formed an unpenetrating wall at the line of scrimmage, Krause fielded Zakula's low pitch in the right flat and scampered 20 yards unimpeded for the decisive score.

Neither team could solve the generously irrigated field over the last 21 minutes although Hersey was foiled first by a fumble and finally by the game-ending horn inside the Viking 10.

Fremd's first fumble of the evening set up the Huskies' opening score. Taking over at the Viking 33, Zakula found Spicuzza twice on passes of 11 and nine yards — the seven-play drive capped by Krause's one-yard dive.

The Vikings, behind the deceptive running of backs Keith Cumminskey and Tom Bullen, countered in the closing minutes

Herald sports coverage wins top award in state

The Herald sports coverage has been judged best in the state of Illinois for the third time in the past four years.

That announcement was made Friday in Springfield at the 103rd annual Illinois Press Association convention. Executive Editor Ken Knox accepted the award.

The Herald was in competition with daily newspapers throughout Illinois and also won the major state sports award in 1970 and 1971, finishing as runner-up in 1972.

The Herald sports section also has been honored as the best in Northern Illinois for three of the past four years, winning in 1969, 1971, and 1972. No announcement has been made on the 1973 competition, which is judged by the Northern Illinois University Journalism Department.

Schaumburg rolls along in South

by ART MUGALIAN

Schaumburg is a football town. All of a sudden, almost overnight, as quick as you can say Vice President Ford, Schaumburg has become a pigskin capital.

The Schaumburg Saxons are getting a lot of attention lately because they've won three conference clashes in a row, including a rousing 34-0 romp over Prospect in the mud on Saturday.

Coach Bob Ferguson's Saxons again combined a multi-talented offense with an air-tight defense as they chalked up their highest point total and their first shutout of the season.

The Knights of coach Don Williams lost their fourth straight Mid-Suburban League contest, and, unlike last week's near-miss against rough Elk Grove, they couldn't move the ball Saturday.

The Saxons, playing for a large Homecoming crowd, held Prospect to six first downs, and only 46 total yards. They recovered two Prospect fumbles and picked off five Knight forward passes, including two each by Mike Marx and Scott Mielke. Co-captain Joe Calabria led the rugged defense in limiting their opponents to 18 yards on the ground all day.

The Saxons had many offensive standouts, among them quarterback Dave Hill, who completed 14 of 26 passes for 170 yards, and halfbacks Wayne Morgan and Rich Godinez, the latter a recent Prospect transfer.

The first time Schaumburg had the ball, Hill drove them 74 yards in ten plays for a 6-0 lead. He passed twice to Godinez and handed off to fullback Tom Martino for a 17-yd. gain. Morgan plunged in from the one for the score.

Hill received fine pass protection from his front line, especially during a TD drive mid-way through the second period. Hitting his backs frequently, the Saxon field general moved the ball to the Knight 16, and from there he optioned his way into the end zone for a 12-0 lead. Then he passed for a 2-point conversion to Morgan.

The 14-0 halftime score didn't adequately reflect Prospect's dilemma. They managed only one yard in the first 24 minutes of play. Coach Williams used Mike Quade and Rich Lessner at quarterback in the first half and tried Tom Bates in the second, but nothing seemed to work.

Morgan stunned the crowd with a 52-yard punt return early in the second half and it seemed to seal Prospect's fate. The little senior fielded the ball on one bounce and streaked down the east side line, breaking a couple of tackles inside the 20.

When defensive back Marx intercepted a Lessner pass and returned it to the Knight 33, the Saxons seized it as another TD opportunity. On the sixth play from scrimmage, Hill pitched to Godinez on the option for an eight-yard score. Roger Biver kicked the point and it was 27-0.

Bates' first pass for the Knights was Meadows blanks Wheeling; scores 16 in final period

by DON FRISKE

For three quarters and part of a fourth, neither Rolling Meadows nor Wheeling could push across a score in the Wildcats' homecoming game last Friday night.

Finally, at 7:52 in the fourth quarter, Mustang back Pat Geegan slipped across the Wildcat goal line from two yards out to give the Mustangs a 6-0 lead.

Another touchdown and two conversions gave the Mustangs a 16-0 win, but the scores came too late to dampen the homecoming crowd.

Rain took care of all the dampening that had to be done and then some. Just as the first half was coming to a close, the small leak in the sky that had caused some showers early in the game broke open and heavy rain fell on the field until the second half was coming to a close.

When the field was dry in the first half, neither team could score.

The Wildcats, for awhile, looked like they were going to snap their losing streak, which has now reached 12 straight.

Four of the six times they had the ball in the first half they were within Mustang territory.

The second time they owned the ball, the Wildcats got down to the Mustang 18 yard line with a first down. A 15-yard holding penalty and an interception, however, ended that rally.

The Wildcats ran 33 plays for 120 yards in the first half as compared to the Mustangs' 25 plays for 52 yards. The Wildcats also had eight first downs in the first half while the Mustangs could only muster two, the first one coming at 8:34 in the second quarter.

No even though zeroes dominated the scoreboards, the Wildcats dominated the play on the field in the first half.

The second half was an entirely different story, though, as the Mustangs racked up 37 offensive plays, leaving only 17 for the Wildcats.

The main bulk of this offensive running was done by Geegan, who gained 142 total yards in 28 carries for the Mustangs.

After the opening kickoff of the second half, the Mustangs owned the ball on their own 20 yard line. After 18 plays they had gotten it down to the Wildcat one yard line, but failed to score.

The Wildcat offense came in and after three plays lost the wgt football on a fumble.

Again, the Mustangs got the ball within the Wildcat five yard line and again the Wildcat defense wouldn't let them score.

At this point, third quarter time had run out and still neither team had scored.

The Mustangs scored the only touchdown they needed at 7:52 in the final period, with the help of their only pass completion of the night. After a 15-yard holding penalty had set them back to the Wildcat 30 yard line, quarterback Steve Brettle connected with Gary Grunwald for an 18-yard pass that got them back to the 12 yard line.

FORMER FRIEND A FOE. Schaumburg's Rich Godinez (26), who played last year at Prospect High School, came back to haunt his former teammates Saturday afternoon as the Saxons rolled up an impressive 34-0 victory. Godinez, trying to shake away from a Knight defender here, scored two touchdowns in Schaumburg's third league win. He also caught six passes. (Photo by Larry Cameron)

Hawk runners win again

Two things are becoming commonplace for Harper's cross country team — extending its long dual-meet winning streak and victories by Mike DeLaBruere, often while setting a new course record.

All of those occurrences happened again in the Hawks' latest duel. They won 21-34 over a fine Oakton team to stretch their streak to 30 straight (the last time they lost a dual meet was Oct. 27, 1970) and DeLaBruere, in winning, broke his own course record at Niles West High School. He ran 20:45.6 for four miles, compared to his 20:54 last year.

The Hawks had the top three places with Tom Fath taking second in 21:17 and John Jones third in 21:28. Jim Simonik was sixth (22:35) and John Bone ninth (24:02).

Even more important than the streak and record, coach Bob Nolan said, was the conference win over a tough team. "Oakton had been 9-0 until this meet," he pointed out, "and now we're 5-0 in the conference."

Harper will host Elgin and DuPage Wednesday afternoon and will be in the DuPage Invitational Saturday.

"The rain didn't affect the outcome of the game. It just changed our game plan," said Mustang coach Angelo Barro.

Geegan, who's been around since the Mustangs opened their program two years ago, scored his second touchdown at 2:46 in the fourth quarter, this time from one yard out. He also ran in both extra-point conversions.

Another original Mustang played well for Barro on defense.

"Mike Anderson did his usual good job for us," said Barro of his defensive captain.

The Mustangs gained 145 second half yards while the Wildcats had only 34. The key to this, according to Barro, was the play of his offensive and defensive lines that came alive in the second half.

Brian Wiebe and Bill Stutzman played on both lines for the Mustangs.

"We knew Wheeling could come out ready to play," said Barro. "When we finally decided in the second half that we had to take the ball game to them in the line, we did alright."

"I'd have to say our lines turned the tide for us," said Barro. If the tide wasn't turned, maybe a few puddles were anyway.

Harper rebounds; smashes Concordia in second half

by DON FRISKE

For the second time this season, the Harper Hawks came from behind after spotting their opponents a 12-0 lead to win the game.

The first time was against Kennedy-King, when they won 27-18.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Hawk offense poured it on Concordia College in the second half to beat them 45-18 in Milwaukee.

With the Hawks behind 12-7 at the half, a 42-yard pass play from Pat Dempsey to Ervin Kimbrough was the only score the Hawks could achieve.

The Hawks took the lead for good in the third quarter on a one-yard run by Marty Williams to take a 14-12 advantage. Hawk fullback Jim Leopardo then scored from two yards out to widen the gap.

After a four-yard run by Steve Frankovic opened the scoring in the final quarter, the same type of plays that had given the Hawks their first two touchdowns were again put to use.

Dempsey again completed a touchdown pass to Kimbrough, this time good for 65 yards. Williams scored again on a 42-yard run this time for his second touchdown of the game.

Hawk placekicker Kevin Wilson, who kicked the one-point conversion on each Hawk touchdown, completed the scoring by booting a three-yard field goal.

The Hawks' record now stands at 3-2.

Golfers await league meet

The stage is now set for the Mid-Suburban League's first fall Conference Meet Tuesday as Forest View, Buffalo Grove and Elk Grove put the finishing touches on the dual-meet season.

The Falcons captured a double verdict with 163 strokes to Buffalo Grove's 172 and Elk Grove's 181. Forest View was headed by Dave Martindale's one-over-par 37, Dan Meier's 42 and a pair of 43's by Ron Homack and Gary Willett.

The Bisons earned a split behind Rick Groessl's 39, Dan Krolack's 40, Mike Saltzman's 45 and Mike Schwerman's 48. The Grenadiers were paced by Mark Christensen's 44, Scott Walker's 45 and identical 46's by Mark Johnson and Mike Kwon.

Forest View finished the campaign at 8-3, Elk Grove at 3-8 and Buffalo Grove at 2-9.

Powerful Wheaton North cruises past Conant, 42-0

Two plays were all Wheaton North really needed Friday night.

That's how long it took them to cover 74 yards and hit paydirt after receiving the opening kickoff against visiting Conant. The quick score triggered a six-touchdown barrage that had the Falcons rolling to a 42-0 conquest in the non-conference outing.

It was a meeting of the winless and the undefeated and both sides kept their streaks intact when it was over. The high-flying Tri-Country entry has now won six in a row this season and 14 straight over a two-year span.

For coach Ralph Losee's Cougars it was setback number five in succession this fall.

"It might sound funny to say our kids played fairly well but this is how I felt about the game," shrugged the Conant helmetsman after it was over. "This was just one fine team we went up against, that's all... they had way too much speed for us to handle."

Conant's defensive secondary, which has been one of the team's few bright spots this season, performed admirably again, intercepting three passes and limiting Wheaton to just 75 aerial yards in 15 attempts.

On the ground it was another matter however. The hosts ramblled for nearly 500 yards, averaging almost 10 a try with Bob Sullivan and Charlie Martin leading the way. Sullivan lumbered for 227 yards and scored two TDs and a pair of two-point conversions while Martin lugged the leather for 131 in just five attempts.

The first Falcon score was on a 25-yard pass from Steve Massman to Skip Morgan. Sullivan set it up with a 49-yard jaunt and then ran the conversion for an 8-0 lead.

It was Sullivan again on a six-yard plunge to make it 14-0 by quarter's end. In period two Massman connected with Pete Flaherty for an eight-yard scoring pass and then Martin got loose on a 47-yard end zone romp. After Massman flipped for the extra point Wheaton took a 28-0 lead away at halftime.

Following intermission North outdid their first quarter blitz by scoring in just one play from scrimmage. It was a 55-yard run by Martin this time. Sullivan rounded out the scoring action with a 15-yard run in the fourth quarter and bulled over for the extra points as well.

If it was any consolation to the Cougars afterwards, they have now gone against five teams this season with a composite mark to date of 21 wins and only six defeats. Not one of Conant's foes thus far has had a losing record.

Spoil Palatine Homecoming, 21-0

Bernhardy runs 95 yards with kickoff; Cards win

by KEITH REINHARD

Between the weather and Arlington, they did a doggone good job of spoiling Palatine's Homecoming football game Friday night.

In the midst of a couple of record-breaking performances — one of the not-so-welcome variety — and the approaching of another standard, the Cardinals built up a healthy halftime lead and then coasted to a 21-0 victory in the waterlogged affair.

It was definitely not one of those run-of-the-mill kind of football games. Fleet-footed Cardinal junior Craig Bernhardy opened the battle with a 95-yard kickoff return to put the hosts in an immediate hole.

By the time the contest ended at nearly 11 p.m., there had been 21 penalties dished out, a dozen fumbles, three pass interceptions and there were a whole lot of soggy football players, coaches and fans.

"We certainly didn't have ideal playing conditions tonight although it didn't seem to matter much to our kids," Card coach Chuck Haines commented afterwards. "They knew they had something to prove and they just went out and did the job."

That job included limiting the hosts to 125 yards worth of total offense, picking off those three passes and recovering a pair of fumbles to pretty much stymie the Pirate attack.

Heading up the Arlington defense was lanky Jeff Cleveland. The versatile 6-4 senior bagged two of the interceptions, raising his season's total to seven and moving within one of a conference record.

Cleveland also recovered a fumble,

Craig Bernhardy

bailed away several other passes and was generally a Pirate nemesis along with defensive backfield mate George Vukovich.

"We put George on the side of their standout receiver (Mike) McCoslin and he did an excellent job for us," Haines recalled. "He made a couple of good saves and pulled in his fourth interception in two weeks."

Vukovich was also busy an offense. He broke loose on one 48-yard scamper for Arlington's second TD and teamed with Bernhardy to account for just about all of the team's 190-yard ground offense.

In the meantime, what the weather, the turnovers and the Card activities didn't inflict upon Palatine's flagging spirits, penalties did. There were nearly 250 yards worth of infractions during the contest and Arv Herstedt's club came in for the brunt of them... a total of 15 for 185 yards to break the old loop mark of 160 suffered by Arlington against Fremd in 1969.

There was also an injury to one of his running backs — Lon Marchel — early in the contest which left the host team calling on speedster Terry Tansy to do nearly all of the Pirate legwork.

Tansy picked up 82 yards all told but the Card's wouldn't let him break off the big one.

When Bernhardy broke off his on the opening play, it eclipsed a conference record shared by Conant's Jim McGraw and Palatine's own former standout Tom Patch for 80-yard kickoff returns back in 1968. Bernhardy cut to the right sidelines and galloped the whole distance in 13 seconds to put his team ahead for good. Don Kamps subsequently converted the first of three extra point kicks and the guests led 7-0.

Vukovich scored shortly after the second period had begun and Cleveland's pickoff had put the Cards in command at their own 43. A run by Scott Biltner moved the ball past midfield and George then cut loose on his 48-yard dash.

Arlington rang up their final tally before halftime. Cleveland's fumble recovery allowed them to set up shop at the 43 and Bernhardy, behind the interference of his quarterback Ward Schell and the Card forward wall, lugged six straight times, hitting paydirt from eight yards out with 0:55 on the clock.

The victory was the fourth in five tries for the Cards this year.

of the first half. Falling in for a surprise faked punt by the Huskies, Fremd took control at the Hersey 18 and unleashed its pair of talented greyhounds.

Bullen ripped off two seven-yard gainers and Cumiskey powered for big yardage up the middle. Viking quarterback Mark Otteman tossed in his only completion of the night — an eight-yarder to Nick Spinozas as Fremd threatened at the 11.

Otteman called a fake to Bullen who was stacked up at the line of scrimmage by the interior of the Hersey defensive line, but the slender senior tucked the ball away and swept the right side for the tying marker. Steve Dwyer's perfect conversion put Fremd on top, 7-6, and then the rains came... and came... and came...

"All we have to do is hand the ball off and we're in business," a dejected Fremd coach Al Hattelliff said. "No, the rain didn't help us. It worked against both teams. They were just a little bit better than we were tonight."

Both teams were considerably below their explosive offensive averages, Hersey winning the total yards battle, 261 to 171.

As Gliwa explained, "After we took the lead, we went to our automatic game plan... slant, slant and slant. Our defense got this one for us—Mark Blix, Paul Martin, Art Hoesterey and the whole interior line."

"We're just happy we survived another Homecoming," he added in reference to the pampering his players got all week from the Hersey Pomberets who carried books, made breakfast and were generally "stave" to the varsity football team all week.

"I'm glad some of the kids remembered we had a football game tonight," he laughed.

Hersey is now in command of the North Division standings with a 4-0 record and is the only team still unbeaten in the Mid-Suburban League. Fremd dropped to 2-1 and into a tie for second.

Intercepted by Mielke at the Prospect 44 and it set up another six-pointer for Schaumburg. Twenty yards in penalties, and a 42-yard pass from Hill to Jeff Boji helped put the ball at the four yard line, and Hill and Godinez worked the option from there. Diver's kick was again successful and it was 34-0.

Morgan gained 52 yards on the ground and 41 more on four receptions. Godinez grabbed six passes for 46 yards and Boji caught three for 70 yards.

Schaumburg's South division record stands at 3-1, putting them in a first-place tie with Elk Grove, whom they must play Nov. 2. Coach Ferguson's Saxons are in an interesting position, and certainly an unexpected one.

Elk Grove clips Falcons

returned it 27 yards to the Grove 47 early in the second quarter.

This turnover helped the Falcons penetrate to the Grove 33 before giving up the ball. The Grenadier defense didn't allow them to move any closer in the first half.

Things might have been different at halftime if holding hadn't been noticed by the officials. Falcon quarterback Ray Nielsen, under a heavy rush, found fullback Ken Holan open. He pulled it in on about the 36, cut across the field and down the Grove sidelines for what looked to be the tying score. When the beautiful play was called back, the Falcons had the ball on their own 40 with time running out.

"I think it hurt," said Lussow. The psychological lift that could have been wasn't there at halftime.

Following several exchanges of the ball in the pouring rain of the second half, the Falcons appeared to have punted the Grove into a mud hole at its own six. Then history repeated itself.

Wendley, who three weeks before broke the MSL record with a run from scrimmage against Wheeling of 94 yards, burst through again. Using his sprinter speed, he put the game out of reach with his dash down the left sidelines.

"It was a called play," said Wendley, who was playing quarterback instead of halfback. "There's a fake to the fullback and then you cut off left tackle. Then there was clear sailing."

"I was just lucky. There was also great blocking by the line tonight."

"He just did one heck of a job," praised Schnake for his talented ball carrier. He added that he thought Hammers "did a fine job" and had a "great passing" performance in the first half.

"We went three quarters without a mistake and then the roof nearly caved in."

A fumble early in the fourth quarter was recovered by Forest View's Brinkman on the Grove eight. Two plays later, Meinsen made a fake handoff and then launched a six-yard pass to Kurt Haland in the end zone.

The Falcons went for two, but Wendley — playing his usual steady game at defensive halfback, too — knocked down the pass. He also intercepted Forest View's last desperation pass.

Of Elk Grove's stingy defense, Schnake wouldn't single anybody out because it was just "an outstanding team effort." Besides Wendley, also starring were Harry Buerger, Gerald Miller, Tom Elsen, Charlie Plermarini, Tom Malinowski, Rich Radz, Leon Montemayor, John Willard, Laspisa and Mike Brandt.

Only once did the Falcons mount a sustained drive deep in Grove territory in the whole game. However, Laspisa recovered a fumble.

The Grove defense held the usually strong Falcon rushing game to just 124 yards with John Kronforst — an outstanding all-state candidate — limited to just 81. Forest View had only 14 yards passing. By comparison, the Grenadiers rolled up 251 total yards.

Lions rally but suffer first loss

O'Donnell looked like an all-stater in the first two minutes and last two minutes of the game. On the opening play he nailed the ball carrier for a loss. Two plays later he recovered a fumble. Then on the Lions' very first play from scrimmage, O'Donnell caught a long pass from Jim Bucaro, eluded two safeties and completed a dazzling 60-yard touchdown play.

Skipping ahead to the final moments, with 1:32 left in the game, O'Donnell blocked a punt which was recovered on the Crusader 30. On third and five, he grabbed a flip to the side from Bucaro and scampered 22 yards to the three. Bernie Borschke rammed in for the score on the next play but was a yard short on the conversion try.

After St. Viator's spectacular opening play, it couldn't do much the rest of the half except for a 38-yard gain on a pitch-out by Joe Littwin.

Holy Cross took over until intermission, first recovering two Lion fumbles in quick succession, then briskly moving 35 yards to tie the game. Quarterback John Morocco scrambled for 30 yards, then passed six yards to Steve Gordon for the TD. Ralph Grande kicked the first of three extra points which would be the margin of victory.

The next time the Crusaders touched the ball very soon after, Pete Athas exploded through the line and outraced everyone 75 yards for a permanent visitors' lead. That was with 2:44 still left in the first quarter.

The final Holy Cross points came with 47 seconds left in the half after a 59-yard, six-play march helped by two Lion penalties. Jim Barr scored from two yards.

St. Viator completely dominated the second half, finally winding up a day late and a dollar short.

After Jeff Smith recovered a fumble on the Holy Cross 20, Bernie Borschke squirmed out of an apparently sure tackle for a 17-yard touchdown midway in the third period.

Rain continued to pelt down and there was just one more first down until the final score with 0:28 left.

Lyne praised his offensive especially. "Bucaro kept everyone calm and picked out his own plays on the sideline (before the last series). The running backs were up to capacity in spite of the rain and the fact that they're all injured."

"And the offensive line did a great job again. I'm very pleased with the job Pat Mahoney does with them." Members are Vic Lammantia, Tim Halas, John Walsli, and Marty Drazba.

Lyne also said his forces were not discouraged. "They know they played a good game. Yes, we're still in it (the conference race) because I don't see how anyone can get through without losing a game."

Village needs only one fire department: Winter

by JOE FIANZ

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter said his department is capable of handling fire protection for the entire village, thus making present coverage by two departments "wasteful."

Winter, a member of a special fire committee, made his remarks at a meeting Thursday night. The committee has been appointed by the village to make recommendations on steps to follow toward the formation of a municipal department. An independent consulting firm several months ago suggested the village form a municipal fire department within two years.

At present, residents north of Checker Road are served by the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District, while the rest of the village is covered by the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection, which employs the Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc.

Two weeks ago several members of the committee said they will probably recommend a referendum to disannex the northern portion of the village from the Long Grove district into the Wheeling district, putting the village under one fire department. Committee members said the recommendation will probably be made by the end of the month.

LONG GROVE Fire Chief Edward Deeke, also a member of the committee, said his district would not oppose a referendum to form a municipal department, but will probably fight any efforts to change from one district to another.

Village officials have said although they would prefer forming a municipal department right away, it is not financially feasible. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said recently it will be at least two years before the village will have enough tax revenues to afford a municipal department.

Trustee Edward Osmon, chairman of the committee, said although the village cannot afford a municipal department at this time, it would still be a good idea to put it under one fire department. He called the switch "a stepping stone to a municipal department."

THE ILLINOIS Rating and Inspection Bureau which evaluates fire departments for insurance companies has said the Wheeling district presently has the manpower and equipment to cover the entire village. "It's a matter of economics more than anything else," Winter said. "To have two fire districts servicing an area that could be served by one department is a duplication of manpower."

Deeke, however, said his department can respond faster than Wheeling to certain areas in Lake County. He said, overall there would be no difference in service. "You show me the advantage in service in switching from one district to another," he told the committee. "If there is no difference in service then there should be no switch in districts."

Winter, however, said he does not understand why Long Grove would not object to losing its area to a municipal department, but would object to losing it to the Wheeling district. "In either case, the area would be lost, there wouldn't be any difference," Winter said.

SINCE TAX revenue for the area would be lost in either case, Winter added, Long Grove's objection could not be economic. Deeke said he is representing the trustees of his district and does not know their reasoning for objecting to one, but not the other.

The Wheeling district has told the committee it is willing to protect the additional area until the village decides it can afford a municipal department. When the village decides to form it, the district said it will turn over all equipment and facilities now being used to protect the area.

The only cost to the village would be outstanding debts owed for vehicles, fire stations or firefighting equipment.

Long Grove officials originally said they probably would not give up the equipment used to protect the area, should the village disannex from the district. Deeke, however, said last week he thinks officials may have misunderstood the committee. He said if the village chooses to form a municipal department, Long Grove might turn over the equipment, with the village being responsible for the liabilities.

THE COMMITTEE is tentatively scheduled to meet with Long Grove district trustees Thursday. Osmon said the committee hopes there will be a referendum on the probable proposal of the committee before Jan. 1.

A referendum to disannex from the Long Grove district into the Wheeling district would pass if the majority of those voting in the affected area favored the move. A similar referendum was passed in 1970 when 40 homes in Lake County disannexed from the Wheeling District into the Long Grove district.

FALL ROUNDUP ROYALTY were crowned at Buffalo Grove High School Saturday. The queen is Lynn Andrews and the king is Jim McGowan. Both are juniors. The week-long schedule of Fall Roundup activities took the place of homecoming at the new school that will not have a graduating class until 1975.

Longfellow school election teaches American politics

"P.O.P.," on the national level is just too sticky — it gets too dirty when you get up there with the President and even, though, in grade school, it's a lot more fun."

That's the political comment of the day from Blake Hobson, a sixth grader at Longfellow School (Dist. 21) in Buffalo Grove.

Blake made the statement following an election speech last week in his campaign for president of the Longfellow Student Council.

Asked if this was the beginning of a political career for him, Blake made it "perfectly clear" that he has no future ambitions — at least "at this point in time."

The other five presidential candidates said they, too, would limit their attention to bettering student life at Longfellow.

ONE CONTENDER, Tim Noonan, said one of his main objectives in running for student council president is to "clean up the writing on the washroom walls."

Ken Streff, another candidate, said he hopes, if elected, to get more playground and gym equipment plus a little more student freedom. "I don't want kids to have to line up for everything," he commented.

The only female presidential candidate, Peggy Muldoon, said she is not championing women's lib, but she felt that since a boy was student council president last year, students should have a girl as president this year.

Longfellow students voted for their choices of president, vice-president and secretary of student council after an assembly Friday. Fourth, fifth and sixth graders cast ballots, while third graders observed the candidates' speeches and conducted a mock election to prepare them for the real thing next year.

PAT KOPP, one of the faculty sponsors for the election, said the purpose is to acquaint students with American political processes.

"We do it just to get kids started in a democratic way of life early," she said. "It also gives them a feeling of being part of the school, rather than a person who comes here everyday just because he has to."

The student council officers elected

TIM NOONAN, a candidate for president of the Longfellow School Student Council, begins taking down materials used at the election assembly. Like the other presidential candidates, Noonan said his political ambitions do not extend beyond grade-school office.

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation.

"I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 25 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugalian, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

$1.8 million contract OKd for junior high additions

The Watson Construction Co. will construct additions totaling $1,820,709 to the Dist. 21 three junior high schools. The contract for the work to be done this year was awarded last week by the Dist. 21 school board. The additions will provide extra classroom space besides accommodating new vocational education programs.

The contract bid agreed upon is $10,000 less than the original Watson bid of $1,830,709. Several items included in the first specifications for the construction of the additions were trimmed to save money.

Watson submitted the lowest of six bids received two weeks ago by the district.

The construction of the junior high additions will be financed with funds remaining from 1970 school referendum and money from the special education levy.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools and to construct the vocational education wings at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools. Because both the Irving and Stevenson sites were donated, the district still has about $300,000 in referendum funds.

Trade site for funds

Dist. 21 has relinquished a school site on McHenry Road to the 3-H Building Corp. in return for a donation from the developers.

The site, located between Whippitree Village and Cedar Run, is not expected to be needed by Dist. 21.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said because most of the northwest section of Wheeling is being developed with apartments and condominiums, he does not expect a large number of children to come from the area.

Dist. 21 also owns another nearby site close to the Lake County line.

The 3-H Building Corp. has agreed to give the district $50 for each unit of three bedrooms or more and $20 for each one- and two-bedroom unit.

The developers of the project have not released the number of each kind of unit to be included in the 67.3-acre development.

No classes Nov. 12

There will be no classes in School Dist. 21, Monday, Nov. 12.

The day has been declared a "day of no attendance" in the district by the school board. Because Veteran's Day, Nov. 11, falls on Sunday, the district was not allowed to designate Monday as a legal holiday.

Recognizing that many businesses will not be open on Monday and anticipating that families will want to take advantage of the three-day weekend, the board suspended classes for the day.

Hot lunch research

Dist. 21 administrators will do research on the type of hot lunches that might be offered in the district in response to requests for the hot meals from parents of children attending Riley School in Arlington Heights.

Presently, hot lunches are served only at the district's three junior high schools. Elementary children walk home for lunch or bring a lunch to school.

Gill said a questionnaire may be mailed to Dist. 21 residents later to poll their opinions on offering hot lunches in the elementary schools.

Trucks worst offenders'Gun' helps state cops snag speeders

by TONI GINETTI

The "gun" was aimed casually out the window of the State Police squad car when the semi-trailer moving van sped past at 57 miles per hour — 12 miles faster than the posted speed limit.

State Trooper Joe Thomas set the gun's sights on the truck, squeezed the trigger, then raced after the truck. The gun lay beside him as red digital numerals blinked "57" steadily on a screen above its handle.

The truck driver had just become the victim of "Speedgun," a new radar unit resembling a bullhorn, which measures instantaneously the speed of moving vehicles.

THE DEVICE, which has been in use since August, is the latest police aid for trapping speeders, who police say are perhaps the foremost traffic enemy. Speedgun is portable and operates either by its own power pack or by plugging into a car cigarette lighter.

The gun works on the Doppler principle in which a signal is transmitted from the gun and bounces off a moving vehicle. The speed at which the signal bounces off the vehicle and back to the gun is equal to the vehicle's speed. Speedgun records that speed.

Six of the guns are now in use at State Police Dist. 3 headquarters in Des Plaines. A total of 80 of the units were purchased by the state from the manufacturer for $50,000, half of which was refunded by the federal government through a matching funds program.

SPEEDGUN HAS simplified the task of catching speeders, Thomas said during a morning patrol this week. Older radar units required the officer to read a graph which charted average speeds rather than the speed of a vehicle at any given moment. Speedgun, however, charts the actual speed of a vehicle in the same way a car speedometer does.

"It is so versatile, it really doesn't give the violator a chance," Thomas said. A violator doesn't stand much chance of disputing the accuracy of the unit because after each traffic stop, a trooper tests the gun to make sure it is working properly.

This is done with the use of a tuning fork which is calibrated to emit 50 m.p.h. vibration signals. If the 50 m.p.h. reading records on the gun when it is aimed at the tuning fork, the device is working accurately.

THOMAS SAID the guns are also inspected once a month to insure their proper operation.

But trapping the speeder doesn't necessarily mean issuing a ticket.

For example, four persons stopped for speeding by Thomas on a two-hour morning patrol this week were all traveling 10 to 13 miles per hour faster than the posted limit. All, however, were let off with written warnings, which the state police now issue, giving the driver a record of being stopped by speeding but no fine or ticket.

If the trooper feels a written warning will deter the driver from speeding again, then it can be just as effective as a ticket, Thomas said.

"WE FEEL WE'RE responsible for traffic safety," Thomas said of the State Police. "We handle almost no criminal cases except if they're involved in traffic cases."

"The most fundamental aspect of driving is speed. If a driver isn't conscious of that, will he be conscious of traffic lights and stop signs?"

Sewers backing upDump diapers? Don't do it!

by JOE SWICKARD

As Ed Norton used to say, "You never know what goes on down in the sewers."

The Metropolitan Sanitary District can tell you what goes through the sewers, but you might not believe it.

Earl Knight, of the MSD industrial waste section, said, "Oh, we get all kinds of things through here. You'd be amazed what people put through the sewers."

Besides the usual, the MSD reports everything from mattresses to grocery carts have turned up in their sludge; often causing backups.

And Arlington Heights has experienced several sewerage backups recently due to "disposable" diapers. The problem became so bad, the village published a warning in the municipal newsletter.

BILL REINHARD of the village public works department, outlined the problem in a memorandum to assistant village manager Darryl Kenning. According to Reinhard, new parents are apparently ignoring the diaper package's instruction to remove the plastic shield before flushing them away.

He said the plastic prevents the paper diaper from dissolving as it was designed to do. The result is a plastic-coated, watertight seal in the sewer pipes, he said.

Persons upstream from the blockage can testify when sewerage cannot progress as planned, it must emerge somewhere.

When asked about the diapers, Rolling Meadows Public Works Supt. John Hennessy proclaimed fervently: "We hate, hate, hate them! They've always been a problem. They're not biodegradable. They tend to reach a 90-degree turn and then clog."

REINHARD, after clearing several local blockages (twice in the same line), surmised the problem may also be compounded with the manner in which the diapers are disposed. He said it appeared the parents were saving several diapers and then flushing them all at once.

Knight explained what doesn't happen with the plastic covered diapers. "We're not very happy with them. You see, the plastic has a very high cellulose content. This makes them not very biodegradable. They will break down, but not right away. This is primarily a local problem. Our pipes are much bigger than the municipalities use, so the diapers don't clog them up."

The MSD pipes also have screens of varying gauges to filter out larger items that might cause problems. Knight said they have a machine similar to a garbage grinder which effectively reduces most things to a manageable size.

"We can always expect to find unusual things in the sewers. People even put old mattresses down manholes. If there's something they want to get rid of, they just put it down a manhole. Grocery carts are another headache. Kids steal the carts from parking lots and shove them into streams," he said.

KNIGHT SAID the MSD was considering billing the stores for removing the carts. He said the stores claim insurance on the stolen carts, which are often the older, damaged ones which have to be replaced anyway.

Rolling Meadows' Hennessy was blunt commenting on the sewerage. "I'd just rather not discuss the kinds of other things found in the sewers!"

Knight extended an invitation: "You really should come down to our screening rooms sometime. You'd really be surprised."

Thomas said police are usually more concerned with drivers going 10 miles or more over the limit. "I look for the hazardous violator," Thomas said. "They're the potential accidents."

"If I'm out here, I don't have to be petty," he continued. "We have no 'quotas' (which require a certain number of tickets to be written in a period of time.) I don't have to write a ticket. I treat people the way I want to be treated, so when I make an arrest, I feel it is justified."

IF DRIVERS try to deny it (a speeding offense) too vigorously, Thomas said. "We simply show them the gun reading (which is locked by a trigger and holds the reading until the trigger is released.)"

"We have a problem sometimes in that we clock cars at a distance," Thomas explained. "By the time the driver sees us and glances down at his speedometer, he's already reduced his speed, so sometimes we have a hard time explaining it to him."

Some outraged drivers, of course, just can't be quelled, Thomas said. "They ask for your badge number and your name and they say they're going to have your job and take you to court, all of which doesn't make our job any easier."

Of the four persons stopped that morning, only one attempted to deny the speeding charge.

WHILE POLICE will attempt to spot any violator, Thomas admitted truck drivers are usually eyed as speed demons. "Trucks are notorious speeders," he laughed. "They're almost professional mirror-watchers."

On a traffic stop, Thomas will check for other potential traffic or criminal violations. The truck driver he stopped was asked to produce a registration identification card which he is required to carry stating the weight limit the truck is allowed to carry, the maximum number of axles it is allowed, and related information.

The truck driver's name was radioed to the district headquarters, and Thomas was told within seconds that the driver had no record of previous convictions in Illinois.

WHEN THOMAS stopped three other auto drivers, he checked each driver's license for any driving restrictions, correct age and address, and the expiration date of the license. On stops made late at night, Thomas said teen-agers found to be driving after curfew can be held, since a minor's license is invalid after curfew.

The excuses for speeding that morning ranged from "a stuck accelerator pedal" to "I'm on my lunch hour and I had to get to the store."

"People have always looked at law enforcement with disrespect," Thomas commented as traffic on Golf Road whizzed by. "They feel they should not be restricted. We want people to start thinking instead of just taking driving for granted."

Plea for more fire, policemen to cost $200,000?

by STEVE BROWN

City police and fire department officials may have stunned some aldermen last week by submitting requests for new personnel that could cost the city about $200,000.

The requests were made during a city council finance committee meeting. Finance committee chairman Robert Hinde (4th) said the session was the first workshop session to be held on the city's new budget.

Hinde said the Des Plaines Police Department requested nine new patrolmen and the fire department has asked for seven new firefighters and four alarm room operators.

NO FINAL action was taken on the requests last week. Hinde said the council will have to receive requests from other department heads and review all requests before any final determination is made.

Hinde expressed surprise at the large manpower requests made by both departments.

He said some aldermen were caught unexpected by the two departments' request. Some aldermen questioned the large increases because the population of the city is no longer increasing, he said.

"We will have to thoroughly question the increases before approval is granted," Hinde said.

FAA checks out landing system

A low-flying DC-3 airplane circling this area Friday was carrying out a routine check of the instrument landing system at O'Hare Airport, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesman said Friday.

The checks are made frequently, usually at night, and are designed to insure that the electronic equipment which guides planes into O'Hare is accurate and conforms to FAA standards, the spokesman said.

The DC-3s used in the tests are scheduled to be replaced by smaller, faster jet airplanes.

Des Plaines Fire Chief Frank Haag said the request for seven new firefighters will allow the department to establish a second ladder truck company.

He said that with the increasing number of taller buildings being constructed in the city, it is necessary to divide the city into two districts. He said a new ladder truck company will enable the department to respond more quickly to city fires.

HAAG SAID the request for four civilian alarm room operators will allow the department to reassign three trained firefighters to other duties. "Presently we have regular firefighters assigned to the alarm room full time," Haag said.

Haag said that by hiring civilian employees for the alarm room, this will allow the department to use the firefighters for other assignments. He said the civilian alarm operators can be hired at a lower salary than is paid to regular firefighters.

The fire chief said the department has also requested a full time fire department mechanic to maintain equipment.

In a report submitted by police officials, nine additional patrolmen were requested. One of those new officers would be assigned to the detective section, while a second would be assigned to the youth division.

THE POLICE also have asked for a radio communication clerk and a clerk typist. The communication clerk would allow the police to reassign another patrolman to other tasks.

Currently, a regular patrolman is assigned to the communications section.

The department report indicated that the additional men were needed because of an increase in police calls throughout the city in recent years.

The report also noted an increase in the case load assigned to officers in both the detective and youth sections. In addition to the statistical information regarding the city's department, a comparison was made of 11 other communities in the state.

Top Maine South rating is 'unlikely'

by LINDA PUNCH

Representatives of state and national educational agencies discount a survey which ranks Maine South High School as the top school in the United States.

B. Everard Blanchard, a DePaul University professor, ranked Maine South as number one over 615 secondary schools in the United States.

Blanchard said he based his opinion of the school on a visit to Maine South, Park Ridge, last February. Information on other schools was obtained through questionnaires sent out at random.

A representative of the U.S. Office of Education said it was "very unlikely" that schools could be ranked based on any survey. He said the ranking would probably be based on arbitrary criteria.

Cook County Supt. Richard T. Martwick said he would like to see a copy of Blanchard's survey before commenting on its validity. He noted it is possible to rank schools if a survey evaluates communities with the same socio-economic standards.

"I THINK the way to evaluate and assess a district is to see how schools are meeting the needs of the youngsters in that particular community," he said.

The Cook County superintendent said he believes Maine South is an excellent school but that there "are a number of other excellent school districts in the county."

John Kent, state director of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, said ranking schools is "kind of risky."

"The NCA doesn't rank or rate schools at all. Very frankly, I would certainly hesitate to do it myself," he said.

Blanchard was director of an NCA evaluation team which visited Maine South last February. He said he spent four days at the school talking with administrators, teachers, students and parents.

Kent said he would spend "weeks and even months" at a school before attempting to compare it with others.

"Most people shy completely away from this type of thing because of the many factors involved," he said.

Blanchard said Maine South was a last-minute addition to his study of secondary schools.

"I HAD DONE a survey the previous year of the 615 schools. Since I was at Maine South, I decided to integrate it

State Trooper Joe Thomas aims "Speedgun" at approaching traffic.

Special 'gun' helps state police catch speeders

by TONI GINETTI

The "gun" was aimed casually out the window of the State Police squad car when the semi-trailer moving van sped past at 57 miles per hour — 12 miles faster than the posted speed limit.

State Trooper Joe Thomas set the gun's sights on the truck, squeezed the trigger, then raced after the truck. The gun lay beside him as red digital numerals blinked "57" steadily on a screen above his handle.

The truck driver had just become the victim of "Speedgun," a new radar unit resembling a bullhorn, which measures instantaneously the speed of moving vehicles.

THE DEVICE, which has been in use since August, is the latest police aid for trapping speeders, who police say are perhaps the foremost traffic enemy. Speedgun is portable and operates either by its own power pack or by plugging into a car cigarette lighter.

The gun works on the Doppler principle in which a signal is transmitted from the gun and bounces off a moving vehicle. The speed at which the signal bounces off the vehicle and back to the gun is equal to the vehicle's speed.

Speedgun records that speed.

Six of the guns are now in use at State Police Dist. 3 headquarters in Des Plaines. A total of 80 of the units were purchased by the state from the manufacturer for $50,000, half of which was refunded by the federal government through a matching funds program.

SPEEDGUN HAS simplified the task of catching speeders, Thomas said during a morning patrol this week. Older radar units required the officer to read a graph which charted average speeds rather than the speed of a vehicle at any given moment. Speedgun, however, charts the actual speed of a vehicle in the same way a car speedometer does.

"It is so versatile, it really doesn't give the violator a chance," Thomas said. A violator doesn't stand much chance of disputing the accuracy of the unit because after each traffic stop, a trooper tests the gun to make sure it is working properly.

This is done with the use of a tuning fork which is calibrated to emit 50 m.p.h. vibration signals. If the 50 m.p.h. reading records on the gun when it is aimed at the tuning fork, the device is working accurately.

THOMAS SAID the guns are also inspected once a month to insure their proper operation.

But trapping the speeder doesn't necessarily mean issuing a ticket.

For example, four persons stopped for speeding by Thomas on a two-hour morning patrol this week were all traveling 10 to 13 miles per hour faster than the posted limit. All, however, were let off with written warnings, which the state police now issue, giving the driver a record of being stopped by speeding but no fine or ticket.

If the trooper feels a written warning will deter the driver from speeding again, then it can be just as effective as a ticket, Thomas said.

"WE FEEL WE'RE responsible for traffic safety," Thomas said of the State Police. "We handle almost no criminal cases except if they're involved in traffic cases."

"The most fundamental aspect of driving is speed. If a driver isn't conscious of that, will he be conscious of traffic lights and stop signs?"

Thomas said police are usually more

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to smooth some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation.

"I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 25 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and that his appointment came soon after Agnew's resignation. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugallan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "an undistinguished vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

$1 million fire hits store; 4 charged

by STIRLING MORITA

Service Merchandise Inc. was to have a grand opening tomorrow at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center. But a monstrous fire thought to be arson-caused struck Saturday, causing damage roughly estimated at $1 million. Four Chicago men have been charged with arson in connection with the fire.

It was the largest fire ever in Hoffman Estates, fire officials said. Firemen from all over the area joined Hoffman Estates firefighters in a grim battle in the early morning drizzle to save the former W. T. Grant building. The fire alarm was given about 4 a.m.

Shortly before the fire report, four Chicago men were arrested by Schaumburg police after a traffic violation stop at Higgins and Roselle roads. In the car, there was about $2,500 worth of items thought taken from Service Merchandise, a catalog merchandise store, police said. After subsequent investigation, Hoffman Estates police charged the four with burglary and arson.

THE SUSPECTS were identified as George Lawson, 20, of 4414 S. Oakwood; Steven Handy, 21, of 5617 S. Calumet; Demarvin Rodgers, 19, of 4331 Evans, and Craig Sanford, 19, of 4340 Evans. Sanford, Lawson and Handy were reportedly fired Wednesday from Service Merchandise.

Charges of possession of stolen property were filed against the four by Schaumburg police. Handy was also booked on charges of possession of burglary tools, having no driver's license on his person and driving without headlights on, and Lawson on a charge of unlawful use of weapons for having a pair of non-chachu (kung-fu) sticks, police reported. Nearly 35 emergency vehicles — 13 of them fire engines — rushed to the one-story concrete building on the southern part of the shopping center on Roselle Road between Higgins and Golf roads. Authorities estimated that as many as 150 men may have been summoned to the scene.

State fire marshals were dispatched to investigate the blaze, but had no comments.

According to Hoffman Estates Fire Chief Carl Selke, the fire started in the rear of the 44,000-square-foot building and the heat was so intense it drove firefighters out when they first entered the building.

Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa said, "We're probably speaking in terms of a million-dollar fire here."

HOLDS ON THE south side of the building were drilled so firemen could douse the flames.

Selke said there was a lot of smoke at first, but when the roof caved in, the flames shot up.

"We had about 10 or 12 men on the roof, and it started going," Selke said. "I thought we lost a couple of guys at first. But everyone was okay."

The fire was under control about six hours after a nearby bakery had summoned firefighters to the scene. Firemen were still at the scene Saturday night to prevent flare-ups. One fire truck had to return about 3 p.m. when there was a minor flare-up.

Selke said the rain did not help contain the fire, but that "all it did was make us sweat."

THERE WERE no damages to the other stores in the shopping center. The blaze left behind only a concrete skeleton of a building. Fire officials said the remains of the store would have to be torn down.

Selke added that the sprinkler system for the store was being installed, but was not completed.

Fire departments called in to assist were Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights. A civil defense van with needed air packs and power drills was sent from Skokie.

The toy section of the Service Merchandise store was scheduled to open tomorrow, but the store had not been completely stocked yet, said Wendell Floyd, manager. He had no estimates on the value of the store's contents.

The merchandise in the store had been insured, Floyd said, watching firemen bring out soggy remains of the store's goods.

He added he did not know what the future of the store would be. Service Merchandise Inc. has branch stores throughout the South and had planned stores for the Chicago area. Construction had already begun for a 20,000-square-foot addition to the main building.

IN CONNECTION with the four arrests, Schaumburg police discovered two nearly-empty gasoline cans from the trunk of the car containing the four men. Chief Martin Conroy said the remaining liquid in the cans appeared to be of an inflammable type and that the one- and two-gallon cans would be sent to the Chicago Crime Lab for analysis.

Recovered were stereo speakers, tuners, headphones, baby dolls, a toy truck, hair dryers, walkie-talkies and typewriters, Conroy said.

Patrolman Joseph Sorlino was returning to patrol duty from a call about 3:45 a.m. when he saw a car without headlights on turning east onto Higgins Road, police said. As he approached the suspect car, he saw items in the front and back seats and then radioed for assistance, police reported.

The men in the car claimed the equipment had fallen off a truck on the Dan Ryan Expressway, according to authorities.

Patrolman Roy Desmond assisted, and two of the four men were found hiding, crouching behind the front seat.

While at the scene, a motorist told authorities smoke was coming from the shopping center, and the report was radioed in to Hoffman Estates Police.

Conroy called the arrests "good police work," and added, "These are the things patrol manpower can really eat up."

Bonds were set at $35,000 for Lawson and Handy, $30,000 for Sanford and $25,000 for Rodgers. They are to appear Oct. 24 in Schaumburg Court.

All four were being held in Hoffman Estates jail pending bond hearings Monday.

State advice led to first Maryville site

by JILL BETTNER

A news analysis

The Dist. 26 School Board apparently relied too heavily on a recommendation by the Illinois Capital Development Board in choosing the site for the new Maryville school.

On the advice of the ICDB, which oversees the construction of all public schools, the Dist. 26 board in August voted to build the school on the River Trails Junior High School site. School Board Pres. Lloyd Demel and board member Michael Sheykter voted "no."

Two weeks ago, the board rescinded that decision and chose a five-acre site on Gregory Street as the best site for the new facility. The site is part of the Mary-vill Academy property in Des Plaines.

The school board depended entirely on the ICDB to research possible sites for the Maryville school. The hunt began about June 15, according to Demel.

AFTER THE ICDB researched eight sites in a month and a half, the school board voted Aug. 7 to build the school on the junior high site.

Demel said he felt the school board should have taken longer to decide on the site. The board was pressured, he said, into making a decision by the ICDB so the school could be built by next fall.

After angered residents protested the Aug. 7 decision, the board set up a citizens' committee to study alternative sites and hired a civil engineer. The reports of both revealed several facts uncovered by the ICDB.

The ICDB failed to inform the board before its Aug. 7 decision that a water retention facility required by the Metropolitan Sanitary District would have to be included on the new school site.

That information, Demel said, was the overriding factor in the board's reversal of its earlier decision. There is no room at the junior high school for a retention facility, Demel said, without cutting into land designated by the park district for a track. The Gregory Street site is large enough to accommodate a retention facility.

DETEL SAID it did not occur to the board to check with the MSD on retention requirements.

"The board is a policymaking body," he said. "It doesn't generally get into detailed discussions with engineers."

The ICDB had told the board that it would cost approximately $55,000 more to develop the Gregory Street site than the junior high site. That conclusion was reversed by the civil engineer.

Other facts uncovered by the civil engineer and the citizens' committee were that an underground sewer said by the ICDB to run through the Gregory Street site had not existed for 40 years. Also, that the Maryville administration is planning to build a road to new student housing that will accommodate school traffic.

ALTHOUGH DEMEL said he was "very uncomfortable" because the ICDB never submitted information about the sites to the board in writing, a trip to Springfield to talk with ICDB engineers reassured him that the board could depend on their recommendation as the best site available.

"It was totally appropriate for us to depend on the ICDB," Demel said. "The information we obtained from them led us to believe that we could have good faith in their conclusions."

Demel said the board also relied on architects hired by the ICDB to confirm the ICDB engineer's site evaluations. However, after working on plans for the school for only 2½ days, the ICDB architects were pulled off the job when it was learned by the agency that the school site might be changed.

DETEL SAID it was "nothing more than wishful thinking" to have hoped that the architects could provide the reasons behind the ICDB recommendation.

"Looking at it in retrospect, I've felt that we were pressured to move so quickly to approve the site that we were steamrollered," Demel said.

"I'd say now that we really should have hired the civil engineer before we made the decision (on the River Trails site)," Demel continued. "The problem is, at what point do you make the judgment that a professional group is not providing you with good input?"

Due to the delay in reevaluating sites and changing its decision, there is some question as to whether the Dist. 26 school board will be able to complete the new Maryville school by September.

If it is not finished, the board must seek permission from the state to continue using the River Road School, built before the turn of the century.

THE BUILDING has been declared unfit and unsafe for students by the Illinois Life Safety Agency. Misplaced faith in the ICDB and failure by the board to take more initiative in finding the answers to important questions may mean students to be forced to stay there, anyway.

Even though it is true that a school board "is only a policymaking body," as Demel said, to make good policy, the board must have all the facts.

The board is responsible, ultimately, for any decision. That means it must also take the responsibility for checking and doublechecking the facts before taking any action.

Morton Grove mayor objects to Oakton College site there

The mayor of Morton Grove has said he doesn't want Oakton Community College to build its campus in the village because it will remove land from the tax rolls and require use of village police and fire services.

Mayor Jules Bode made the comment last week during a village board meeting. According to Fred Huber, village manager, all the other village trustees agreed except Martin Ashman who said the college would add prestige to the community.

One of the sites Oakton is considering for its permanent campus is the present location of the temporary campus, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, plus about 20 acres adjacent to the campus. Bode "feels there is no sufficient room there," said Huber, and the board believes the temporary campus is "not the ideal location" for the college's permanent home.

HUBER SAID HE has no way of knowing the assessed value of the campus without checking county records but estimated the land is valued at about $20 million and generates about $270,000 in tax revenue to the village and local school districts. He also said the village has no "real power" to stop the college from choosing Morton Grove for its campus.

Paul Gilson, chairman of the Oakton board and its site committee, said the mayor's comments would not mean the college would drop the site from consideration. An evaluation report of the site and two other sites in the northwest corner of Oakton's district is now being made, he said, and will be finished sometime after Jan. 1.

When the report is completed, it will be discussed with the village board, Gilson said. "We will coordinate all our evaluations and plans with the villages concerned when we have all the information," he said.

"WE NEVER FELT there would be any major impact on the local villages taxes," said Gilson. Unlike most communities in Oakton's district, which includes Maine and Niles townships, Morton Grove doesn't have a high school located in the village limits and has "never really had any big education burden" through loss of tax revenue or use of fire and police services.

"We consider ourselves desirable to any community," said Gilson, who added that he was "really shocked" by Bode's remarks. He said he is "disturbed and puzzled by any public statements without any discussion with our board or our administrators. We think we're darn good neighbors."

October proclaimed 'immunization month'

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel has proclaimed October as "Immunization Action Month" in the city.

The program is being promoted by the Illinois Department of Public Health in an effort to increase public awareness regarding immunizations.

Health officials are urging all parents to have their children's medical records examined so they can receive any immunizations they might need.

The Cook County Department of Public Health conducts an immunization clinic on the first Wednesday of each month from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Beau and Dempster streets in Des Plaines. Appointments for the clinic can be made through the city's health department.

into the study," he said.

The DePaul professor based his evaluation on a system he devised which rates schools according to course goals, curriculum, guidance, student counseling, teachers' preparation for classes and quality of administration.

Blanchard said he puts little emphasis on standard accreditation criteria such as standardized tests results.

Although he ranked what he considers the top ten schools, Blanchard said there is not much difference between them. He said he didn't feel the study down graded schools not included in the survey.

"Let's use common sense and reasoning — if I don't see your hairdo and say somebody else's is the best, does that reflect on you," he said.

"Besides, each one had an opportunity to be chosen," he added.

Blanchard criticized the NCA for not attempting to rank schools.

"In 1963, we didn't have a 747 turbojet. We're living in the 21st Century — anything can be tried," he said.

he laughed. "They're almost professional mirror-watchers."

On a traffic stop, Thomas will check for other potential traffic or criminal violations. The truck driver he stopped was asked to produce a registration identification card which he is required to carry stating the weight limit the truck is allowed to carry, the maximum number of axles it is allowed, and related information.

The truck driver's name was radioed to the district headquarters, and Thomas was told within seconds that the driver had no record of previous convictions in Illinois.

WHEN THOMAS stopped three other auto drivers, he checked each driver's we clock cars at a distance," Thomas explained. "By the time the driver sees us and glances down at his speedometer, he's already reduced his speed, so sometimes we have a hard time explaining it to him."

Some outraged drivers, of course, just can't be quieted, Thomas said. "They ask for your badge number and your name and they say they're going to have your job and take you to court, all of which doesn't make our job any easier."

Of the four persons stopped that morning, only one attempted to deny the speeding charge.

WHILE POLICE will attempt to spot any violator, Thomas admitted truck drivers are usually eyed as speed demons. "Trucks are notorious speeders," concerned with drivers going 10 miles or more over the limit. "I look for the hazardous violator," Thomas said. "They're the potential accidents."

"If I'm out here, I don't have to be petty," he continued. "We have no 'quotas' (which require a certain number of tickets to be written in a period of time.) I don't have to write a ticket. I treat people the way I want to be treated, so when I make an arrest, I feel it is justified."

IF DRIVERS try to deny it (a speeding offense) too vigorously," Thomas said. "We simply show them the gun reading (which is locked by a trigger and holds the reading until the trigger is released.)"

Maine West stuns Niles West in 21-20 thriller

by MIKE KLEIN

Anyone who didn't witness this two-hour Chuck of Thrills probably won't believe what transpired. But sure as daytime follows the nighttime and Spiro (Agnew) ain't no hero no more, it's not fiction.

Befuddled, the Niles West Indians stood around wondering how in just 10 minutes Maine West had traveled about for three touchdowns and a 21-0 lead, all the points it would score.

These, of course, were Mike Bayrak's undefeated Indians, ranked in Chicago-Land power polls by the Chicago Tribune and Daily News papers. But Maine West's Warriors, seemingly placid with one win and three losses, were making punies of Niles.

The reason... fumbles... was obvious to everyone, including the partisan Indian Homecoming crowd which sat

Bill Makuch

Ed Dolan

stricken with a bad case of the glums. There were enough dropped footballs... to altogether by both clubs... to send any coach retreating into retirement.

But under sunny skies Saturday in Skokie, six Niles fumbles, three by starting fullback Bill Pindras and a fatal one off Chuck DeLeonardis' hands, sent the Indians reeling, 21-20, after a fine comeback try.

Above all, it was an exciting football game that uncovered 591 yards total offense (NW-315, MW-276), a liberal array of play calls and some great defense, such as four fumble recoveries by Maine West cornerback Joe Jobst.

The upset triumph perched Maine West, along with tough Deerfield, atop the Central Suburban League South division. Each club is 2-0. Deerfield pummeled Niles East, 38-0, also on Saturday.

It wrote a nifty pre-game script for next Saturday's must... critical... gotta-have it... ballgame with Maine West at Deerfield. That winner should secure the South division CSL playoff bowl berth. (Niles West plays Deerfield a home game on Saturday, Oct. 27.)

It was fitting that a fumble should wrap up all important action last Saturday at Niles West. The Indians, behind a two-touchdown second half, had surged within 21-20 and were driving again with four minutes to play.

From Maine's 26-yard line, they tried a surprise long pass on third-and-one. It failed, apparently unimportant, when DeLeonardis, who scored twice, followed with a seven-yard ramble to the 19 for an easy first down.

Once there, however, DeLeonardis let loose with Niles fumble No. 6. Jobst spread his 160 pounds over the inflated piggy. His other three fumble retrievals occurred before halftime.

Maine West, with Bill Makuch carrying, fumbled the ball back four plays later. He'd just picked up 20 yards on two carries as Warrior coach Jim Morel sought to grind out the clock. It was a rare mistake by Makuch; he was super coming off two weeks of illness.

But his fumble hurt nothing. Niles quarterback Bob Buckley missed on four pass tries, throwing deep-short-medium-short, and the Indians were safely shot from first place.

Ultimately, super defensive plays by Maine's Ed Dolan and Jim Boesche carried the Warriors to victory. Both plays, hard and crisp tackles, occurred on extra points.

After Maine ran ahead 21-0, the Indians came back at 1:47 of the second period with a 17-yard run by DeLeonardis who led all rushers with 17 carries and 106 yards. Veteran halfback Tom Flood tried the two-point run but found Dolan in his way.

Niles scored next at 5:14 of the third period, Flood busting up-the-gut from three yards out. But when he tried to sweep right for two, Flood bowed to Boesche's tackle.

The Indians' third touchdown, at 7:13 in the fourth quarter, was a three-yard run by DeLeonardis. Pindras, removed from the offensive game plan after his three fumbles, ran for two conversion points, ending all scoring.

Maine's Warriors played their best 18 minutes all year to start the ballgame. They pounded for touchdowns on drives two-to-four, scoring twice for a 13-0 lead after one period. Fumbles by Niles quarterback Buckley and fullback Pindras helped Maine begin two drives. The Warriors forced Niles into fourth and 18 before their initial TD march.

Almost by himself, Makuch put the Warriors into Niles' endzone, ending a two-week touchdown drought. He fielded Al Young's punt and moved upfield three yards to Maine's 20. Then he rushed four times, one for 20 yards, as the Warriors swept to Niles' 32-yard line.

After his long gallop, Makuch took a Terry Quinn handoff, ran left and tossed a scoring pass to Dolan who outwitted Doug Launhardt and DeLeonardis for the ball. Tom Thvedt kicked the point and West led, 7-0.

The Warriors got moving again when Buckley ran two plays before fumbling into Jobst's eager hands, his second recovery in eight minutes. Two Makuch runs plus an end reverse by Sean Dowd put the ball on Niles' 16. Mike Janonis carried twice, 12 and four yards, for the score. Thvedt's kick missed after a five-yard delay of game penalty.

Niles sustained a seven-play drive netting three first downs before Pindras sent the ball flying for his second fumble. Jobst was there again. Eight plays later, Dan Myska ran 44 yards, leaving Pindras and Dave Durs in futile flight, for Maine's third score. Quinn passed to Dowd for two very important points as West led, 21-0.

The unreal part of this win stems from what Maine's Morel termed, "kid of hiding our kids." The usual backfield of Myska and John O'Connor had just seven carries. Myska has a slight shoulder separation and O'Connor still hurts from a bad shin bruise sustained against Glenbrook North.

Thus, Makuch and Janonis played offense while the other pair stuck to defense. Makuch had 84 yards rushing and his touchdown pass. Janonis rushed six times for 45 yards. Both athletes are just juniors. Additionally, nine juniors started offensively and seven defensively.

The kids weren't awed by Niles. Maine worked its most versatile offense to date, combining traps, counters, halfback passes, end reverses, draws, sweeps and dropback passes.

"We got the points before they could adjust," Morel said. "The second half was fighting tooth and nail all the way. We're real pleased with the kids."

He also defended Maine's overall record, still just 2-3. "Look at the teams we've played. Proviso East lost one game to Evanston. Arlington lost one game to Hersey and Glenbrook North has one loss to New Trier," Morel said. "Maine South, the other team we beat, has their only other loss to Evanston."

Points well taken... you can bet Paul Adams at Deerfield has them in mind, too.

Maine East jolts Cowboys

by JEFF CLARKSON

The Maine East Demons Saturday jolted the New Trier West football squad with two first quarter touchdowns and their defense held on to gain a 12-7 verdict in the New Trier West Homecoming game. It was the first time since 1962 that the Demons have won three straight.

The conference clash pitted two units seeking a share of the league lead. Both teams entered the game with identical 2-2 season records. New Trier West won two previous conference encounters and Maine East won its only other game in the division.

A strong wind and a muddy field did not dampen the spirits of either squad in the crucial confrontation. Aggressive play on the part of both contenders resulted in several injuries, including a head injury to Demon Jeff Cohen, as well as much nerve-racking action.

Receiving the opening kickoff from the New Trier West Cowboys at the Maine 26-yard line, the Demons moved 74 yards on ten plays to start the scoring at the 7:32 mark on the first stanza. The touchdown drive was capped by an 18-yard scamper around right end by quarterback Mark Franklin.

After holding the Cowboys to six yards in three plays on their first possession of the game, Maine East got the pigskin on their own 31 following a punt. Franklin handed off three consecutive plays to Mike Lauesen, leading Demon rusher with 135 yards on 26 carries.

The third time, Lauesen broke through the Cowboy defensive line and outraced the hosts' secondary for a 62-yard touchdown gallop. The Lauesen score came less than three minutes after the Demons first tally.

Coach Al Eck had his charges attempt two-point conversions after each of the touchdowns but neither worked as Lauesen and Franklin were stopped in their bids to carry the ball into the end zone.

Eck said that prior to the game he had planned to go for two points after any touchdown because he figured the Cowboys would go for two-pointers if they scored.

Despite the missed points after touchdowns, Eck said that the two touchdowns were the turning point in the game. He said, "It changed the mode of play."

From that point, the Demons found it exceedingly hard to move the football on offense, but the defense picked up the charge and held their opponents to only one touchdown.

Throughout the contest, the Demon defenders allowed the Cowboy offense to enter their territory only three times, including the touchdown. New Trier West completed six of 23 aerial attempts for 42 yards and three were intercepted.

The ground game only managed 127 yards, including a 47-yard touchdown run by halfback Charles Thomas, who just barely eluded a diving tackle by the Demons' Jack Meyer. Thomas later received a leg injury and was removed from the game.

Harper explodes in 2nd half to rout Concordia

by DON FRISKE

For the second time this season, the Harper Hawks came from behind after spotting their opponents a 12-0 lead to win the game.

The first time was against Kennedy-King, when they won 27-18.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Hawk offense poured it on Concordia College in the second half to beat them 45-18 in Milwaukee.

With the Hawks behind 12-7 at the half, a 42-yard pass play from Pat Dempsey to Ervin Kimbrough was the only score the Hawks could achieve.

The Hawks took the lead for good in the third quarter on a one-yard run by Marty Williams to take a 14-12 advantage. Hawk fullback Jim Leopardo then scored from two yards out to widen the gap.

After a four-yard run by Steve Frankovic opened the scoring in the final quarter, the same type of plays that had given the Hawks their first two touchdowns were again put to use.

Dempsey again completed a touchdown pass to Kimbrough, this time good for 65 yards. Williams scored again on a 42-yard run this time for his second touchdown of the game.

Hawk placekicker Kevin Wilson, who kicked the one-point conversion on each Hawk touchdown, completed the scoring by booting a three-yard field goal.

The Hawks' record now stands at 3-2.

Steady Glenbrook South rolls past Maine North

by MIKE KLEIN

Glenbrook South, anxious for a mid-November playoff bowl berth, proved its point Friday night against downrodden Maine North in a lopsided, no-contest Central Suburban League North division game. The Titans romped, 33-0.

They remain unbeaten in the North, 2-0, and have just a single loss in five games. The Norsemen are winless this season, 0-5, and in their last 15 games.

Gaining vengeance for last weekend's two-point loss at Deerfield, the Titans unloaded 300 yards total offense on the Norsemen and permitted Maine just 21 yards in a sad Homecoming.

Ken Hurlbut's club wasn't hampered by the normal Friday night/Saturday afternoon rain storms which have marred the entire season. Drizzle began the second quarter at Maine East stadium and developed into a heavy downpour.

Glenbrook started slowly in a hard-hitting first quarter, getting one TD but no conversion, and built that into a 13-0 half-time lead. The Titans blew it open with 14 third quarter points.

George Laito delivered the knockout punch at 6:22 of the opening period with a two-yard touchdown run. Murphy Hoffman's kick went wide. The drive covered

Glenbrook South's remaining points came like this:

—Randy Pfister dodged four defenders inside the five-yard line to score with a 17-yard pass from Hoffman at 2:58 of the second period.

—Two plays into the third period, Jim Nelson rammed through left tackle and proceeded 62 yards, slipping past Ron Brooks and Chris Chirikos who couldn't catch him from across field.

—One possession later, leading rusher Mark Helreich, 90 yards on 14 carries, bulldozed in from one yard out, also in the third period.

—Pfister ended the barrage with his second touchdown, coming on a two-yard run, five plays into the final period.

Hoffman kicked three-of-five extra point tries, missing on Glenbrook's first and last touchdowns. He also quarterbacked the Titans to their first four touchdowns before yielding to Dave Stockfisch. It was a 29-yard reception from Stockfisch to Bob Heltsinger that set up Pfister's second score.

The Norsemen never owned the ball in Titan territory and approached midfield on just three possessions. Their opening drive stalled at the 47 when Armstrong fumbled. Maine's last drive included one of three first downs before stopping at the 41.

Another drive, in the second quarter, moved three yards from the 42-to-45 yard line before No. 3 of six punts by Mike Wilson. He averaged 33 yards per kick. Other drives ended at North's 30, 34, 28, 25 and 29-yard lines.

The Titans rolled to 281 yards rushing without a single runner going past the magic century mark. Behind Helreich's team-leading 90 yards were Laito with 71 and Nelson at 68, all but seven on his 62-yard scoring run.

Maine North's Mike Schumacher had a long gallop of 15 yards but coupled with negative yardage, ended with 13 yards on as many carries to lead the Norsemen.

North's only touchdown possibility came on a defensive play. Rob Andropolis had no Titans between himself and the goal line 70 yards away when he nearly picked off a Hoffman pass four plays before halftime.

Park needs west of Rte. 53 to be considered by BOB GALLAS

Neighborhood meetings to discuss park needs west of Ill. Rte. 53 and the design of the proposed North End Park in Elk Grove Village should be started before the end of the year.

The meetings, conducted by the Elk Grove Park District, will allow residents of the area to have a voice in what type of recreational facilities they'll have, according to Jack Claes, director of parks and recreation.

North End Park, located at Willow Lane and Shadywood Lane, will be constructed on 6.3 acres purchased with funds from a state grant, village grant, park district funds and money from a March referendum. At the present time, plans call for facilities at the new park to include two tennis courts, a basketball court, playground and two baseball fields.

PART OF THE park was purchased with $45,000 of promised state funds. Park district officials announced at last week's park board meeting that necessary forms and proof of ownership have been filed with the state. The park district has not received the $45,000 yet, pending receipt of the forms. Claes said he expects payment by the end of the year.

In other action Thursday:

- The board discussed a proposed fence along Somerset Lane in Roosevelt Park. Children sledding on a nearby hill have been sliding into Somerset. Some board members are concerned children would be sliding into the fence and there would still be the possibility of injury. Several alternatives to the fence are under study.

- Tentatively approved a contract of $11,300 with Allstate Fencing of Bridgeview, Ill. bidder for the construction of fencing and baseball backstops at several places of park district property. Not included in the approval was the fence proposed along Somerset Lane in Disney Park.

- Deferred action to approve a contract for the construction of six new tennis courts at three sites. The board will look into the possibility of constructing even more courts. Eleven courts were promised when the park district referendum passed in March.

- Authorized the superintendent of parks and recreation to sign a contract with Commonwealth Edison Co. to install transformers and switching equipment for field lights and parking lot lights at Disney Park.

- Approved a newsletter which will be mailed out in January, telling about park district progress.

- Authorized the negotiation of a $1 per year lease with Lutheran Church officials on some property across from Link School, 900 S. West Glenn Trail Rd. Park district officials said they plan to use the site for an ice skating rink this winter. The lease would be temporary, lasting only until the church starts to build on the property.

High school homecoming week under way

A week of homecoming activities begins today at Elk Grove High School with freshmen "spirit day" and will end this weekend with a football game and homecoming dance.

Each class will have a "spirit day" this week, according to George Aldrich, director of student activities. The classes will decorate the halls to show school spirit. Freshmen decorate today, sophomores tomorrow, juniors Wednesday and seniors Thursday.

Activities get into high gear Thursday when the homecoming queen candidates are presented to the student body in a special assembly. Students will vote for the queen after the assembly and the winner will be announced in a coronation assembly at 1 p.m. Friday afternoon.

Up to four past homecoming queens from the high school are expected to be in attendance at the coronation assembly, according to Aldrich.

A PARADE will follow the queen's coronation Friday, starting at about 2 p.m. Antique autos, the school band and marching groups will make up the parade.

Aldrich said the parade route will follow Elk Grove Boulevard east to Ridge Avenue, north on Ridge to Laurel, west on Laurel to Charing Cross and Charing Cross back to the school.

The Elk Grove Grenadiers will meet the Conant Cougars from Hoffman Estates in the homecoming football game Friday night. The sophomore game starts at 6 p.m. with the varsity teams meeting at 8 p.m. on the Grenadiers' home field.

Homecoming activities conclude Saturday with a special alumni reception at 6 p.m. and the homecoming dance at 8 p.m.

Aldrich said he hopes there will be a good turnout for the alumni reception. "Too many high school tend to forget the alumni during homecoming," he said. "We're very interested in having all our alumni come back," he added.

Special 'gun' helps state police catch speeders

by TONI GINETTI

The "gun" was aimed casually out the window of the State Police squad car when the semi-trailer moving van sped past at 57 miles per hour — 12 miles faster than the posted speed limit.

State Trooper Joe Thomas set the gun's sights on the truck, squeezed the trigger, then raced after the truck. The gun lay beside him as red digital numerals blinked "57" steadily on a screen above his handle.

The truck driver had just become the victim of "Speedgun," a new radar unit resembling a bullhorn, which measures instantaneously the speed of moving vehicles.

THE DEVICE, which has been in use since August, is the latest police aid for trapping speeders, who police say are perhaps the foremost traffic enemy. Speedgun is portable and operates either by its own power pack or by plugging into a car cigaret lighter.

The gun works on the Doppler principle in which a signal is transmitted from the gun and bounces off a moving vehicle. The speed at which the signal bounces off the vehicle and back to the gun is equal to the vehicle's speed.

Speedgun records that speed.

Six of the guns are now in use at State Police Dist. 3 headquarters in Des Plaines. A total of 80 of the units were purchased by the state from the manufacturer for $50,000, half of which was refunded by the federal government through a matching funds program.

SPEEDGUN HAS simplified the task of catching speeders, Thomas said during a morning patrol this week. Older radar units required the officer to read a graph which charted average speeds rather than the speed of a vehicle at any given moment. Speedgun, however, charts the actual speed of a vehicle in the same way a car speedometer does.

"It is so versatile, it really doesn't give the violator a chance," Thomas said. A violator doesn't stand much chance of disputing the accuracy of the unit because after each traffic stop, a trooper tests the gun to make sure it is working properly.

This is done with the use of a tuning fork which is calibrated to emit 50 m.p.h. vibration signals. If the 50 m.p.h. reading records on the gun when it is aimed at the tuning fork, the device is working accurately.

THOMAS SAID the guns are also inspected once a month to insure their proper operation.

But trapping the speeder doesn't necessarily mean issuing a ticket.

For example, four persons stopped for speeding by Thomas on a two-hour morning patrol this week were all traveling 10 to 13 miles per hour faster than the posted limit. All, however, were let off with written warnings, which the state police now issue, giving the driver a record of being stopped by speeding but no fine or ticket.

If the trooper feels a written warning will deter the driver from speeding again, then it can be just as effective as a ticket, Thomas said.

"WE FEEL WE'RE responsible for traffic safety," Thomas said of the State Police. "We handle almost no criminal cases except if they're involved in traffic cases."

"The most fundamental aspect of driving is speed. If a driver isn't conscious of that, will he be conscious of traffic lights

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Phillip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation.

"I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 25 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice president Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maline Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugallan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

and stop signs?"

Thomas said police are usually more concerned with drivers going 10 miles or more over the limit. "I look for the hazardous violator," Thomas said. "They're the potential accidents."

"If I'm out here, I don't have to be petty," he continued. "We have no 'quotas' (which require a certain number of tickets to be written in a period of time.) I don't have to write a ticket. I treat people the way I want to be treated, so when I make an arrest, I feel it is justified."

IF DRIVERS try to deny it (a speeding offense) too vigorously," Thomas said. "We simply show them the gun reading (which is linked by a trigger and holds the reading until the trigger is released.)"

"We have a problem sometimes in that we clock cars at a distance," Thomas explained. "By the time the driver sees us and glances down at his speedometer, he's already reduced his speed, so sometimes we have a hard time explaining it to him."

Some out-aged drivers, of course, just can't be quieted, Thomas said. "They ask for your badge number and your name and they say they're going to have your job and take you to court, all of which doesn't make our job any easier."

Of the four persons stopped that morning, only one attempted to deny the speeding charge.

WHILE POLICE will attempt to spot any violator, Thomas admitted truck drivers are usually eyed as speed demons. "Trucks are notorious speeders," he laughed. "They're almost professional mirror-watchers."

On a traffic stop, Thomas will check for other potential traffic or criminal violations. The truck driver he stopped was asked to produce a registration identification card which he is required to carry stating the weight limit the truck is allowed to carry, the maximum number of axles it is allowed, and related information.

The truck driver's name was radioed to the district headquarters, and Thomas was told within seconds that the driver had no record of previous convictions in Illinois.

WHEN THOMAS stopped three other auto drivers, he checked each driver's license for any driving restrictions, correct age and address, and the expiration date of the license. On stops made late at night, Thomas said teenagers found to be driving after curfew can be held, since a minor's license is invalid after curfew.

The excuses for speeding that morning ranged from "a stuck accelerator pedal" to "I'm on my lunch hour and I had to get to the store."

"People have always looked at law enforcement with disrespect," Thomas commented as traffic on Golf Road whizzed by. "They feel they should not be restricted. We want people to start thinking instead of just taking driving for granted."

SMOKE BILLOWS FROM the Service Merchandise Inc. store. The roof caved in, and several firefighters just escaped down ladders. Units from surrounding communities aided the Hoffman Estates Fire Department in fighting the blaze. The fire was under control in about six hours.

Four held in $1 million store fire

by STIRLING MORITA

Service Merchandise Inc. was to have a grand opening tomorrow at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center. But a monstrous fire thought to be arson-caused struck Saturday, causing damage roughly estimated at $1 million. Four Chicago men have been charged with arson in connection with the fire.

It was the largest fire ever in Hoffman Estates, fire officials said. Firemen from all over the area joined Hoffman Estates firefighters in a grim battle in the early morning drizzle to save the former W. T. Grant building. The fire alarm was given about 4 a.m.

Shortly before the fire report, four Chicago men were arrested by Schaumburg police after a traffic violation stop at Higgins and Roselle roads. In the car, there was about $2,500 worth of items thought taken from Service Merchandise, a catalog merchandise store, police said.

After subsequent investigation, Hoffman Estates police charged the four with burglary and arson.

THE SUSPECTS were identified as George Lawson, 20, of 4414 S. Oakwood; Steven Handy, 21, of 5817 S. Calumet; Demarvin Rodgers, 19, of 4331 Evans, and Craig Sanford, 19, of 4340 Evans. Sanford, Lawson and Handy were reportedly fired Wednesday from Service Merchandise.

Charges of possession of stolen property were filed against the four by Schaumburg police. Handy was also booked on charges of possession of burglary tools, having no driver's license on his person and driving without headlights on, and Lawson on a charge of unlawful use of weapons for having a pair of non-chachu (kung-fu) sticks, police reported.

Nearly 35 emergency vehicles — 13 of them fire engines — rushed to the one-story concrete building on the southern part of the shopping center on Roselle Road between Higgins and Golf roads. Authorities estimated that as many as 150 men may have been summoned to the scene.

State fire marshals were dispatched to investigate the blaze, but had no comments.

According to Hoffman Estates Fire Chief Carl Selke, the fire started in the rear of the 44,000-square-foot building and the heat was so intense it drove firefighters out when they first entered the building.

Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa said, "We're probably speaking in terms of a million-dollar fire here."

FAA checks out landing system

A low-flying DC-3 airplane circling this area Friday was carrying out a routine check of the instrument landing system at O'Hare Airport, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesman said Friday.

The checks are made frequently, usually at night, and are designed to insure that the electronic equipment which guides planes into O'Hare is accurate and conforms to FAA standards, the spokesman said.

The DC-3s used in the tests are scheduled to be replaced by smaller, faster jet airplanes.

building were drilled so firemen could douse the flames.

Selke said there was a lot of smoke at first, but when the roof caved in, the flames shot up.

"We had about 10 or 12 men on the roof, and it started going," Selke said. "I thought we lost a couple of guys at first. But everyone was okay."

The fire was under control about six hours after a nearby bakery had summoned firefighters to the scene. Firemen were still at the scene Saturday night to prevent flare-ups. One fire truck had to return about 3 p.m. when there was a minor flare-up.

Selke said the rain did not help contain the fire, but that "all it did was make us sweat."

THERE WERE no damages to the other stores in the shopping center. The blaze left behind only a concrete skeleton of a building. Fire officials said the remains of the store would have to be torn down.

Selke added that the sprinkler system for the store was being installed, but was not completed.

Fire departments called in to assist were Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights. A civil defense van with needed air packs and power drills was sent from Skokie.

The toy section of the Service Merchandise store was scheduled to open tomorrow, but the store had not been completely stocked yet, said Wendell Floyd, manager. He had no estimates on the value of the store's contents.

The merchandise in the store had been insured, Floyd said, watching firemen bring out soggy remains of the store's goods.

He added he did not know what the future of the store would be. Service Merchandise Inc. has branch stores throughout the South and had planned stores for the Chicagoland area. Construction had already begun for a 20,000-square-foot addition to the main building.

IN CONNECTION with the four arrests, Schaumburg police discovered two nearly-empty gasoline cans from the trunk of the car containing the four men. Chief Martin Conroy said the remaining liquid in the cans appeared to be of an inflammable type and that the one-and-two-gallon cans would be sent to the Chicago Crime Lab for analysis.

Recovered were stereo speakers, tuners, headphones, baby dolls, a toy truck, hair dryers, walkie-talkies and typewriters, Conroy said.

Patrolman Joseph Sortilo was returning to patrol duty from a call about 3:45 a.m. when he saw a car without headlights on turning east onto Higgins Road, police said. As he approached the suspect car, he saw items in the front and back seats and then radioed for assistance, police reported.

The men in the car claimed the equipment had fallen off a truck on the Dan Ryan Expressway, according to authorities.

Patrolman Roy Desmond assisted, and two of the four men were found hiding, crouching behind the front seat.

While at the scene, a motorist told authorities smoke was coming from the shopping center, and the report was radioed in to Hoffman Estates Police.

Conroy called the arrests "good police work," and added, "These are the things patrol manpower can really eat up."

Bonds were set at $25,000 for Lawson and Handy, $30,000 for Sanford and $25,000 for Rodgers. They are to appear Oct. 24 in Schaumburg Court.

All four were being held in Hoffman Estates jail pending bond hearings Monday.

A major obstacle, officials say

Gas line on property may foil driver station plans

by JULIA BAUER

State plans for a new driver testing station in southern Barrington Hills have hit a major snag with the discovery of a previously undetected gas line running through the 40-acre site.

Norbert Johnson, executive assistant to Illinois Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, said Friday that he has received a 60-day extension on the state's option for the proposed driver testing site. The state has held the option, which would have expired Wednesday, since June 10.

Engineers testing the soil and building conditions on the site discovered the gas line just two weeks ago, Johnson said.

WHEN ASKED IF the lines were a major stumbling block to purchasing the site, Johnson said, "Yes, I haven't had it re-researched, but I would be very reluctant to put a building up there with a gas line on the property."

Johnson blamed Chicago Title and Trust Co. for failing to report the gas line when the firm conducted a title search on the property for the state.

Chicago Title and Trust Co. could not be reached for comment. "I'm not going to spend any pennies to move that gas line. It will be paid for by Chicago Title and Trust to a great extent," Johnson said. The line will have to be moved before the state will agree to buy the land, according to Johnson. A decision on the gas line problem is expected by the end of the week.

The gas line discovery is the latest in a series of stumbling blocks in the path of a driver testing station to serve residents of the Northwest suburbs.

When state officials announced they had taken the option on the site at Ill. Rtes. 59 and 72 in June, members of a local search committee said they had eliminated the site from their recommendations to the state. The three-man committee, appointed by Republican former Sec. of State John Lewis, submitted their recommendations last spring to Howlett, a Democrat.

ACCORDING TO members of the committee, the Barrington Hills site is inaccessible to sewer line hookups from the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The recommendation committee also complained that the site was too difficult to get to from the Northwest Tollway and other major auto routes.

Nearly 18 months ago, the state rejected another site west of Palatine when poor soil conditions were discovered on the property. That site, on the west side of Quentin Road between Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, has since been rezoned for an apartment condominium development.

The current property has a reported price tag of $12,000 per acre.

ATTORNEYS FROM surrounding municipalities have met informally with Johnson to discuss possible problems resulting from the driver testing station location.

"I think we (the state's plans) are going to become acceptable. I've agreed to sit down in an official capacity when I know for sure we're going to actually buy the property," Johnson said.

The facility is expected to cost $15 million when completed. The nearest testing stations to the Northwest suburbs now are in Elgin and Lombard.

Police chief search panel near a choice?

Members of the Palatine police chief search committee are planning to submit their recommendation for chief to the village board by the end of this month.

The search is moving into its final stage, after the five-man committee finished interviewing 14 candidates last week. Now, the committee will compare its impressions of each of the 14 candidates and come up with one or more final candidates.

"Hopefully, we can come up with a recommendation by the end of this month. If there are two strong candidates, we would recommend two," explained committee chairman Joseph Kiszka. The committee's recommendations will be presented to the village board by Acting Village Mgr. James Bennett.

Before the committee submits its recommendation, it will ask the final candidates to take additional psychological tests. Some members may also visit the applicant's police department and community.

Search committee members include Bennett; Kiszka, deputy superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15; Herman Hertog, executive director of the Buehler YMCA; Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, and John D. Madl, director of the Police Service Bureau for the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police in Arlington Heights.

The committee was appointed in July, after the resignation of Police Chief Robert R. Centner. Lt. Frank Ortiz, appointed acting chief, is one of the 14 applicants being considered for the permanent position, along with Palatine Lt. Harold Nehmzow.

Executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time." "Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

GLUING CHICKEN BONES is the tail end of a science project sixth graders at Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak started last week. Students in Adelle Gregory's class first boiled the chickens — making chicken soup — then dried out the leftover bones. The youngsters started puzzling out how to put the skeletons back together after the bones were dry.

Centner hearing planned for Nov. 3

Nov. 3 tentatively has been scheduled as the public hearing date for ousted Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner.

The date was set at a meeting between attorneys for Centner and the village board Friday and is pending approval of the Palatine Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

The two attorneys met with Village Atty. Bradley Glass Friday to discuss charges against Centner, lay ground rules for the public hearing and establish the tentative public hearing date.

Details of the charges and ground rules will not be available until later this week, according to John Hayes, Centner's attorney.

JACK SIEGEL, attorney for the village board, said he is drawing up a written copy of the board's charges against Centner which will be presented to him later this week and made public after that time.

Ground rules for the public hearing will be drawn up by Glass this week and submitted to both Siegel and Hayes for approval.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he had been informed the hearing would be completed in one day and would probably be held from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. The findings of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners will be advisory only, according to Jones.

Formal charges against Centner are expected to follow the line of questioning village trustees pursued in June, when Centner was forced to resign. Board members charged him with ineffective control of overweight trucks, no surveillance of taverns for underage drinkers during early morning hours, a poor drug control program and low morale in the police department.

Centner has been working as a lieutenant in the police department since his resignation as chief June 25. As lieutenant, he is earning his chief's salary of $19,200.

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulke, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulke.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugellan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

An 'S' is added to PTA

by REGINA OEHLE

The Plum Grove PTA disappeared while trying to bridge the generation gap. In its place appeared a PTSA — the "S" stands for student.

The old PTA, in an attempt to open lines of communication between adults and junior high students voted to invite students into their organization last year.

A PTSA evolved. "We don't know what's going to happen, but I just know it's going to be good," said the new PTSA president, Jody Albrecht.

She said she had no guidelines to follow in developing the new organization. There are only a few PTSAs in the country, she added.

THE NEW PTSA is tentatively planning money-making projects and rap sessions with younger members. Mrs. Albrecht said she hopes that through working and talking with various adults, the youngsters will find someone they can confide in.

She said that many times children had problems in studies or with drugs that they were afraid to talk to their parents about.

"Until they know that you're for real and that you care, you don't get through to them," Mrs. Albrecht said. "If we help one or two of them become their best selves or better selves, I think it has been so worthwhile," she added.

PLUM GROVE Principal Charles Atkinson said he hopes that through meeting adults in the PTSA the students will feel more comfortable about talking with the over-30 generation.

Suggestion boxes for topics for the rap sessions will be scattered throughout the school. The PTSA is planning to survey the youngsters to find out what they would like to talk about.

The new PTSA will not provide an avenue for students to change school policies. Atkinson said there were other avenues students use to try to change school policies — specifically the student council.

RICK PERRY, who was president of the seventh grade class last year, said the PTSA, during its first few months, did help improve relations between students and adults.

"The students can get along a lot better with teachers," he said.

Dale Hallberg, formerly eighth grade class president said joining "did help the students know what was going on." Students found out at-ut dates and times of bake sales, car washes and ice cream socials.

HE ADDED that it served as a way of letting parents know what students wanted — for example, what kinds of books should be sold at a student book sale.

Mrs. Albrecht and Atkinson said that one of the objects of the PTSA was to help parents find out what the youngsters wanted.

"For youngsters of this age group, it seemed kind of ridiculous to do things without getting any input from them," Atkinson said.

Besides adding an "S" to the title, the youngsters have already added about 130 students to the organization, swelling the ranks of their new organization to about 301.

This is before their first yearly membership drive, according to PTSA president Jody Albrecht. But the biggest compliment, perhaps is the formation of two PTSAs in two more junior high schools — Palatine Hills and Carl Sandburg.

SMOKE BILLOWS FROM the Service Merchandise Inc. store. The roof caved in, and several firefighters just escaped down ladders. Units from surrounding communities aided the Hoffman Estates Fire Department in fighting the blaze. The fire was under control in about six hours. (Photos by Jay Needleman)

$1 million fire hits store; 4 charged

by STIRLING MORITA

Service Merchandise Inc. was to have a grand opening tomorrow at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center. But a monstrous fire thought to be arson-caused struck Saturday, causing damage roughly estimated at $1 million. Four Chicago men have been charged with arson in connection with the fire.

It was the largest fire ever in Hoffman Estates, fire officials said. Firemen from all over the area joined Hoffman Estates firefighters in a grim battle in the early morning drizzle to save the former W. T. Grant building. The fire alarm was given about 4 a.m.

Shortly before the fire report, four Chicago men were arrested by Schaumburg police after a traffic violation stop at Higgins and Roselle roads. In the car, there was about $2,500 worth of items thought taken from Service Merchandise, a catalog merchandise store, police said.

After subsequent investigation, Hoffman Estates police charged the four with burglary and arson.

THE SUSPECTS were identified as George Lawson, 20, of 4414 S. Oakwood; Steven Handy, 21, of 5617 S. Calumet; Demarvin Rodgers, 19, of 4331 Evans, Sanford, Lawson and Handy were reportedly fired Wednesday from Service Merchandise.

Charges of possession of stolen property were filed against the four by Schaumburg police. Handy was also booked on charges of possession of burglary tools, having no driver's license on his person and driving without headlights on, and Lawson on a charge of unlawful use of weapons for having a pair of non-chachu (kung-fu) sticks, police reported.

Nearly 35 emergency vehicles — 13 of them fire engines — rushed to the one-story concrete building on the southern part of the shopping center on Roselle Road between Higgins and Golf roads.

Authorities estimated that as many as 150 men may have been summoned to the scene.

State fire marshals were dispatched to investigate the blaze, but had no comments.

According to Hoffman Estates Fire Chief Carl Selke, the fire started in the rear of the 44,000-square-foot building and the heat was so intense it drove firefighters out when they first entered the building.

Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa said, "We're probably speaking in terms of a million-dollar fire here."

HOLES ON THE south side of the building were drilled so firemen could douse the flames.

Selke said there was a lot of smoke at first, but when the roof caved in, the flames shot up.

"We had about 10 or 12 men on the roof, and it started going," Selke said. "I thought we lost a couple of guys at first. But everyone was okay."

The fire was under control about six hours after a nearby bakery had summoned firefighters to the scene. Firemen were still at the scene Saturday night to prevent flare-ups. One fire truck had to return about 3 p.m. when there was a minor flare-up.

Selke said the rain did not help contain the fire, but that "all it did was make us sweat."

THERE WERE no damages to the other stores in the shopping center. The blaze left behind only a concrete skeleton of a building. Fire officials said the remains of the store would have to be torn down.

Selke added that the sprinkler system for the store was being installed, but was not completed.

Fire departments called in to assist were Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights. A civil defense van with needed air packs and power drills was sent from Skokie.

The toy section of the Service Merchandise store was scheduled to open tomorrow, but the store had not been completely stocked yet, said Wendell Floyd, manager. He had no estimates on the value of the store's contents.

The merchandise in the store had been insured, Floyd said, watching firemen bring out soggy remains of the store's goods.

He added he did not know what the future of the store would be. Service Merchandise Inc. has branch stores throughout the South and had planned stores for the Chicagoland area. Construction had already begun for a 20,000-square-foot addition to the main building.

IN CONNECTION with the four arrests, Schaumburg police discovered two nearly-empty gasoline cans from the trunk of the car containing the four men. Chief Martin Conroy said the remaining liquid in the cans appeared to be of an inflammable type and that the one-and-two-gallon cans would be sent to the Chicago Crime Lab for analysis.

Recovered were stereo speakers, tuners, headphones, baby dolls, a toy truck, hair dryers, walkie-talkies and typewriters, Conroy said.

Patrolman Joseph Sortino was returning to patrol duty from a call about 3:45 a.m. when he saw a car without headlights on turning east onto Higgins Road, police said. As he approached the suspect car, he saw items in the front and back seats and then radioed for assistance, police reported.

The men in the car claimed the equipment had fallen off a truck on the Dan Ryan Expressway, according to authorities.

Patrolman Roy Desmond assisted, and two of the four men were found hiding, crouching behind the front seat.

While at the scene, a motorist told authorities smoke was coming from the shopping center, and the report was radioed in to Hoffman Estates Police.

Conroy called the arrests "good police work," and added, "These are the things patrol manpower can really eat up."

Bonds were set at $35,000 for Lawson and Handy, $30,000 for Sanford and $25,000 for Rodgers. They are to appear Oct. 24 in Schaumburg Court.

All four were being held in Hoffman Estates jail pending bond hearings Monday.

Sewers backing up

Dump diapers? Don't do it!

by JOE SWICKARD

As Ed Norton used to say, "You never know what goes on down in the sewers."

The Metropolitan Sanitary District can tell you what goes through the sewers, but you might not believe it.

Earl Knight, of the MSD industrial waste section, said, "Oh, we got all kinds of things through here. You'd be amazed what people put through the sewers."

Besides the usual, the MSD reports everything from mattresses to grocery carts have turned up in their flowage; often causing backups.

And Arlington Heights has experienced several sewerage backups recently due to "disposable" diapers. The problem became so bad, the village published a warning in the municipal newsletter.

BILL REINHARD of the village public works department, outlined the problem in a memorandum to assistant village manager Darryl Kenning. According to Reinhard, new parents are apparently ignoring the diaper package's instruction to remove the plastic shield before flushing them away.

He said the plastic prevents the paper diaper from dissolving as it was designed to do. The result is a plastic-coated, watertight seal in the sewer pipes, he said.

Persons upstream from the blockage can testify when sewerage cannot progress as planned, it must emerge somewhere.

When asked about the diapers, Rolling Meadows Public Works Supt. John Hennessy proclaimed fervently: "We hate, hate, hate them! They're always been a problem. They're not biodegradable. They tend to reach a 90-degree turn and then clog."

REINHARD, after clearing several local blockages (twice in the same line), surmised the problem may also be compounded with the manner in which the diapers are disposed. He said it appeared the parents were saving several diapers and then flushing them all at once.

Knight explained what doesn't happen with the plastic covered diapers. "We're not very happy with them. You see, the plastic has a very high cellulose content. This makes them not very biodegradable. They will break down, but not right away. This is primarily a local problem. Our pipes are much bigger than the municipalities use, so the diapers don't clog them up."

The MSD pipes also have screens of varying gauges to filter out larger items that might cause problems. Knight said they have a machine similar to a garbage grinder which effectively reduces most things to a manageable size.

"We can always expect to find unusual things in the sewers. People even put old mattresses down manholes. If there's something they want to get rid of, they just put it down a manhole. Grocery carts are another headache. Kids steal the carts from parking lots and shove them into streams," he said.

KNIGHT SAID the MSD was considering billing the stores for removing the carts. He said the stores claim insurance on the stolen carts, which are often the older, damaged ones which have to be replaced anyway.

Rolling Meadows' Hennessy was blunt commenting on the sewerage. "I'd just rather not discuss the kinds of other things found in the sewers!"

Knight extended an invitation: "You really should come down to our screening rooms sometime. You'd really be surprised."

FAA checks out landing system

A low-flying DC-3 airplane circling this area Friday was carrying out a routine check of the instrument landing system at O'Hare Airport, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesman said Friday.

The checks are made frequently, usually at night, and are designed to insure that the electronic equipment which guides planes into O'Hare is accurate and conforms to FAA standards, the spokesman said.

The DC-3s used in the tests are scheduled to be replaced by smaller, faster jet airplanes.

A major obstacle, officials say

by JULIA BAUER

State plans for a new driver testing station in southern Barrington Hills have hit a major snag with the discovery of a previously undetected gas line running through the 40-acre site.

Norbert Johnson, executive assistant to Illinois Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, said Friday that he has received a 90-day extension on the state's option for the proposed driver testing site. The state has held the option, which would have expired Wednesday, since June 19.

Engineers testing the soil and building conditions on the site discovered the gas line just two weeks ago, Johnson said.

WHEN ASKED IF the lines were a major stumbling block to purchasing the site, Johnson said, "Yes, I haven't had it researched, but I would be very reluctant to put a building up there with a gas line on the property."

Johnson blamed Chicago Title and Trust Co. for failing to report the gas line when the firm conducted a title search on the property for the state.

Chicago Title and Trust Co. could not be reached for comment. "I'm not going to spend any pennies to move that gas line. It will be paid for by Chicago Title and Trust to a great extent," Johnson said. The line will have to be moved before the state will agree to buy the land, according to Johnson. A decision on the gas line problem is expected by the end of the week.

The gas line discovery is the latest in a series of stumbling blocks in the path of a driver testing station to serve residents of the Northwest suburbs.

When state officials announced they had taken the option on the site at Ill. Rtes. 59 and 72 in June, members of a local search committee said they had eliminated the site from their recommendations to the state. The three-man committee, appointed by Republican former Sec. of State John Lewis, submitted their recommendations last spring to Howlett, a Democrat.

ACCORDING TO members of the committee, the Barrington Hills site is inaccessible to sewer line hookups from the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The recommendation committee also complained that the site was too difficult to get to from the Northwest Tollway and other major auto routes.

Nearly 18 months ago, the state rejected another site west of Palatine when poor soil conditions were discovered on the property. That site, on the west side of Quentin Road between Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, has since been rezoned for an apartment condominium development.

The current property has a reported price tag of $12,000 per acre.

ATTORNEYS FROM surrounding municipalities have met informally with Johnson to discuss possible problems resulting from the driver testing station location.

"I think we (the state's plans) are going to become acceptable. I've agreed to sit down in an official capacity when I know for sure we're going to actually buy the property," Johnson said.

The facility is expected to cost $1.5 million when completed. The nearest testing stations to the Northwest suburbs now are in Elgin and Lombard.

Try recycling junk

Recycling will take place again this week in Rolling Meadows. A recycling drive for residents of the Meadow Trace apartments will take place Thursday from 2 to 7:30 p.m. behind the White Hen store in the Meadow Square shopping center.

City-wide recycling will take place Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the public works building, 3200 Central Rd.

A $25 rent credit will be awarded in a drawing to an individual contributing to the Meadow Trace drive. Two shampoos and sets will also be awarded from Mr. Daniels' salon in the Meadow Square shopping center.

Persons may also register for the monthly bicycle drawing by turning in a card with their name on it plus the name of a new recycler whom they have introduced to the program. Names of new recyclers must be on the card in order to be eligible for the drawing.

GLUING CHICKEN BONES is the tail end of a science project sixth graders at Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak started last week. Students in Adelle Gregory's class then dried out the leftover bones. The youngsters started puzzling out how to put the skeletons back together after the bones were dry.

Chest fund drive reaches $1,973 to date

The Community Chest drive in Rolling Meadows has collected $1,973 toward a $9,020 goal.

"I'd say it is pretty decent to date," Al Carlsen, a director for the drive, said Friday. Contributions to date have come primarily from residents. Industrial and business solicitation has yet to begin, Carlsen said.

The fund-raising drive will be held through October, which has been proclaimed Community Chest Month in Rolling Meadows by Mayor Roland Meyer. Last year contributions totaled $8,300 from homeowners, businesses and industry.

The theme for the campaign this year is "A Dollar A Month," or $12 from each family and organization in the city. The drive is held in conjunction with the Chicago Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy.

CONTRIBUTIONS are solicited by mail, but a special door-to-door campaign will be made in the city's residential area by the Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls on Saturday.

Contributions may be sent to the Rolling Meadows Community Chest, P. O. Box 8500, Rolling Meadows, 60008.

In addition to Carlsen, directors of the drive this year are Jim Zaloudek, president; Elaine Werling, executive vice president and campaign chairman; Frank Carroll, industrial campaign chairman; Frank Catini, treasurer; Billy McMinn, business campaign chairman; Carmen Vinezano, publicity chairman, and Deane Wanderssee, secretary.

Money collected in the drive locally is contributed to local chapters of the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, the Northwest Mental Health Association, the USO, the Salvation Army, and the Family Services branch of the Salvation Army.

Apartment destroyed at Three Fountains

A fire at Three Fountains destroyed one second-story apartment, causing about $30,000 damage, according to the Rolling Meadows Fire Dept.

The fire apparently started from a portable grill on which the resident, Steve Klouths, was grilling food.

Klouths, 3201 Carlingway Dr., told firemen he had left the food cooking in the kitchen and gone into the living room for a while, according to acting fire chief L.A. Ted Loesch.

When he returned, the carpeting and some of the lower cabinets had caught fire.

Neighbors called the fire department and the fire was out about one hour later, Loesch said. The apartment was destroyed except for the bedroom, which suffered considerable smoke damage, according to Loesch.

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation.

"I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 23 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugallan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

Park district wrapup

Concession stand to be replaced with vending machines

The concession stand at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex will be closed as soon as the existing supply of food runs out.

The park district board of commissioners voted Thursday to close the stand and put in vending machines. "The concession stand was not doing as well as we'd like," said Park Supt. Stephen Person.

He said that with vending machines, the park district estimates a profit of around $1,000. In the past, with a few vending machines and the concession stand, the district had been breaking even, he said.

"We're getting rid of the overhead," Person said. The park board voted to sell their skate sharpening machine and lease the business to Sports Sales Inc., which runs the pro shop in the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

Park Supt. Stephen Person said Friday that the district was not making much of a profit with the sharpening business. Last month, the district only made $58, he added. No yearly estimate is available.

By selling the equipment, the district will receive about $300, Person said. Sports Sales Inc. is leasing the business at a cost of $900 a year.

New park gets name

The park board voted to accept the suggestion of Gloria Ormerod, 4660 Dawngate Ln., to name the new park in the Creekside-Dawn area Meadow Trails.

Supt. Stephen Person said Gloria will receive a season's pass to the skating rink as her prize. The park district held a contest to name the park.

Semi-pro teams here

The Chicago Warriors, a semi professional Chicago hockey team, may play the Marquette Iron Rangers (from Marquette, Mich.) in the Sports Complex ice skating arena Nov. 17.

The park board Thursday approved renting the arena to the team from 8 to 11 p.m. Coach Gene Urbiano said the team might play the first four games in the sports complex, but no definite arrangements have been made as yet. The team's stadium, being built in Villa Park, will not be ready until December.

Jaycees' winter olympics

The park board agreed to let the Jaycees use the ice arena Dec. 29 for the annual J.C. Winter Olympics.

The olympics will include skating, snowball throwing, sled races and contests for the best snowmen.

$1 million fire hits store; 4 charged

by STIRLING MORITA

Service Merchandise Inc. was to have a grand opening tomorrow at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center. But a monstrous fire thought to be arson-caused struck Saturday, causing damage roughly estimated at $1 million. Four Chicago men have been charged with arson in connection with the fire.

It was the largest fire ever in Hoffman Estates, fire officials said. Firemen from all over the area joined Hoffman Estates firefighters in a grim battle in the early morning drizzle to save the former W. T. Grant building. The fire alarm was given about 4 a.m.

Shortly before the fire report, four Chicago men were arrested by Schaumburg police after a traffic violation stop at Higgins and Roselle roads. In the car, there was about $2,500 worth of items thought taken from Service Merchandise, a catalog merchandise store, police said.

After subsequent investigation, Hoffman Estates police charged the four with burglary and arson.

THE SUSPECTS were identified as George Lawson, 20, of 4414 S. Oak-enwald; Steven Handy, 21, of 5617 S. Calumet; Demarvin Rodgers, 19, of 4331 Evans, and Craig Sanford, 19, of 4340 Evans. Sanford, Lawson and Handy were reportedly fired Wednesday from Service Merchandise.

Charges of possession of stolen property were filed against the four by Schaumburg police. Handy was also booked on charges of possession of burglary tools, having no driver's license on his person and driving without headlights on, and Lawson on a charge of unlawful use of weapons for having a pair of non-chacha (kung-fu) sticks, police reported.

Nearly 35 emergency vehicles — 15 of them fire engines — rushed to the one-story concrete building on the southern part of the shopping center on Roselle Road between Higgins and Golf roads. Authorities estimated that as many as 150 men may have been summoned to the scene.

State fire marshals were dispatched to investigate the blaze, but had no comments.

According to Hoffman Estates Fire Chief Carl Selke, the fire started in the rear of the 44,000-square-foot building and the heat was so intense it drove firefighters out when they first entered the building.

Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa said, "We're probably speaking in terms of a million-dollar fire here."

HOLES ON THE south side of the building were drilled so firemen could douse the flames.

Selke said there was a lot of smoke at first, but when the roof caved in, the flames shot up.

"We had about 10 or 12 men on the roof, and it started going," Selke said. "I thought we lost a couple of guys at first. But everyone was okay."

The fire was under control about six hours after a nearby bakery had summoned firefighters to the scene. Firemen were still at the scene Saturday night to prevent flare-ups. One fire truck had to return about 3 p.m. when there was a minor flare-up.

Selke said the rain did not help contain the fire, but that "all it did was make us sweat."

Terry Van Rhoads

Terry Van Rhoads, 26, of Streamwood, a member of Brotherhood of Carpenters and Journeymen Union, Local No. 839 in Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival Thursday evening at Sherman Hospital, Elgin, apparently from injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident on Rt. 20 and Naperville Rd. in Bartlett. He was born Oct. 30, 1946, in Ohio.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. today in Bartwood Memorial Chapel, Route 20, Bartlett. Burial will be in River Valley Memorial Gardens Cemetery, West Dundee.

Surviving are his widow, Linda, nee Cox; two sons, Terry Van II, and Mark Allen, both at home; mother, Mrs. Donald Rhoads of DeGraff, Ohio, and two brothers, Roger and Steve Rhoads, both of Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Men's lib invades Lincoln kindergarten

by REGINA OEHLER

"I am not an oddity," said Dan Mathis, a blond-haired, blue-eyed college senior who wants to teach kindergarten.

Though he admits male kindergarten teachers are rare, Mathis, a student teacher in Palatine Rolling Meadows School Dist. 15, said he does not feel unusual.

The kindergarten children generally don't know enough about school to realize how few male kindergarten teachers there are, and the parents, after a brief look of surprise, accept him, he said.

There are no male teachers in kindergarten, first or second grade in the surrounding area, according to Mathis.

"Everything that I experience is almost identical to what a lady student teacher would experience," he added. The girls instead of the boys develop crushes, but the situations and solutions still are similar to what a female teacher faces, he said.

HIS MOST UNUSUAL experience since he began student teaching at Lincoln School, 1021 Ridgewood, Palatine, was cleaning shoes with a first grader, Mathis said.

One boy walked into class during the first week of school with muddy shoes. The first grade teacher, noticing mud on the floor, asked which of the children had dirty shoes. The boy left the classroom and started crying.

Mathis, temporarily assigned to the first grade class, said he was closest to the door and therefore the first to reach the boy. The teacher let him handle the situation.

"Talking doesn't help; cleaning does," Mathis said. While Mathis and the boy cleaned the mud off, the child stopped crying and later returned to the classroom much happier.

An 'S' finds its way into the PTA

by REGINA OEHLER

The Plum Grove PTA disappeared while trying to bridge the generation gap. In its place appeared a PTSA — the "S" stands for student.

The old PTA, in an attempt to open lines of communication between adults and junior high students voted to invite students into their organization last year.

A PTSA evolved. "We don't know what's going to happen, but I just know it's going to be good," said the new PTSA president, Jody Albrecht.

She said she had no guidelines to follow in developing the new organization. There are only a few PTSAs in the country, she added.

THE NEW PTSA is tentatively planning money-making projects and rap sessions with younger members. Mrs. Albrecht said she hopes that through working and talking with various adults, the youngsters will find someone they can confide in.

She said that many times children had problems in studies or with drugs that they were afraid to talk to their parents about.

"Until they know that you're for real and that you care, you don't get through to them," Mrs. Albrecht said. "If we help one or two of them become their best selves or better selves, I think it has been so worthwhile," she added.

PLUM GROVE Principal Charles Atkinson said he hopes that through meeting adults in the PTSA the students will feel more comfortable about talking with the over-30 generation.

Suggestion boxes for topics for the rap sessions will be scattered throughout the school. The PTSA is planning to survey the youngsters to find out what they would like to talk about.

The new PTSA will not provide an avenue for students to change school policies. Atkinson said there were other avenues students use to try to change school policies — specifically the student council.

RICK PERRY, who was president of the seventh grade class last year, said the PTSA, during its first few months, did help improve relations between students and adults.

"The students can get along a lot better with teachers," he said.

THERE WERE no damages to the other stores in the shopping center. The blaze left behind only a concrete skeleton of a building. Fire officials said the remains of the store would have to be torn down.

Selke added that the sprinkler system for the store was being installed, but was not completed.

Fire departments called in to assist were Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights. A civil defense van with needed air packs and power drills was sent from Skokie.

The toy section of the Service Merchandise store was scheduled to open tomorrow, but the store had not been completely stocked yet, said Wendell Floyd, manager. He had no estimates on the value of the store's contents.

The merchandise in the store had been insured, Floyd said, watching firemen bring out soggy remains of the store's goods.

He added he did not know what the future of the store would be. Service Merchandise Inc. has branch stores throughout the South and had planned stores for the Chicagoland area. Construction had already begun for a 20,000-square-foot addition to the main building.

IN CONNECTION with the four arrests, Schaumburg police discovered two nearly-empty gasoline cans from the trunk of the car containing the four men. Chief Martin Conroy said the remaining liquid in the cans appeared to be of an inflammable type and that the one-and-two-gallon cans would be sent to the Chicago Crime Lab for analysis.

Recovered were stereo speakers, tuners, headphones, baby dolls, a toy truck, hair dryers, walkie-talkies and typewriters, Conroy said.

Patrolman Joseph Sortino was returning to patrol duty from a call about 3:45 a.m. when he saw a car without headlights on turning east onto Higgins Road, police said. As he approached the suspect car, he saw items in the front and back seats and then radioed for assistance, police reported.

Pass park referendum; nix ambulance

Ambulance tax loses, 290-157

Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District officials were sorely disappointed Saturday about the defeat of a proposed ambulance tax. It was defeated 290 to 157.

William Brilliant, president of the district's board of trustees, left quickly after announcing the results. Precinct vote breakdowns were not immediately available.

Tom Cussen, board trustee, said the issue would have to be put before the voters again because of the poor financial position of the district.

The district was asking for authorization to levy a tax for ambulance service. The maximum rate allowed by state law is 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation. District officials had said they would probably need a tax rate of between 10 and 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation for the first year.

"IT'S A STEP backwards," Cussen said about the defeat.

"As Hoffman Estates develops, the ambulance service must develop — or worsen," he added.

Cussen said the present ambulance service will continue and the district will try to maintain the service at its highest standard. Ambulance service has been free to persons since 1957. But recently, officials have said increased ambulance calls and expensive paramedic training have added to the financial burden of the district.

Cussen attributed some of the defeat to reluctance of some people to raise their own taxes.

"We're not building a fire station. We're building a service," he said. "What is a service worth?"

THE FIRE DISTRICT has been in financial straits. It announced earlier this year that it anticipates a $32,000 debt by the end of the fiscal year in May, 1974.

Officials were hoping to use some of the ambulance funds to pay part of the paramedic's salaries, thus freeing funds in the general operating budget to pay off the debts.

The ambulance service has been funded through the general operating budget, and officials have maintained that only fire protection should be funded through the district's general tax rate of 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Parks issue passes, 1,362-340

The Schaumburg Park Board of Commissioners was jubilant, elated Saturday night after both sections of a $2.5 million referendum passed overwhelmingly by margins of four-to-one.

Voters approved the $1.8 million park improvements section by 1,362 to 340. The $700,000 land acquisition portion was passed 1,253 to 287.

The only dissenting district was precinct four, which included part of the Village of Roselle within the district's boundaries. Voters there voted 11 yes's and 15 no's for both proposals.

"I'm pleased, delighted, elated... excited about what is in store for the Schaumburg Park District and for the people of the district," said Paul Derda, director of the park district.

Under the park improvements section, there were plans for development at 13 park and park-school sites, an enclosure over Atcher Pool, an Olympic-sized pool to be built at Meineke Park, tennis courts, a maintenance garage, lighted recreation fields and an outdoor hockey rink.

THE $700,000 will be added to $90,000 the Village of Schaumburg has set aside for land acquisition in Spring Valley. The village and park district have plans for a nature center in the general area near Schaumburg Road between Plum Grove and Meacham roads.

John Brandenburg, vice-president of the board of commissioners, said the voters had "put another page in the Schaumburg Park District's history book."

Joseph Roberts Jr., newly-elected commissioner, said "I think it shows we have surveyed the needs of the people and given them what they wanted."

The average homeowner will pay about $13 a year in additional taxes for the first five years. After that, the yearly tax figure will drop considerably, officials have said. The bonds are expected to be retired in 15 years.

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation. "I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 25 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugallan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

4-year-old's injury spurs action

Babysitter emergency training pays off

by STIRLING MORITA

When babysitter Terri Lewandowski saw blood oozing from 4-year-old Robert Janus Jr.'s neck last week, she didn't panic and she acted quickly — thanks to a special babysitter course conducted by the Hoffman Estates Jaycees.

Robert had taken a flying leap at the living room davenport Thursday night, and his momentum propelled him head first through a window pane. He suffered a 2-inch deep gash on his neck, only a fraction of an inch away from his jugular vein.

Twelve-year-old Terri, who had memorized the emergency phone number to the Hoffman Estates Fire Department, quickly summoned an ambulance. In about 1½ minutes, paramedics from nearby Fire Station No. 1 reached the Janus home at 105 Illinois Blvd.

Paramedic Terrence O'Callahan and volunteer Scott Sutherland had the bleeding stopped within seconds.

Robert was transported to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where three doctors administered emergency care. Robert received about 40 stitches. Although he had lost a considerable amount of blood, the boy was permitted to recuperate at home.

TERRI, 117 Illinois Blvd., credited her fast actions to the course she took at the start of the year sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Jaycee Wives. Nurses, paramedics and police had instructed the babysitter on how to act in emergency cases.

Terri did not feel any emotions when she saw the injury and the blood all over the living room, but knew she had to act quickly, she said.

Terri said she was in the kitchen getting treats for Robert when she heard him scream. She was rushing from the kitchen when she met the bleeding boy. She sat him down, called authorities, and they were there almost immediately, she said.

Robert's mother, Anne, said, "I couldn't have been happier to have the babysitter than I had at the time."

"I don't know if I myself would have the presence of mind to work as quickly as she did," said Mrs. Janus, who had been on a shopping trip.

MRS. JANUS said she was glad she helped set up the babysitter program

Terri had attended. Her husband, Robert Sr., is a former president of the Jaycees. "We're very grateful to the paramedics," she added.

She said she thought highly of the fire department's paramedic program and added, "If anyone has any extra money they should go down to the fire department and donate it to put a fireman through paramedic school."

She said she had seen the paramedics in life-saving actions at least twice in her neighborhood. "I've seen them do a fantastic job," she added.

FAA checks out landing system

A low-flying DC-3 airplane circling this area Friday was carrying out a routine check of the instrument landing system at O'Hare Airport, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesman said Friday.

The checks are made frequently, usually at night, and are designed to insure that the electronic equipment which guides planes into O'Hare is accurate and conforms to FAA standards, the spokesman said.

The DC-3s used in the tests are scheduled to be replaced by smaller, faster jet airplanes.

School district gets praise as 'model' by state official

Commendations for a job well done outweigh recommendations for improvements in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

The district has received a letter of praise from the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction describing it as "a model for Illinois."

The critique follows several inspection visits from the OSPI and came with a notice that District 54 is recommended for full state recognition.

In a letter to Wayne Schaible, superintendent of schools, Richard N. Small, OSPI director of recognition and supervision said "Dist. 54, although beset with growing pains, a transitory population and financial limitation, has done well."

The report had specific praise for Schaible, his administrative staff, teachers, financial management, special services, nature programs, curriculum coordinators and the custodial and maintenance program.

FURTHER recommendations for improvement are:

- Review the need for data processing to facilitate record keeping.

- Consider the proximity of creeks and traffic to play areas and consider enlarging some areas. Keep gym areas clear of all furniture except gym equipment.

- Expand family living instruction to include kindergarten through eighth grade instead of just fifth and sixth grades as is done now.

- Encourage staff to develop skills further; give them more free time for job preparations.

- Consider full time librarian and a program for exceptionally gifted children. Also, additional nurses and more clerical help in larger schools.

- More after school activities and sports, especially in fifth and sixth grades.

Schaible and the board of education will meet in committee to review and discuss the report and must within a month tell the OSPI how it intends to resolve any problem or situation which prompted recommendations.

To build new bank on Busse

Mount Prospect State Bank tells plans for expansion

The Mount Prospect State Bank, the largest business in downtown Mount Prospect, is making plans to expand.

Bank president Richard Padula outlined preliminary plans over the weekend to build a new bank just east of the present facility at 15 E. Busse Ave. and containing more than three times the space.

Padula's brief remarks were made at the full quarterly meeting of village leaders Saturday at Evans restaurant, where general plans for the future of downtown Mount Prospect were discussed.

Plans to expand the bank, which confirmed earlier reports, are considered a key step in the revitalization of the village's central business district.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert suggested that a "strategy map" listing each parcel of downtown property and its owner be compiled by the village administration to aid in further downtown planning.

HE REMARKED that as far as specific changes in the central business district are concerned, "anything is possible."

"We collectively, the people, control and own this town, if you will. The idea is, anything goes. Whatever your commissions and boards want to make in the way of suggestions, no matter who knows how wild they may sound, will be considered."

Several suggestions were aired by the officials present, including Jack W. Seto, the village planner, and C.O. Schlaver, executive director of the chamber of commerce.

Seto proposed allowing construction of multi-use buildings, which would contain shops, offices and apartments. Another alternative, he said, would be a ramp-type garage for commuter parking to cut down on the amount of land needed for parking spaces. He also suggested a boutique-type shopping center and an indoor public meeting facility.

Schlaver listed numerous suggestions which he indicated would be beneficial to the downtown merchants: More parking, nearby apartments, a shopping mall, a new post office and railroad depot, and creation of a development company similar to one in Des Plaines to coordinate downtown revitalization.

TELCHEMT likened downtown planning to a "damned if you do, damned if you don't" syndrome. "There is nothing that won't be criticized by some group and sometimes quite violently," he said.

He implored the village trustees, planning commissioners and zoning board of appeals members, however, to "help fulfill our obligation by resolving these problems and thinking in terms of Mount Prospect in 10 or 20 or 30 years."

The Mount Prospect State Bank's plans for expansion should serve its needs through 1981, according to the bank president, Padula.

The new bank will be along Busse Avenue, between Emerson and Maple streets, just north of the bank's drive-in facility, which will continue in use.

The old bank building will be available for sale or lease, according to Padula. It is possible that the village itself may look into buying the bank for use as a new village hall.

Construction of the new bank, which will be 60,000 square feet — considerably more than the present 18,000 square foot facility — is expected to begin next year, with completion projected for 1975.

Mount Shire Club liquor license discussion tonight

The controversial request for a liquor license at the Mount Shire Club will be discussed tonight by the finance committee of the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The club, at 1841 W. Golf Rd., has been operating as a bottle club, in which members bring their own liquor.

However, after the arrest of two employees in July for allegedly selling liquor without a village liquor license, the club applied for a license.

Residents of the nearby Mount Shire apartment complex have supported the move to issue a liquor license to the club, while homeowners in the area have opposed it.

The finance committee is expected to make a recommendation tonight to pass on to the village board. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Prospect Heights lines OK'd by group

Proposed boundaries for the City of Prospect Heights were approved last week by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association. Included are parts of Waterman Avenue which Arlington Heights finds objectionable and parts of the Rob Roy Golf Course which Mount Prospect finds objectionable.

The boundaries follow almost exactly previously announced boundaries. A portion of Pal-Waukee Airport is still included.

PHIA officials hope to have their incorporation petition before the courts late this year and a referendum next spring.

Resident charged with disorderly conduct

A 28-year-old Mount Prospect man was charged with disorderly conduct last week after he allegedly became abusive to a policeman over a speeding ticket.

Robert J. DiMucci, 1818 Willow Ln., was arrested Thursday afternoon and charged with disorderly conduct and speeding, police said. According to police, DiMucci was stopped after he was clocked with radar as going 57 mph in a 40 mph zone at Busse Road and Pleasant Trail.

Police said DiMucci stopped his car at 15th and Willow Lane and tried to persuade the policeman into not issuing a ticket. DiMucci began swearing when his permission failed, police said, and he walked away from the scene.

DiMucci will appear Nov. 14 in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

State advice on Maryville site misleading

by JILL BETTNER

A news analysis

The Dist. 26 School Board apparently relied too heavily on a recommendation by the Illinois Capital Development Board in choosing the site for the new Maryville school.

On the advice of the ICDB, which oversees the construction of all public schools, the Dist. 26 board in August voted to build the school on the River Trails Junior High School site. School Board Pres. Lloyd Demel and board member Michael Sheyker voted "no."

Two weeks ago, the board rescinded that decision and chose a five-acre site on Gregory Street as the best site for the new facility. The site is part of the Maryville Academy property in Des Plaines.

The school board depended entirely on the ICDB to research possible sites for the Maryville school. The hunt began about June 15, according to Demel.

AFTER THE ICDB researched eight sites in a month and a half, the school board voted Aug. 7 to build the school on the junior high site.

Demel said he felt the school board should have taken longer to decide on the site. The board was pressured, he said, into making a decision by the ICDB so the school could be built by next fall.

After angered residents protested the Aug. 7 decision, the board set up a citizens' committee to study alternative sites and hired a civil engineer. The reports of both revealed several facts uncovered by the ICDB.

The ICDB failed to inform the board before its Aug. 7 decision that a water retention facility required by the Metropolitan Sanitary District would have to be included on the new school site.

That information, Demel said, was the overriding factor in the board's reversal of its earlier decision. There is no room at the junior high school for a retention facility, Demel said, without cutting into land designated by the park district for a track. The Gregory Street site is large enough to accommodate a retention facility.

DEMEL SAID it did not occur to the board to check with the MSD on retention requirements.

"The board is a policymaking body," he said. "It doesn't generally get into detailed discussions with engineers."

The ICDB had told the board that it would cost approximately $55,000 more to develop the Gregory Street site than the junior high site. That conclusion was reversed by the civil engineer.

Other facts uncovered by the civil engineer and the citizens' committee were that an underground sewer said by the ICDB to run through the Gregory Street site had not existed for 40 years. Also, that the Maryville administration is planning to build a road to new student housing that will accommodate school traffic.

ALTHOUGH DEMEL said he was "very uncomfortable" because the ICDB never submitted information about the sites to the board in writing, a trip to Springfield to talk with ICDB engineers reassured him that the board could depend on their recommendation as the best site available.

"It was totally appropriate for us to depend on the ICDB," Demel said. "The information we obtained from them led us to believe that we could have good faith in their conclusions."

Demel said the board also relied on architects hired by the ICDB to confirm the ICDB engineer's site evaluations. However, after working on plans for the school for only 2½ days, the ICDB architects were pulled off the job when it was learned by the agency that the school site might be changed.

DEMEL SAID it was "nothing more than wishful thinking" to have hoped that the architects could provide the reasons behind the ICDB recommendation.

"Looking at it in retrospect, I've felt that we were pressured to move so quickly to approve the site that we were steamrollered," Demel said.

"I'd say now that we really should have hired the civil engineer before we made the decision (on the River Trails site)," Demel continued. "The problem is, at what point do you make the judgment that a professional group is not providing you with good input?"

Due to the delay in reevaluating sites and changing its decision, there is some question as to whether the Dist. 26 school board will be able to complete the new Maryville school by September.

If it is not finished, the board must seek permission from the state to continue using the River Road School, built before the turn of the century.

THE BUILDING has been declared unfit and unsafe for students by the Illinois Life Safety agency. Misplaced faith in the ICDB and failure by the board to take more initiative in finding the answers to important questions may mean students to be forced to stay there, anyway.

Even though it is true that a school board "is only a policymaking body," as Demel said, to make good policy, the board must have all the facts.

The board is responsible, ultimately, for any decision. That means it must also take the responsibility for checking and doublechecking the facts before taking any action.

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near-unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation.

"I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 23 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and that his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fulle, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fulle.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugalian, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

A major obstacle, officials say

Gas line on property may foil driver station plans

by JULIA BAUER

State plans for a new driver testing station in southern Barrington Hills have hit a major snag with the discovery of a previously undetected gas line running through the 40-acre site.

Norbert Johnson, executive assistant to Illinois Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, said Friday that he has received a 60-day extension on the state's option for the proposed driver testing site. The state has held the option, which would have expired Wednesday, since June 19.

Engineers testing the soil and building conditions on the site discovered the gas line just two weeks ago, Johnson said.

WHEN ASKED IF the lines were a major stumbling block to purchasing the site, Johnson said, "Yes, I haven't had it researched, but I would be very reluctant to put a building up there with a gas line on the property."

Johnson blamed Chicago Title and Trust Co. for failing to report the gas line when the firm conducted a title search on the property for the state.

Chicago Title and Trust Co. could not be reached for comment. "I'm not going to spend any pennies to move that gas line. It will be paid for by Chicago Title and Trust to a great extent," Johnson said. The line will have to be moved before the state will agree to buy the land, according to Johnson. A decision on the gas line problem is expected by the end of the week.

The gas line discovery is the latest in a series of stumbling blocks in the path of a driver testing station to serve residents of the Northwest suburbs.

When state officials announced they had taken the option on the site at Ill. Rtes. 59 and 72 in June, members of a local search committee said they had eliminated the site from their recommendations to the state. The three-man committee, appointed by Republican former Sec. of State John Lewis, submitted their recommendations last spring to Howlett, a Democrat.

ACCORDING TO members of the committee, the Barrington Hills site is inaccessible to sewer line hookups from the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The recommendation committee also complained that the site was too difficult to get to from the Northwest Tollway and other major auto routes.

Nearly 18 months ago, the state rejected another site west of Palatine when poor soil conditions were discovered on the property. That site, on the west side of Quentin Road between Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, has since been rezoned for an apartment condominium development.

The current property has a reported price tag of $12,000 per acre.

ATTORNEYS FROM surrounding municipalities have met informally with Johnson to discuss possible problems resulting from the driver testing station location.

"I think we (the state's plans) are going to become acceptable. I've agreed to sit down in an official capacity when I know for sure we're going to actually buy the property," Johnson said.

The facility is expected to cost $1.5 million when completed. The nearest testing stations to the Northwest suburbs now are in Elgin and Lombard.

Truck driver charges battery in beating at race track

An Oak Park truck driver has charged two Pape Security Co. guards with battery after he allegedly was beaten with billy clubs during the Pacific Stereo show at Arlington Park last month.

According to Arlington Heights police, Patrick Hogan, the trucker said he was beaten by three guards when he tried to aid a woman. Hogan told police he jumped from his truck when he saw a Pacific employee have something grabbed from her hands.

Frank Goldberg, Roosevelt Payne and another unidentified Pape employee attacked Hogan, believing him to be the one who was involved with the woman, police said.

The police report of the incident said the three guards, one with an arm hold around Hogan's throat, dragged him toward a stairway at the west end of the clubhouse. When police arrived, Goldberg allegedly was holding Hogan while Payne and the other guard had their billy clubs drawn.

Hogan was taken to Northwest Community Hospital after the incident where he was treated for head injuries and released.

Hogan pressed the battery charges after conferring with the state's attorney's office.

Goldberg and Payne surrendered to Arlington Heights police Wednesday and were released on a $1,000 bond each. A court date of Oct. 26 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court has been set.

2 scavenger firms to appear tonight

Representatives of the Laseke Disposal Co. and SCA Services Inc., two firms competing for a five-year garbage contract with the Village of Arlington Heights, are expected to appear before the village board tonight.

The trustees are scheduled to consider a recommendation from the finance committee which last week voted 2-1 in favor of awarding the contract to SCA Services.

TV transit special to include Walsh

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh is scheduled to appear on a special live television program that will delve into the issues surrounding the proposed creation of a regional transit authority.

The show, "You Can Get There from Here — RTA," is being produced by Channel 11 (WTTW), and will be aired from 9 to 10 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 20.

The purpose of the program is to "clarify for viewers the wide range of questions raised by legislative proposals for a publicly supported regional transit system in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area," a Channel 11 spokesman said.

Walsh is the only mayor scheduled to appear as part of a panel that will include: Theodore Shuster, of the Burlington-Northern Ry.; Langhorne Bond, secretary of the Illinois department of transportation, and Richard M. Michaels, director of research for the Northwestern University's transportation center.

OTHER participants are George H. Ranney Jr., chairman of the former task force on transportation; Lawrence G. Suesy, a member of the Chicago Transit Authority board, and guest moderator Jorie Lueloff of Channel 5 (NBC).

The program is designed to answer the questions:

- What benefits can be expected from RTA?
- What are the drawbacks?
- What's holding it up?
- How much will it cost and how will it be financed?
- How will the suburbs benefit?
- Are suburban taxpayers being asked merely to bail out a defunct CTA?

At the end of the program, viewers will be able to participate in a poll by answering yes or no to three propositions.

"In general, I am satisfied with the bus and train service available to me now."

"I feel that a regional transit authority should be set up to coordinate all bus and train services and keep them running."

"I feel that tax monies should be used to get safe, clean, fast and better coordinated bus and train service."

The statements will appear in ballot form in Chicago area newspapers. Viewers will also be able to phone in their response to the television station after the show.

Early congressional confirmation expected

Local Republican leaders support Ford for VP

Northwest suburban Republican leaders lined up quickly over the weekend in support of President Nixon's choice of U.S. Rep. Gerald Ford as the nation's vice president.

Ford "should be able to soothe some of the wounds between the executive branch and the Congress," said U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12, who called the vice president-designate "a very acceptable choice."

The vote to confirm Ford, a 25-year Congress veteran from Michigan, will probably be near unanimous, he said. Crane's first choice for the post was Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, but he noted that "nobody is really unhappy" with Ford.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10, also predicted an early confirmation. "I am highly delighted with the nomination of Congressman Gerald Ford to be vice president," said Young. "His experience of 25 years in Congress and his close association with the President in his position as House Minority Leader make him superbly equipped to assume the responsibilities of vice president and, if necessary, those of the President."

YOUNG SAID Ford's name was one of those he recommended to President Nixon for the post. Ford enjoys the respect of Democratic Congressional leaders and "will be confirmed expeditiously by the House and Senate," Young said.

Ford was nominated Friday by Mr. Nixon to replace former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who resigned last week and was convicted of income tax evasion and sentenced to three years' probation.

Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Republican committeeman, also said Ford could improve relations between the executive and legislative branches of government. "There's a need to bring the White House and the Congress closer together at this time."

"Congressional leaders have sufficient confidence in him to give him approval rapidly," Hansen said. "He couldn't rise to be minority leader without the respect and esteem of his colleagues."

Hansen also said he was pleased that the vice president-designate is a Midwesterner and this his appointment came soon after Agnew resigned. "Anything that can be done to lessen the tensions is going to be beneficial to the country as a whole," he said.

Bernard Pedersen, Palatine Township GOP committeeman, called Ford a "unifier."

"I hate to say a thing like 'he's honest' but anyway when you read about what people say about him, he's a good guy, experienced, and knows the Congress," Pedersen said. Ideologically, "He's not one extreme or the other. He's a balanced selection."

FORD WAS "an excellent choice," according to Floyd Fuller, Maine Township Republican committeeman and a member of the Cook County Board.

"One of the most salient features to the President was that the individual he chose be confirmed quickly by the Congress. In that respect, he was a good choice. He is very popular among members of Congress," said Fuller.

"Another point is that he has 25 years in Congress. With that, he's got to be familiar with what's going on. He has also been very loyal to the President. In all, I believe the choice was excellent," he said.

Legislative experience was also cited by Richard Cowen, Wheeling Township GOP committeeman, as a major point in Ford's favor. "One of the real problems the Nixon administration had encountered was its ability to work with Congress to get legislation passed," said Cowen.

Ford will be an effective liaison between the administration and the legislative branch, "which will certainly help the entire Nixon program," he said.

A dissenting note was sounded by Richard Mugallan, Palatine Township Democratic committeeman, who called Ford "as undistinguished a vice president as you could find."

"Anything that Nixon does is suspect in my view," he said. "He should have been out of there by this time anyway. We should be replacing him."

Dist. 21 wrapup

$1.8 million contract OK'd for junior high additions

The Watson Construction Co. will construct additions totaling $1,820,709 to the Dist. 21 three junior high schools.

The contract for the work to be done this year was awarded last week by the Dist. 21 school board. The additions will provide extra classroom space besides accommodating new vocational education programs.

The contract bid agreed upon is $19,000 less than the original Watson bid of $1,839,709. Several items included in the first specifications for the construction of the additions were trimmed to save money.

Watson submitted the lowest of six bids received two weeks ago by the district.

The construction of the junior high additions will be financed with funds remaining from 1970 school referendum and money from the special education levy.

The referendum was to purchase sites for Irving and Stevenson schools and to construct the vocational education wings at Cooper, London and Holmes junior high schools. Because both the Irving and Stevenson sites were donated, the district still has about $300,000 in referendum funds.

Trade site for funds

Dist. 21 has relinquished a school site on McHenry Road to the 3-H Building Corp. in return for a donation from the developers.

The site, located between Whippietree Village and Cedar Run, is not expected to be needed by Dist. 21.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said because most of the northwest section of Wheeling is being developed with apartments and condominiums, he does not expect a large number of children to come from the area.

Dist. 21 also owns another nearby site close to the Lake County line.

The 3-H Building Corp. has agreed to give the district $50 for each unit of three bedrooms or more and $20 for each one- and two-bedroom unit.

The developers of the project have not released the number of each kind of unit to be included in the 67.3-acre development.

No classes Nov. 12

There will be no classes in School Dist. 21, Monday, Nov. 12.

The day has been declared a "day of no attendance" in the district by the school board. Because Veteran's Day, Nov. 11, falls on Sunday, the district was not allowed to designate Monday as a legal holiday.

Recognizing that many businesses will not be open on Monday and anticipating that families will want to take advantage of the three-day weekend, the board suspended classes for the day.

Hot lunch research

Dist. 21 administrators will do research on the type of hot lunches that might be offered in the district in response to requests for the hot meals from parents of children attending Riley School in Arlington Heights.

Presently, hot lunches are served only at the district's three junior high schools. Elementary children walk home for lunch or bring a lunch to school.

Gill said a questionnaire may be mailed to Dist. 21 residents later to poll their opinions on offering hot lunches in the elementary schools.

SMOKE BILLOWS FROM the Service Merchandise Inc. store. The roof caved in, and several firefighters just escaped down ladders. Units from surrounding communities aided the Hoffman Estates Fire Department in fighting the blaze. The fire was under control in about six hours. (Photos by Jay Needleman)

$1 million fire hits store; 4 charged

by STIRLING MORITA

Service Merchandise Inc. was to have a grand opening tomorrow at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center. But a monstrous fire thought to be arson-caused struck Saturday, causing damage roughly estimated at $1 million. Four Chicago men have been charged with arson in connection with the fire.

It was the largest fire ever in Hoffman Estates, fire officials said. Firemen from all over the area joined Hoffman Estates firefighters in a grim battle in the early morning drizzle to save the former W. T. Grant building. The fire alarm was given about 4 a.m.

Shortly before the fire report, four Chicago men were arrested by Schaumburg police after a traffic violation stop at Higgins and Roselle roads. In the car, there was about $2,500 worth of items thought taken from Service Merchandise, a catalog merchandise store, police said.

After subsequent investigation, Hoffman Estates police charged the four with burglary and arson.

THE SUSPECTS were identified as George Lawson, 20, of 4414 S. Oakwood; Steven Handy, 21, of 5617 S. Calumet; Demarvin Rodgers, 19, of 4331 Evans, and Craig Sanford, 19, of 4340 Evans. Sanford, Lawson and Handy were reportedly fired Wednesday from Service Merchandise.

Charges of possession of stolen property were filed against the four by Schaumburg police. Handy was also booked on charges of possession of burglary tools, having no driver's license on his person and driving without headlights on, and Lawson on a charge of unlawful use of weapons for having a pair of non-chachu (kung-fu) sticks, police reported.

Nearly 35 emergency vehicles — 15 of them fire engines — rushed to the one-story concrete building on the southern part of the shopping center on Roselle Road between Higgins and Golf roads. Authorities estimated that as many as 150 men may have been summoned to the scene.

State fire marshals were dispatched to investigate the blaze, but had no comments.

According to Hoffman Estates Fire Chief Carl Selke, the fire started in the rear of the 44,000-square-foot building and the heat was so intense it drove firefighters out when they first entered the building.

Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa said, "We're probably speaking in terms of a million-dollar fire here."

HOLES ON THE south side of the building were drilled so firemen could douse the flames.

Selke said there was a lot of smoke at first, but when the roof caved in, the flames shot up.

"We had about 10 or 12 men on the roof, and it started going," Selke said. "I thought we lost a couple of guys at first. But everyone was okay."

The fire was under control about six hours after a nearby bakery had summoned firefighters to the scene. Firemen were still at the scene Saturday night to prevent flare-ups. One fire truck had to return about 3 p.m. when there was a minor flare-up.

Selke said the rain did not help contain the fire, but that "all it did was make us sweat."

THERE WERE no damages to the other stores in the shopping center. The blaze left behind only a concrete skeleton of a building. Fire officials said the remains of the store would have to be torn down.

Selke added that the sprinkler system for the store was being installed, but was not completed.

Fire departments called in to assist were Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights. A civil defense van with needed air packs and power drills was sent from Skokie.

The toy section of the Service Merchandise store was scheduled to open tomorrow, but the store had not been completely stocked yet, said Wendell Floyd, manager. He had no estimates on the value of the store's contents.

The merchandise in the store had been insured, Floyd said, watching firemen bring out soggy remains of the store's goods.

He added he did not know what the future of the store would be. Service Merchandise Inc. has branch stores throughout the South and had planned stores for the Chicago area. Construction had already begun for a 20,000-square-foot addition to the main building.

IN CONNECTION with the four arrests, Schaumburg police discovered two nearly-empty gasoline cans from the trunk of the car containing the four men. Chief Martin Conroy said the remaining liquid in the cans appeared to be of an inflammable type and that the one- and two-gallon cans would be sent to the Chicago Crime Lab for analysis.

Recovered were stereo speakers, tuners, headphones, baby dolls, a toy truck, hair dryers, walkie-talkies and typewriters, Conroy said.

Patrolman Joseph Sorlino was returning to patrol duty from a call about 3:45 a.m. when he saw a car without headlights on turning east onto Higgins Road, police said. As he approached the suspect car, he saw items in the front and back seats and then radioed for assistance, police reported.

The men in the car claimed the equipment had fallen off a truck on the Dan Ryan Expressway, according to authorities.

Patrolman Roy Desmond assisted, and two of the four men were found hiding, crouching behind the front seat.

While at the scene, a motorist told authorities smoke was coming from the shopping center, and the report was radioed in to Hoffman Estates Police.

FAA checks out landing system

A low-flying DC-3 airplane circling this area Friday was carrying out a routine check of the instrument landing system at O'Hare Airport, a Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) spokesman said Friday.

The checks are made frequently, usually at night, and are designed to insure that the electronic equipment which guides planes into O'Hare is accurate and conforms to FAA standards, the spokesman said.

The DC-3s used in the tests are scheduled to be replaced by smaller, faster jet airplanes.
